Treaty Advocates To Try For Ban Vote This Week

Opponents Could Make Debates Go Into Third Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bi-partisan Senate leadership—balked in two previous tries — will make new attempts this week to bring the limited nuclear test-ban treaty to the voting stage.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader, conceded Saturday that unless the opposition cooperates, the debate may extend into its third week.

He and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the minority leader from Illinois, made two efforts last week to advance the parliamentary stages of the treaty to move from debate on the pact itself to the resolution of ratification.

Until that is done, reservations and understandings which have been offered to the resolution, can not be called up for debate and votes.

TWICE BLOCKED

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., a foe of the pact, twice blocked the bipartisan leadership's joint requests for unanimous consent to bring up the resolution. But he refused to say whether he plans to offer an amendment to the treaty, which would be barred by the motion.

Mansfield, asked the prospects for a change of attitude by Thurmond, said "I just don't know."

"There's no agreement," he said, "and no way to force one."

While the motion could be offered to advance the treaty—and the leadership has the votes to do it—it would be subject to unlimited debate.

Once the resolution comes up, the Senate faces votes on:

1. A reservation by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., to write into it the U.S. right to use its nuclear weapons at its own choosing in defense of either the United States or its allies. The leadership says this right is amply protected by

DEADLINE BEAT

Ten Candidates Qualify In Demo Governor Race

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Ten candidates qualified Saturday in the Democratic race for governor before the deadline passed at 5 p.m.

Candidates will be certified today by the chairman of the Democratic state central committee.

The only way for others to be qualified was to have mailed their papers and fees before the deadline time from somewhere in Louisiana.

GOP CANDIDATE

In Lake Charles, Charleton H. Lyons, Shreveport businessman, became the only Republican to qualify for governor.

But Chairman Thomas C. Hall said the Republican State Central Committee will meet in Lake Charles next Saturday and certify candidates for "a substantial portion" of the major state offices.

Rep. Louis Michot of Lafayette and Claude Kirkpatrick, state director of public works, were the last two Democrats to qualify for governor Saturday with the Democratic State Central Committee.

Others on the list, who qualified earlier, were Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of education; former Gov. Robert F. Kennon; Hugh P. Lasseigne, Baton Rouge; U.S. Rep. Gillis W. Long; Public Service Commissioner John J. McKeithen; U.S. Ambassador de-Lesseps S. Morrison; A. Roswell Thompson of New Orleans, and Wilford L. Thompson Sr. of Zachary.

The Democratic first primary for governor and, 10 top state offices and scores of local offices will be held Dec.7. Victory in the Democratic race usually means election in heavily Democratic Louisiana.

Two incumbent state officials apparently won nomination for their offices by default.

They were Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr., who has held that post 20 years, and Mrs. Ellen Bryan Moore, register of the state land office. No other candidates qualified for their posts.

After the deadline, records showed eight qualified for lieutenant governor, two for attorney

GOP Enters In Governor State Race

Charlton H. Lyons Sr., a prominent Shreveport businessman and civic leader, announced Saturday his candidacy for governor on the Republican ticket.

Lyons was born in Abbeville, Louisiana, and reared in Melville, in St. Landry Parish. He attended Louisiana State University, and received a B. A. degree and an L.L.B. degree from Tulane University. He taught school at Glenmora and Pollock, Louisiana.

WAR VETERAN

Following service in the Army in World War I, he practiced law in Winnfield and Shreveport. He is currently engaged in the oil business at Shreveport.

Lyons is married to the former Marjorie Hall, and they have two children and ten grandchildren. He has been extremely active in civic and community affairs.

In the submittal of his announcement, Lyons said:

"I have qualified as the Republican candidate for governor for three basic reasons. First, because I strongly believe that the Republican Party of Louisiana has a responsibility to make certain that the people of this state, in the general election on March 3, next year, will have an opportunity to vote for a candidate for governor who is unswervingly and openly opposed to the Kennedy Administration and all for which it stands.

"There is a large number of Democrat candidates for governor, and it is obvious that some of them are supporters of the Kennedy administration, regardless of whether or not they will admit it. Thus, there is no assurance that the Democrat nominee for governor will not be a man who will strongly support the re - election of Mr. Kennedy next year. If this happened, and if the Republican Party did not run a candidate for governor, the vote of this state could go by default to Mr. Kennedy. I feel compelled to actively prevent such an event.

"As the Republican candidate for governor, I pledge to the people of this state that I will work relentlessly for the defeat of Mr.

Diem To Lift Martial Law Noon Monday

Elections Also Rescheduled To Pick Assembly

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Martial law which has prevailed in South Viet Nam for 25 days will end at noon Monday and civilian agencies will resume all administrative functions, President Ngo Dinh Diem announced Saturday.

Even while student unrest was reported expanding to the countryside, the president rescheduled for Sept. 27 a National Assembly election that had been postponed from its original date, Aug. 31.

Dropping of martial law would be one step toward a return to normalcy sought by the United States, a worried ally of Diem's administration in a war against Communist guerrillas.

TWIN STATEMENTS

In Washington, the State Department welcomed the news and said such an action would be a step in the right direction.

"We have not yet received a report from our embassy in Saigon," the State Department spokesman said in the U.S. capital. "But if the lifting of martial law means that the Vietnamese government is moving to undertake constructive measures to achieve adequate support to win the war and to insure a better future for the Vietnamese people it is a step in the right direction. We shall be watching developments in Viet Nam closely."

The announcement coincided with a statement by Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, that South Viet Nam would welcome an on-the-spot investigation of the Veitnamese political-religious crisis by the United Nations.

"Viet Nam has nothing to hide," the president's chic sister-in-law and official hostess told a news conference.

Car Mishap Here Fatal; Girl Critical

A 39-year-old Monroe woman was fatally hurt and her 19 months old daughter critically injured when a car they were in smashed into a culvert Saturday night. It was the first traffic fatality for Monroe this year.

hospital from scene of the wreck on Powell Avenue. Her young daughter, Susan, was reported in critical condition, and late Saturday night was rushed to Shreveport for treatment. Both were taken to the hospital here by Mulhearn ambulance.

SKULL FRACTURED

Mrs. Ruple was the wife of the late J. T. Ruple, a Monroe businessman and brother of well-known Neville athletic director Bill Ruple. She died of a fractured skull, according to Ouachita Parish Assistant Coroner Dr. C. U. Johnson.

Monroe police investigating the tragedy said Mrs. Ruple was apparently driving south on Powell Avenue when the car went off the right side of the street, traveled approximately 161 feet in a deep ditch and smashed into a culvert. Police officers said the baby was knocked onto the floorboard of the car, and Mrs. Ruple was thrown across the child.

However, it was undetermined late Saturday what caused her car to leave the avenue. Some conjecture was made as to whether she had been sideswiped or perhaps swerved to miss a pedestrian and lost control of the car.

The accident occurred in the 2200 block of Powell Avenue, after the car left the roadway in the 2100 block and traveled the length of the ditch before smashing into the culvert. The wreck was still under investigation by police Saturday night.

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Ruple were incomplete. Survivors other than the baby daughter include another daughter, Mrs. Lewis Hardy, Orange, Tex., and a step - son, Chandler Ruple, of Horsham, Pa.; one brother, John Hodge, West Monroe; and two half brothers, W. L. Allen, Monroe, and Robert S. Allen, Marion; one sister, Melba Allen, Bridge City, Tex.; and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tyra Allen, also of Marion.

FOURTH IN U.S.

Quintuplets Born In South Dakota

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — The 30-year-old wife of an Aberdeen shipping clerk gave birth to quintuplets Saturday, the fourth recorded birth of quintuplets in the United States.

Doctors attending Mrs. Andrew Fischer said the first 72 hours of their lives would be the most critical ones, but that four girls and a boy appeared healthy and normal.

Of the three previous quintuplet births in the United States, none of the children survived infancy. Quintuplets have occurred only about once in 42 million births.

Fischer and his wife have five other children, ages 3½ to 7. The family lives on a small-sized farm outside the city where they keep a couple of cows.

Sister M. Andre, director of nursing at St. Luke's Hospital, said one of the dangers to the quintuplets is hyaline membrane—a lung condition that sometimes develops in premature babies. This affliction led to the death of President Kennedy's second son some weeks ago.

PREMATURE

The Fischer babies arrived about two months premature. Mrs. Fischer was brought to the hospital last Wednesday and was informed of the likelihood of quintuplets that night.

"About a half-hour after the doctor told her, she started crying and cried all night," said the father, 38.

As for himself, Fischer said, "I was shook."

Aberdeen, a city of some 23,000 in northeastern South Dakota, was excited with the news. Offers of assistance for the family poured into its daily newspaper and radio stations. One contractor sent in a check for $500.

Merchants volunteered clothing and a new washer and dryer. Relatives pitched in to milk the cows and tend the five other youngsters while Fischer sought sleep.

Birth of the South Dakota quintuplets followed by a week a similar birth in Venezuela. Quadruplets were born to a woman in Jackson, Miss., a week ago and a report from Iran told of another set of quads Saturday.

Trashmen Aid Woman's Quest For Lost Cash

BELLINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Gertrude Paul telephoned her husband at this place of business Saturday and told him she couldn't find the $100 he had given her earlier in the week.

He reminded her she had tucked the bill in her dress pocket.

Mrs. Paul then recalled she had emptied the pocket of several facial tissues, put them in a shopping bag and tossed the shopping bag into a rubbish barrel.

By this time, the rubbish collectors had been in the Paul's back yard and carted away the rubbish.

Mrs. Paul called the rubbish department, located the collectors and they drove her to a dump.

In no time at all, Mrs. Paul spotted her shopping bag. She looked inside and found the $100 bill neatly folded between two facial tissues.

The collectors declined any reward.

132 In Parish Register Past Week As Voters

Whether because it was "Registration Reminder Week," or just drawing closer to deadline time, Ouachita Parish voter registration increased considerably during the past week.

"This is just the beginning of our busy season," was the comment of Mrs. Mae Lucky, registrar of voters, Saturday.

A total of 132 voters registered here during the past week. This brings the sum so far this month to 209. All though the month of August some 304 local residents qualified to vote.

According to Mrs. Lucky, the numbers of those seeking registration increases steadily as the date nears for the closing of the books. This year the deadline is set for Nov. 6.

Of the number registered so far this month, only 19 have signed up as Republicans. A local movement to establish a two-party system in Monroe had set as its goal about 100 GOP affiliations per month from now until election time.

On August 27, about 30 local voters changed their party from Democratic to Republican, but since that one time, there have been no major changeovers, reported Mrs. Lucky.

Averaging 23 applicants daily, Mrs. Lucky urges that prospective voters be sure and have the proper documents with them when they come to register.

U.S., Russians Set New Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador, Anatoly F. Dobrynin began working out arrangements Saturday for new talks aimed at further U.S.-Soviet agreements to reduce the threat of nuclear war.

Rusk reportedly believes one of the best prospects for agreement is a proposal that Russia and the United States open up their territories to international miliatry observers stationed at key airfields, ports, and road and rail junctions. Since such observers presumably could detect preparations for any massive surprise attack, their presence would presumably discourage preparations.

'NOT ENOUGH SPANKINGS'

Harry Tells North To Quit Meddling

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "If Northern busybodies would stay at home and clean up their own back yards, the rest of the country will obey its laws," former President Harry S. Truman said Saturday night.

In a speech prepared for 1,200 persons at a $100-a-plate dinner honoring Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, the former chief executive spoke out on recent demonstrations.

In his usual blunt style, he said: "These youngsters who are running around the country trying to institute mob rule were raised under the nutty theory of let the child grow like a weed with no home discipline. It is a lazy way to raise a family.

"These young rioters were not spanked enough as they grew up. The police should be furnished with nice old-fashioned butter paddles and be authorized to use them in the place intended for spanking on such demonstrators as interrupted the (House Committee on Un-American Activities) committee hearing in Washington and the so-called 'sit-ins' in the mayor's office in New York."

Truman said we are living in a very turbulent age in world history.

"The argument on civil rights has been stirred up by Boston and New England demagogues just as the War Between the States was brought about by Harriet Beecher Stowe and William Lloyd Garrison," he asserted.

"The dinner was designed to raise $100,000 for Sen. Young's re-election campaign if he should run again in 1964. Young, 73, continued to keep Democrats guessing, but Truman left no doubt the senator would seek re-election.

"I wouldn't have come all the way if I didn't think so," the 79-year-old former president said.

Rep. Willis Tags Student Chiders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defiant students who jeered congressmen and touched off demonstrations that led to violence at the House hearing were following "the most un-American tradition ever" said the committee chairman who faced their scorn.

"In the American tradition we take our grievances to the court and not to the street" Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., said Saturday in an interview.

NO GOVERNOR'S RACE

Injured Johnson Fails To Qualify

Clyde Johnson, lay-minister and merchant from Greensburg, said from a West Monroe hospital bed here Saturday night he did not qualify for the governor's race with the Democratic State Central Committee.

Johnson, braced in traction from injuries he received when he crashed his automobile near here Friday, said he had picked up qualifying papers with the intention of filing on Friday the 13th to defy superstition.

He said he asked a lawyer from Alexandria to get him a second set of qualifying papers "but the attorney never showed."

"I had the original papers in a briefcase in my car but they haven't been able to locate the papers or the briefcase," the 41-year-old Johnson said.

Johnson told Ouachita Parish sheriff's deputies that a late model car trailed him Friday morning from south of Columbia to a bypass south of Monroe.

He said he thought he had lost the car when he paused at the bypass. But, according to Johnson, the car appeared and he heard two noises that sounded like "cap pistols."

He jumped into his car and in haste to get away, he smashed the car into a bridge abutment.

He was taken to the Glenwood Hospital where his condition was described as serious.

Johnson apparently aggravated a neck injury which resulted from an automobile wreck in the early summer. That accident hospitalized him for two weeks in Baton Rouge.

"I am definitely not out of the running. They have not seen the last of Clyde Johnson," he told a reporter.

Johnson said that X-rays are planned Monday to determine the extent of his injuries.

Aberdeen, a city of some 23,000 in northeastern South Dakota, was excited with the news. Offers of assistance for the family poured into its daily newspaper and radio stations. One contractor sent in a check for $500.

Merchants volunteered clothing and a new washer and dryer. Relatives pitched in to milk the cows and tend the five other youngsters while Fischer sought sleep.

Birth of the South Dakota quintuplets followed by a week a similar birth in Venezuela. Quadruplets were born to a woman in Jackson, Miss., a week ago and a report from Iran told of another set of quads Saturday.

Opponents Could Make Debates Go Into Third Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bi-partisan Senate leadership—balked in two previous tries — will make new attempts this week to bring the limited nuclear test-ban treaty to the voting stage.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader, conceded Saturday that unless the opposition cooperates, the debate may extend into its third week.

He and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the minority leader from Illinois, made two efforts last week to advance the parliamentary stages of the treaty to move from debate on the pact itself to the resolution of ratification.

Until that is done, reservations and understandings which have been offered to the resolution, can not be called up for debate and votes.

TWICE BLOCKED

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., a foe of the pact, twice blocked the bipartisan leadership's joint requests for unanimous consent to bring up the resolution. But he refused to say whether he plans to offer an amendment to the treaty, which would be barred by the motion.

Mansfield, asked the prospects for a change of attitude by Thurmond, said "I just don't know."

"There's no agreement," he said, "and no way to force one."

While the motion could be offered to advance the treaty—and the leadership has the votes to do it—it would be subject to unlimited debate.

Once the resolution comes up, the Senate faces votes on:

1. A reservation by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., to write into it the U.S. right to use its nuclear weapons at its own choosing in defense of either the United States or its allies. The leadership says this right is amply protected by

Trashmen Aid Woman's Quest For Lost Cash

BELLINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Gertrude Paul telephoned her husband at this place of business Saturday and told him she couldn't find the $100 he had given her earlier in the week.

He reminded her she had tucked the bill in her dress pocket.

Mrs. Paul then recalled she had emptied the pocket of several facial tissues, put them in a shopping bag and tossed the shopping bag into a rubbish barrel.

By this time, the rubbish collectors had been in the Paul's back yard and carted away the rubbish.

Mrs. Paul called the rubbish department, located the collectors and they drove her to a dump.

In no time at all, Mrs. Paul spotted her shopping bag. She looked inside and found the $100 bill neatly folded between two facial tissues.

The collectors declined any reward.

132 In Parish Register Past Week As Voters

Whether because it was "Registration Reminder Week," or just drawing closer to deadline time, Ouachita Parish voter registration increased considerably during the past week.

"This is just the beginning of our busy season," was the comment of Mrs. Mae Lucky, registrar of voters, Saturday.

A total of 132 voters registered here during the past week. This brings the sum so far this month to 209. All though the month of August some 304 local residents qualified to vote.

According to Mrs. Lucky, the numbers of those seeking registration increases steadily as the date nears for the closing of the books. This year the deadline is set for Nov. 6.

Of the number registered so far this month, only 19 have signed up as Republicans. A local movement to establish a two-party system in Monroe had set as its goal about 100 GOP affiliations per month from now until election time.

On August 27, about 30 local voters changed their party from Democratic to Republican, but since that one time, there have been no major changeovers, reported Mrs. Lucky.

Averaging 23 applicants daily, Mrs. Lucky urges that prospective voters be sure and have the proper documents with them when they come to register.

U.S., Russians Set New Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador, Anatoly F. Dobrynin began working out arrangements Saturday for new talks aimed at further U.S.-Soviet agreements to reduce the threat of nuclear war.

Rusk reportedly believes one of the best prospects for agreement is a proposal that Russia and the United States open up their territories to international miliatry observers stationed at key airfields, ports, and road and rail junctions. Since such observers presumably could detect preparations for any massive surprise attack, their presence would presumably discourage preparations.

'NOT ENOUGH SPANKINGS'

Harry Tells North To Quit Meddling

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "If Northern busybodies would stay at home and clean up their own back yards, the rest of the country will obey its laws," former President Harry S. Truman said Saturday night.

In a speech prepared for 1,200 persons at a $100-a-plate dinner honoring Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, the former chief executive spoke out on recent demonstrations.

In his usual blunt style, he said: "These youngsters who are running around the country trying to institute mob rule were raised under the nutty theory of let the child grow like a weed with no home discipline. It is a lazy way to raise a family.

"These young rioters were not spanked enough as they grew up. The police should be furnished with nice old-fashioned butter paddles and be authorized to use them in the place intended for spanking on such demonstrators as interrupted the (House Committee on Un-American Activities) committee hearing in Washington and the so-called 'sit-ins' in the mayor's office in New York."

Truman said we are living in a very turbulent age in world history.

"The argument on civil rights has been stirred up by Boston and New England demagogues just as the War Between the States was brought about by Harriet Beecher Stowe and William Lloyd Garrison," he asserted.

"The dinner was designed to raise $100,000 for Sen. Young's re-election campaign if he should run again in 1964. Young, 73, continued to keep Democrats guessing, but Truman left no doubt the senator would seek re-election.

"I wouldn't have come all the way if I didn't think so," the 79-year-old former president said.

Rep. Willis Tags Student Chiders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defiant students who jeered congressmen and touched off demonstrations that led to violence at the House hearing were following "the most un-American tradition ever" said the committee chairman who faced their scorn.

"In the American tradition we take our grievances to the court and not to the street" Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., said Saturday in an interview.

Cloudy, Cool Area Outlook

Cloudy and cool weather will continue to dominate the Monroe area for today and Monday as a cool polar front lifts out of the midsouth but leaves some of the showers it brought recently.

CLOUDY

High today under cloudy skies is expected to reach a pleasant 86. More cool weather is due tonight though, as the temperature drops back into the upper 60s.

Saturday's rain was only .34 inches at the Selman Field gauge for a total of 1.15 inches this past week.

Clouds will be shifted about by easterly and southeasterly winds blowing in the 5 to 15 m.p.h. range today and Monday.

NO GOVERNOR'S RACE

Injured Johnson Fails To Qualify

Clyde Johnson, lay-minister and merchant from Greensburg, said from a West Monroe hospital bed here Saturday night he did not qualify for the governor's race with the Democratic State Central Committee.

Johnson, braced in traction from injuries he received when he crashed his automobile near here Friday, said he had picked up qualifying papers with the intention of filing on Friday the 13th to defy superstition.

He said he asked a lawyer from Alexandria to get him a second set of qualifying papers "but the attorney never showed."

"I had the original papers in a briefcase in my car but they haven't been able to locate the papers or the briefcase," the 41-year-old Johnson said.

Johnson told Ouachita Parish sheriff's deputies that a late model car trailed him Friday morning from south of Columbia to a by-pass south of Monroe.

He said he thought he had lost the car when he paused at the by-pass. But, according to Johnson, the car appeared and he heard two noises that sounded like "cap pistols."

He jumped into his car and in haste to get away, he smashed the car into a bridge abutment.

He was taken to the Glenwood Hospital where his condition was described as serious.

Johnson apparently aggravated a neck injury which resulted from an automobile wreck in the early summer. That accident hospitalized him for two weeks in Baton Rouge.

"I am definitely not out of the running. They have not seen the last of Clyde Johnson," he told a reporter.

Johnson said that X-rays are planned Monday to determine the extent of his injuries.

United Givers Fund Helps Area Scouts

Statistics often are dull.

Say there are 1467 Boy Scouts in this area and no one is particularly impressed. Say there are 630 volunteer workers, and everyone's attitude is "So what?"

Unless the person happens to be one of those Scouts or volunteers. If he is, he already knows the value of Scouting.

For the other 102,600 residents of Ouachita Parish here are some facts about the Boy Scouts, one of the 13 United Givers Fund agencies.

Scouting is a program not only for the boys themselves, but for the community. By training these young men in citizenship, building character and teaching them physical fitness as well as a sense of values, the Scouts are providing the nation with insurance: insuring the best quality of leadership in this and the next century.

Cub Scouting for boys 8 through 10 centers activities around the family. Parents help with simple crafts and achievements at home. Here Scouting differs from most other youth programs, which rely mainly on activities outside the home. Cub Scouts meet weekly, with their "den," a small group of friends.

The next step on the ladder of Scouting is Boy Scouting, for lads 11 through 17. Parents are still important, but their help is more subtle, intended to foster self-reliance in their sons. The boys work in defined programs of skill and opportunity for individual recognition and also learn teamwork.

For high-school age boys, the Explorers program has been designed especially to be attractive whether or not they have been active in younger scouting. They have a wide range of activities, including their own elections, committees and representatives, similar to adult organizations.

One of the big events in any Scout's life is attending the Philmont camp, near Cimarron, New Mexico. In this sprawling outdoor empire of evergreen forest, mountains and streams, Scouts camp to their heart's content.

Another ambition of every Scout is to attend the big national Jamboree. This year 74 boys and adults from this council joined 50,000 Scouts from the United States at the nation-wide meeting.

Warren Klam, son of Dr. and Mrs. N. Klam, experienced the thrill of a life-time recently when he participated in the World Jamboree in Europe.

Any established institution of good character may adolpt all or part of the whole Scout family. Groups are now being sponsored by PTA's, schools, churches and civic clubs. Most of the workers are volunteers; money from the United Givers Fund is used to pay the staff of professionals who must co-ordinate Scouting programs and principals and to train volunteers. UGF funds also are used to buy materials and to maintain the Scout Office with its volumes of records on each Scout's achievements.

Besides the regular Scouting meetings where the boys work and learn, there are events each year to fill the council calendar. There are the jamborees, pilgrimages, "camporee," area conferences and camping and aquatic schools.

This year the slogan of the Boy Scouts is "strengthen America—Scouting can make the difference." The 10,125 boys here who have not yet discovered the world of Scouting could make a big difference — in the Twin Cities, in the state and in their country. Through the Ouachita Parish United Givers Fund, which furnishes 50 per cent of the Ouachita Valley Council of Boy Scouts, more boys can be given more opportunities.

Udall Helps Rush Ill Man To Hospital

DAR ES SALAAM, Tangayika (AP) — Plunging from one adventure into another on the slopes of legendary Kilimanjaro, U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall helped rush a seriously ill Tanganyikan down the mountain at breakneck speed to hospital care Saturday.

Udall, an avid outdoorsman who has climbed Japan's Mt. Fuji among other peaks, was nearing the 19,300-foot Kilimanjaro summit Friday morning when Capt. M. H. Sarakikya, a member of the Udall party, collapsed with high fever.

The Udall party immediately sent a porter down the mountain to Marangu, on the slope near the town of Moshi, while Udall and others hoisted the stricken man onto a litter and began the descent. Daylight gave out, but Udall 43, and his party kept on through the night.

A doctor in the party fed oxygen to Sarakikya during the descent. About the halfway point, the Udall party was met by mountain rescue police alerted by the porter sent ahead, and all reached Marangu about 8 a.m. Udall and his party had made the norml two-day descent in half the time.

Sarakikya, a veteran of several Kilimanjaro ascents and a former holder of the mile track record for Tanganyika and Britain's Sandhurst Military Academy, was hospitalized in Moshi.

Udall arranged to fly to Nairobi, Keyna.

Pope Opens Way To Unity With Non-Christians

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI opened the Vatican's doors Saturday for closer Roman Catholic relations with Judaism, Buddhism, Hinduism, Islam and all the non-Christian religions of the world.

They also named four cardinals, among them his closest unofficial aide, to key posts as his personal executives in running the Vatican Ecumenical Council. The council reopens Sept. 29 after a nine-month recess.

The Pope's decisions were contained in a letter to Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, French-born dean of the College of Cardinals and senior among the cardinals on the Ecumenical Council's presiding commission.

"It seems opportune to us to extend the scope of the secretariat, to be constituted in time, also to those of non-Christian religions," the Pope said.

His plan reflected a desire for Catholicism to work in areas of common interest with the non-Christian creeds of the world, comprising two billion persons.

Some Vatican sources said the Pope's one-sentence reference apparently was to an expansion of the Vatican secretariat for promoting Christian unity. Others said they thought an entirely separate secretariat eventually would be formed because of the different aims in having contact with Christians and with non-Christians.

The Christian unity secretariat, created by Pope John XXIII in 1960 under German biblical scholar Augustin Cardinal Bea, has been maintaining contact with Protestant and Orthodox churches —representing 350 million members—primarily to find ways toward possible Christian unity in the future.

Several Asian bishops of the Roman Catholic Church had proposed publicly earlier this year that the Vatican create a secretariat for non-Christian religions to encourage an exchange of views and information. The idea was endorsed by Peter Tatsuo Cardinal Doi, archbishop of Formosa.

In his outline for administering the reconvened Ecumenical Council, Pope Paul named as papal delegates or moderators these four cardinals: Leo Jozef Suenens of Brussels, Julius Doepnfer of Munich, Giacomo Lercaro of Bologna, and Gregory Peter Agagianian, Armenian-born cardinal who directs the Vatican Congregation for Propagation of the Faith. An official Vatican announcement said their function would be to "direct with executive mandate the conciliar assembly."

In effect, the four cardinals will carry to the council floor the Pope's thinking and wishes.

Most significant name among the four is 59-year-old Cardinal Suenens. His name is linked with the Pope's as originator of the so-called "Suenens-Montini Plan" during the closing days of the first council session last December.

Cardinal Suenens said in a council speech then that there appeared to be far too much overlapping among the 69 council schemata—topics — that many of them lacked a true pastoral tone that could appeal to the non-Catholic churches, that many were too detailed.

The next day Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini of Milan, now Pope Paul, endorsed Cardinal Suenens' views. Pope John then ordered that the 69 schemata be reduced, and made more pastoral during the recess. The schemata now total 17.

NLSC Special Classes Signup Will Continue

Registration for late afternoon, evening and special Saturday morning classes continues during the coming week at Northeast Louisiana State College for the benefit of those who were unable to enroll last Thursday night, according to Dr. Clint O. Hanna, dean of instruction.

All students, except those registering for the first time, will report to their respective deans during regular office hours of 8 a.m. until 12 noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m. New students will report first to the registrar's office.

Special classes will meet as scheduled beginning on Saturday, Sept. 21, Dr. Hanna said.

Doctor Probes Baby Deaths

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The mysterious reason why some apparently healthy babies die between the ages of two and four months is a superallergic reaction triggered by cow's milk, a Louisville doctor believes.

Dr. Daniel Stowens, associate professor of pathology at the University of Louisville Medical School, said the allergy is not unlike that of persons highly sensitive to penicillin or bee stings. Reaction in these cases can cause death.

By taking the number of "crib deaths" he has studied locally and projecting the figures over the nation, Stowens figures that as many as 20,000 babies a year die of the disease, and possibly more.

He believes the disease can be detected and hopes to start soon on attempts to correct it.

According to findings and conclusions drawn by Stowens, here is what happens in crib deaths: Because of an unexplained physiolgoical defect, proteins find their way into the bloodstream without being digested first.

These undigested proteins are enemies as far as the infant's system is concerned. With the help of a temporary defense inherited from the mother, the infant's body attacks them.

But in two to three months, inherited defenses wear out. The infant starts producing his own attackers, but not fast enough. The undigested protein builds up until it is strong enough to trigger a violent reaction, always fatal.

Others said they thought an entirely separate secretariat eventually would be formed because of the different aims in having contact with Christians and with non-Christians.

The Christian unity secretariat, created by Pope John XXIII in 1960 under German biblical scholar Augustin Cardinal Bea, has been maintaining contact with Protestant and Orthodox churches —representing 350 million members—primarily to find ways toward possible Christian unity in the future.

Several Asian bishops of the Roman Catholic Church had proposed publicly earlier this year that the Vatican create a secretariat for non-Christian religions to encourage an exchange of views and information. The idea was endorsed by Peter Tatsuo Cardinal Doi, archbishop of Formosa.

In his outline for administering the reconvened Ecumenical Council, Pope Paul named as papal delegates or moderators these four cardinals: Leo Jozef Suenens of Brussels, Julius Doepnfer of Munich, Giacomo Lercaro of Bologna, and Gregory Peter Agagianian, Armenian-born cardinal who directs the Vatican Congregation for Propagation of the Faith. An official Vatican announcement said their function would be to "direct with executive mandate the conciliar assembly."

In effect, the four cardinals will carry to the council floor the Pope's thinking and wishes.

Most significant name among the four is 59-year-old Cardinal Suenens. His name is linked with the Pope's as originator of the so-called "Suenens-Montini Plan" during the closing days of the first council session last December.

Cardinal Suenens said in a council speech then that there appeared to be far too much overlapping among the 69 council schemata—topics — that many of them lacked a true pastoral tone that could appeal to the non-Catholic churches, that many were too detailed.

The next day Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini of Milan, now Pope Paul, endorsed Cardinal Suenens' views. Pope John then ordered that the 69 schemata be reduced, and made more pastoral during the recess. The schemata now total 17.

NLSC Special Classes Signup Will Continue

Registration for late afternoon, evening and special Saturday morning classes continues during the coming week at Northeast Louisiana State College for the benefit of those who were unable to enroll last Thursday night, according to Dr. Clint O. Hanna, dean of instruction.

All students, except those registering for the first time, will report to their respective deans during regular office hours of 8 a.m. until 12 noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m. New students will report first to the registrar's office.

Special classes will meet as scheduled beginning on Saturday, Sept. 21, Dr. Hanna said.

Doctor Probes Baby Deaths

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The mysterious reason why some apparently healthy babies die between the ages of two and four months is a superallergic reaction triggered by cow's milk, a Louisville doctor believes.

Dr. Daniel Stowens, associate professor of pathology at the University of Louisville Medical School, said the allergy is not unlike that of persons highly sensitive to penicillin or bee stings. Reaction in these cases can cause death.

By taking the number of "crib deaths" he has studied locally and projecting the figures over the nation, Stowens figures that as many as 20,000 babies a year die of the disease, and possibly more.

He believes the disease can be detected and hopes to start soon on attempts to correct it.

According to findings and conclusions drawn by Stowens, here is what happens in crib deaths: Because of an unexplained physiolgoical defect, proteins find their way into the bloodstream without being digested first.

These undigested proteins are enemies as far as the infant's system is concerned. With the help of a temporary defense inherited from the mother, the infant's body attackers them.

But in two to three months, inherited defenses wear out. The infant starts producing his own attackers, but not fast enough. The undigested protein builds up until it is strong enough to trigger a violent reaction, always fatal.

The first quake, at 12:46 p.m., appeared centered at Hollister. Rock and dirt was spilled across Chittenden Pass Road about 60 miles east of Hollister.

Kennedy To Make Tour Of 12 States

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy will visit 12 states, make 13 speeches and spend one night in a log cabin during a coast-to-coast trip later this month.

Kennedy's preliminary itenerary for the five-day "conservation tour" which starts Sept. 24 was announced Saturday at the weekend White House. The schedule may be expanded.

Billed as a nonpolitical foray, the 10,000-mile trip was said to offer Kennedy a first hand look at conservation and natural resource programs.

The announced timetable included more speeches before city audiences than visits to wilderness areas and conservation projects. However, parts of the schedule were left hazy and it was possible that additional project inspection stops might be added.

Kennedy does plan to stay overnight at two scenic areas—Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming and Lassen Peak National Park in California.

Andrew T. Hatcher, acting White House press secretary, said Kennedy would spend the night at Lassen in a log cabin, adding, with a laugh, "redwood log cabin."

Keeping up with the announced schedule was certain to prove arduous.

Hatcher said that on the Western trip Kennedy will be accompanied by the Democratic senators in each state. He said he anticipates also that the governors of each state will greet the President, and that Democratic officials will join the presidential party along the way.

Kennedy's trip will take him to New York, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Washington, Oregon, California and Nevada.

Speeches are scheduled for Milford, Pa.; Ashland, Wis.; Duluth, Minn.; Grand Forks, N.D.; Laramie, Wyo.; Billings and Great Falls, Mont.; Hanford and Tacoma, Wash.; Salt Lake City; Whiskeytown Reservoir, Calif., and Las Vegas.

Andrew T. Hatcher, acting White House press secretary, said Kennedy would spend the night at Lassen in a log cabin, adding, with a laugh, "redwood log cabin."

Keeping up with the announced schedule was certain to prove arduous.

Hatcher said that on the Western trip Kennedy will be accompanied by the Democratic senators in each state. He said he anticipates also that the governors of each state will greet the President, and that Democratic officials will join the presidential party along the way.

Kennedy's trip will take him to New York, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Washington, Oregon, California and Nevada.

Speeches are scheduled for Milford, Pa.; Ashland, Wis.; Duluth, Minn.; Grand Forks, N.D.; Laramie, Wyo.; Billings and Great Falls, Mont.; Hanford and Tacoma, Wash.; Salt Lake City; Whiskeytown Reservoir, Calif., and Las Vegas.

TAX REVISION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic majority of the House Ways and Means Committee Saturday described its proposed 11.1-billion tax cut as the key to the nation's economic well-being.

In their report on the measure the Democrats said the biggest tax cut ever handed U.S. citizens would spur investment, help balance the budget, cut unemployment and reduce the balance-of-payments deficit.

PLANS VISIT

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) —Finance Minister Mohammad Shoaib will visit Washington with Foreign Minister Z. A. Ghutto later this month to discuss suspension of a $4.3-million U.S. loan to improve the Dacca airport, government sources said Saturday.

The State Department announced the suspension in Washington, on Aug. 30 after Pakistan signed a civil aviation agreement with Communist China. Pakistan intended to use the Dacca airport in East Pakistan for airline flights to Red China.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —In the wake of an unsuccessful sergeants' revolt, the Communist-dominated General Workers' Command threatened Saturday to call a nationwide general strike for Monday. Presidential sources said the government is considering imposing a state of seige.

COCAINE SEIZURE

MIAMI (UPI) — Federal and state narcotics agents climaxed a two-month undercover operation Saturday when they seized 10.8 pounds of cocaine with a black market value estimated at $2 million.

Agents arrested three Cuban exiles and were seeking another in connection with the case, described by agents as "one of the biggest hauls in the nation."

DANES, U.S. AGREE

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson conferred for 75 minutes Saturday with Danish Premier Jens Otto Krag and Foreign Minister Per Haekkerup. Krag said, "We agreed on all problems."

There was no communique, but officials said they discussed American and Danish space communication cooperation, trade between the United States and the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), and the partial nuclear test ban agreement.

Johnson, meanwhile reassured friends that he was not tired despite the strenuous tour and it was the press of business in Washington that was forcing him to cancel a proposed trip to Iceland.

Topcoat Weather Hits East U.S.

By United Press International

Topcoat weather gripped much of the Eastern part of the nation Saturday. Two earthquakes jolted parts of northern California.

Frost and record-breaking low temperatures were reported across the northern United States from New England to Wisconsin. The mercury dropped to 25 at Greenville, Maine, and 26 at Alpena, Mich.

Central Vermont had temperatures in the high 20's and New York had the coldest temperatures ever reported in the state so early in the season. Albany recorded 32 degrees, five below the record, and in Rochester it was 34, three degrees below the record.

general, two for state treasurer, two for commissioner of agriculture, six for state superintendent of education, five for commissioner of insurance, nine for state comptroller, and six for custodian of voting machines.

Chairman Charles A. Riddle Jr. of the Democratic State Central Committee, received the qualification papers and $210 fees for top offices in the Louisiana House chamber.

Several candidates for governor make a correction in their qualification papers, required by an error in a legal citation.

The legal clause had to do with a statement about subversive activities. Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said the latest Louisiana law concerning subversive activities had to be cited in the qualification papers.

Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock became the sixth candidate to qualify for lieutenant governor. This was considered a surprise, since Aycock had been reported ready to qualify for governor.

A source in the Democratic State Central Committee said Aycock may get the endorsements both of Kirkpatrick and Jackson in his bid for another term as lieutenant governor. Other sources said an endorsement definitely would be upcoming from Kirkpatrick.

"I am happy to announce that I will run as an independent candidate for the office of lieutenant governor in the coming election," Aycock said in a statement.

Goldwater Hit For TVA Sale

PULASKI, Tenn. (UPI) — U.S. Rep. Ross Bass Saturday had some harsh words for Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and his reported statement proposing the sale of the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA).

Bass, continuing his tour of the state sounding out sentiment for a possible U.S. Senate race in 1964, said he has found widespread resentment to the senator's statement.

Goldwater was quoted in a national magazine article recently as saying he believed the sale of TVA to private industry would be a good idea.

"Goldwater, should he decide to be a candidate for president," Bass said, "has written off a seven state area served by TVA, especially the state of Tennessee."

Both Monroe police and members of Troop F, state police also reported a number of minor traffic accidents that resulted from rain slick streets and highways.

Kennedy next year, and for the election of a true conservative, such as Senator Barry Goldwater, as President of the United States.

"The second reason is the Two-Party system. In my judgement, there is a vital need for a strong two - party system in this state. If we had a two - party system, the Republican and Democrat Parties would be in constant competition.

"Competition is the very basis of our traditional system of government. If we had a two - party system, the spotlight of publicity would be focused on issues which today are swept under the rug. Where there is only one party, the party invariably shields and protects its own members.

"Further, if we had a two-party system, candidates of the Republican and Democrat Parties would constantly compete for state and local offices. Both Republicans and Democrats would hold office. This would, indeed, result in great benefit to this state. If we had 15 to 20 Republicans in the State Legislature, we could be certain that some of the events of recent years would not have occurred, and, finally, if we had a strong two - party system, neither of the National Parties could take Louisiana for granted. Both would compete for our votes. As it is, the Democrat Party has taken Louisiana for granted. This largely accounts for some of the problems we have today."

"The third reason is personal: The younger conservatives of this state — and they are present everywhere from Sulphur to Oak Grove and from New Orleans to Shreveport. These younger conservatives are true patriots. They have no axe to grind; they seek nothing for themselves. They are only interested in the establishment of good government in Louisiana and constitutional government in America. These younger conservatives have urged me to run for governor. These young people have a tremendous pull on my heart, my mind and my energies. I cannot deny their call.

"In turn, I issue a call to the people of this state: I ask you to join with me in ridding this state from the political plague that besets it. Our goal is formidable, but nothing can withstand the effort of dedicated men and women banded together in a just cause.

"I enter this contest with a faith and a belief in the people of this state. I shall now ask them to have faith in me and place in my hands the task of restoring proper government."

These younger conservatives are true patriots. They have no axe to grind; they seek nothing for themselves. They are only interested in the establishment of good government in Louisiana and constitutional government in America. These younger conservatives have urged me to run for governor. These young people have a tremendous pull on my heart, my mind and my energies. I cannot deny their call.

"In turn, I issue a call to the people of this state: I ask you to join with me in ridding this state from the political plague that besets it. Our goal is formidable, but nothing can withstand the effort of dedicated men and women banded together in a just cause.

"I enter this contest with a faith and a belief in the people of this state. I shall now ask them to have faith in me and place in my hands the task of restoring proper government."

Hay Fever Victims

10,000 In Parish Facing Misery Until First Frost

By FRANCES PHILLIPS
World Staff Writer

About 10,000 people in Ouachita Parish will be miserable from now until the first frost. This startling fact is brought about by microscopic particles of ragweed pollen which will blanket the north Louisiana area for the next few weeks, causing widespread agony among hay fever victims.

According to a local specialist, approximately ten per cent of the general population suffers from some type of major allergy.

During this ragweed season, hay fever is the most prevalent variety of this disease, but Monroe residents are fortunate in that short ragweed is the only species of the plant in this vicinity. Only three to five feet high, short ragweed gives out very little pollen compared to the giant ragweed native to the eastern United States, which reaches a height of five to fifteen feet.

An allergy is defined as a sensitivity which some people develop to substances which are ordinarily harmless to other people. When the allergic person comes into contact with a substance to which he is sensitive, he becomes ill. These sensitizing materials are called allergens.

The major allergies include such serious ailments as asthma, or wheezing and difficult breathing; hives, or itching swellings on the skin, conjunctivitis, or inflammation of the membranes of the eye; digestive disturbances; exzema, or a breaking out on the skin; and some migraine headaches; as well as the familiar contact reactions, such as poison ivy. Symptoms can vary from only mild irritation of the victim to total collapse and even death.

In addition to those plagued by major allergies, a vast army of Americans have minor allergic problems. A specialist summed up the situation with this statement: "We are fond of saying that a person can be allergic to anything under the sun, including the sun."

He cited cases in which sensitive individuals broke out in a painful rash when even briefly exposed to direct sunlight. This, of course, is an extreme case, but is an illustration of the sufferings of allergy victims.

Mold, rather than pollen, causes the majority of trouble around Monroe, authorities reported, because it is a year-round threat, both indoors and out. House dust rates close behind as a serious allergen.

Pollens, however, do form the bulk of the other local mischiefmakers, the doctor pointed out. Tree pollens start in the spring, with the American elm leading the offenders, beginning in February. Others are oak, pecan, and, less frequently, pine.

Grasses have the longest active season, beginning in April and continuing until killed by frost in the fall. The major months are May and June. Pigweed, incorrectly called hogweed, is especially abundant in the local area, thriving throughout the summer. Others are careless weed, lamb's quarter and Western water hemp.

Various flowers and shrubs have pollen which is highly allergic to some people, the doctor continued, but they are dangerous only upon close exposure.

In explanation, he said that there are two types of pollen — that of trees and grasses, which is light and easily airborne, and the type of flowers and shrubs, a heavy variety which depends on insects for transportation.

Not widely known is the fact that a person can be quite allergic to the bacteria formed by his own body. Widely diverse substances can cause reactions in different victims. In addition to the one already mentioned, some of these are animal hair; feathers as in feather pillows; orrisroot; cornstarch and gums in certain cosmetics; kapok (silk floss), wool, cottonseed; dyes, perfumes, metals, chemicals used in industry; foods such as eggs, milk, nuts, wheat, fish; drugs, antibiotics and hormones, serums; the sting of wasps and bees; and many others.

Some people are so sensitive to the slightest change in temperature that they are very uncomfortable in a room where many others are perfectly content. For many allergy sufferers, the insignificant-seeming act of thrusting their feet out from under the cover when they get up in the morning will bring on a violent attack, usually prolonged sneezing.

The ratio of adult and children allergy victims is almost evenly divided, the specialist pointed out, adding that the youngsters perhaps have a tiny majority. But, he continued, an allergy-prone person will practically always exhibit symptoms of his malady in the first decade of his life.

Allergies are not inherited directly as such, but the tendency to develop an allergy is. If one or both parents have an allergy, the chances are greatly multiplied that the child will also.

Very rarely is an allergic person just sensitive to one substance. Usually he has one particular material that affects him a great deal, then a multitude of almost-insignificant allergens.

Studies have revealed that a person must first be exposed to an allergen to develop a sensitivity to it. The first exposure produces the sensitization, and the second or third exposure results in a reaction. Sometimes it seems that an individual reacts upon a first exposure, but doctors agree that there must have been either an unrecognized exposure to the sbustance, or something closely related to it.

FBI, Deputies In Close Chase Of Bank Agents

COUNCE, Tenn. (AP)—A posse of FBI agents and sheriff's deputies from two states were in close pursuit Saturday of two men who robbed a branch bank here of $5,000.

The posse was believed to have two suspects cornered in a rugged area about six miles south of here along the Tennessee - Mississippi border.

Sheriff F. C. Wilbanks of nearby Corinth, Miss., said, "We expect to nab the robbers any minute now." A helicopter and a bloodhound were called in to the search.

The search narrowed when a farmer reported seeing two men abandon a car and run into the woods. The manhunt began minutes after two men robbed the Counce branch of the Citizens Bank of Savannah Friday.

Mrs. Jane Sharp, a teller who was alone in the bank at the time, said the men forced her at gunpoint to fill a paper bag with cash.

RAYMOND J. LABORDE

Laborde Seeks Voting Machines Custodian Post

Raymond J. Laborde, who has served as mayor of Marksville the past five years, Saturday announced as a candidate for the office of State custodian of votnig machines subject to the December 7th Democratic primary.

Born and reared in Marksville, Laborde, 36, graduated from Loyola University of the South in 1949.

He is immediate past president of the Louisiana Municipal Association, and a past president of the Central Louisiana Mayors' Association. In 1962, he was selected as the "outstanding young man of the year" by the Marksville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He is married to the former Nell Sanchez of Avondale, La., and they have five children. He has owned and operated a dry-goods store in Marksville the past 14 years.

Laborde in his announcement stated:

"With my experience as a businessman as well as a public official, I believe that I have the background and knowledge to match my desire to provide efficient, honest administration of the office of state custodian of voting machines.

"I feel this office, under positive and aggressive leadership, can contribute materially to building a better image of Louisiana and, working in harmony with other facets of our state government, can play an important role in helping to build a better future for our state and our people.

"It is with a sense of humility that I ask for your consideration of my candidacy. But it is also with an abiding faith in the future of our state and with sincere confidence in my ability to render a service to you that I solicit your vote and support."

King Saud, Harem Plan Return Home

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia, his 50 limousines and the scores of princes and harem girls in his party will return home Monday after a three-month stay in Austria. Austrian officials said Saturday.

SPEAKS IN MONROE

Walker In Favor Of Free Electors

Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker Saturday said he favors the independent electors movement in Louisiana and other states "as a means and method to get our electoral system back in the hands of the people and to stop this no-choice system."

Walker, who was arrested at Oxford, Miss., during the University of Mississippi integration crisis, appeared at Nevlle auditorum Saturday night following a morning press conference at the Virginia Hotel.

His appearance here was sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Citizens Council.

Asked to name the man he though would make the best president, he mentioned Sen. Strom Thurmond, whom he called, "the greatest patriot in the senate."

He indicated he thought that neither the Democratic Party nor the Republican Party would field a candidate in the coming election that would not be controlled by "the Kennedy - Rockefeller party machinery which controls the Democrats and the Republicans as a single machine."

He said the chance rests with the people "to show right now and the next three months that they recognize that the Democratic - Republican conspiracy" which he said is evident under present party control and management.

Foreign policy — "Cuba is lost. South Viet Nam is lost. Mr. Harold E. Stassen has recommended a neutral zone of a part of Alaska and a part of Siberia to be placed under UN control. This is another UN plan. It should work for Florida and Cuba as well.

"Castro has been authorized to pick fifty per cent of the refugees entering the United States from Cuba. One per cent, over four thousand have originated out of European countries under communist influence according to testimony of Mr. Schwartz and Phelan of the State Department before a congressional committee."

The military — "The Joint Chiefs of Staff are being strong-armed, intimidated and denied the knowledge of combined UN-State Department plans. For the first time in history the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Maxwell D. Taylor, is a political appointee. Admiral Anderson has been muzzled by a transfer to Portugal.

The test ban treaty — "Continued moves to accommodate the Soviet in a test ban agreement are coordinated with disarmament and elimination of overseas air bases, and with the Gesell Report which destroys discipline, destroys command structure and further prepares military commands for UN control. Signing the test ban agreement in effect, brings us inevitably closer to war by invitation, or closer to the Soviet alternative on their terms — a "take over."

Race — "race relation offices are now established on military bases; headed by a field grade officer.

"The office is not under the local commander. It deals with complaints and works directly with Mr. Fitt of the Defense Department, Washington, D. C. Communications are privileged and denied the commander and the normal chain of command procedure. Military discipline is no longer possible. The commissar - informer system, under Adam Yarmolinsky, has taken precedence."

Walker charged that the Defense Department has directed all commanders and commands that no soldier "would discuss the case of the soldier turncoat recently returned from China; that no soldier would discuss any subject of a controversial nature; that no soldier would answer any queries about the 'Army Special Working Group', ASWG."

In duscussing the test ban proposal now before the Senate, Walker said that, "Treason is bipartisan."

He said, "The Senate could claim it has been black-mailed into abdicating its constitutional functions, which is certainly no defense."

Walker charged further that the U. S. State Department has a "sweetheart coalition with Moscow" and that the military "has control of no plans for our security or our defense worthy of the name."

AIA To Exhibit Area Building Projects Here

An exhibition of outstanding Monroe area building projects, climaxed by an awards presentation based on excellency in architecture, is scheduled for Sept. 16 through 26.

The projects will be judged at the art center on Sept. 21, at 10:30 a.m., by Murff O'Neal Jr., executive secretary of Gulf States Region A. I. U.N. To Focus On Next Step

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly session starting Tuesday will focus on the next step to follow the limited nuclear test ban treaty, give a forum to President Kennedy and provide the occasion for further Big Three talks.

The 111-nation assembly will convene at 3 p.m. for its 18th annual session which is planned to close Dec. 20. Venezuelan chief Delegate Carlos Sosa-Rodriguez is unopposed for election as its president.

Kennedy, who first addressed the assembly in 1961, will address it again Friday. U.S. sources said he would "emphasize the U.S. interest in the United Nations by his presence here" and "give strong support to the policies that we have been pursuing here at the United Nations."

Kennedy himself said at his news conference Thursday that he would stress the development of the United Nations as an instrument for strengthening peace and international cooperation.

He is expected to fly up from Washington Friday morning, speak around 11:30 a.m., have lunch in New York and then fly on to Newport, R.I., for the weekend.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko will be in his U.N. audience. But Kennedy has said he expects to confer with Gromyko in Washington, rather than here.

Gromyko will arrive in New York by special Ilyushin 18 jet plane at around 6 p.m. today. He is coming over as chairman of the Soviet delegation. But while in New York, he will have talks with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

The talks will concern further agreements to follow the limited treaty banning nuclear weapon tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space. Indications are that proposals for preventing surprise attack, an East-West nonaggression pact and a settlement on Berlin and Germany will be brought up.

The three ministers conferred in Moscow on Aug. 6, the day after they signed the test ban treaty there, and agreed at that time to get together again when they came to the General Assembly.

Their reunion cannot take place before the week after next, because Rusk will not arrive for the assembly till Sept. 22 and Home will not arrive till Sept. 25.

The assembly will adopt its agenda, run through a few weeks' general policy debate and then plunge into committee discussions of particular subjects.

Eighty-one subjects already have been proposed for the agenda, compared with 89 a year ago. The assembly undoubtedly will welcome the test ban treaty and call on the big powers to build further agreements on it.

Neville Slates Back-To-School Night Tuesday

Annual Back - To - School Night at Neville High School will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m., Principal Sidney Seegers announced.

A general assembly of approximately 30 minutes will open the program, followed by short class schedules, during which students will be accompanied by their parents to each regularly scheduled class.

Student Body President Steve Huffman will preside over the assembly program, including welcomes from Seegers, City School Supt. Van D Odom and School Board President J. H. Scogin.

The school band also will perform.

"Through this first occasion this school year, teachers hope to establish an initial contact with the parents of our new students and to welcome back the parents of our returning students," Seegers explained.

The event will be open to the public.

Sen. Mansfield Hopeful Toward Early Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., expressed hope Saturday that the Senate will be able to take up a tax-cut bill this year but said it will not be before the civil rights bill.

Passage of both measures at this session of Congress has been strongly urged by President Kennedy, but Mansfield avoided predicting what their fate will be in the Senate.

The House Ways and Means Committee has approved an $11-billion tax reduction and revision measure that is scheduled to be taken up in the House on Sept. 24.

The administration's civil rights program is expected to be acted on by the House sometime next month, although the House Judiciary Committee has not yet completed work on it.

Mansfield said he intends to intercept whatever civil rights bill the House passes and put it on the Senate calendar without sending it to committee and then call it up for debate as soon as possible.

The measure is bound to run into a lengthy filibuster by Southern opponents, clouding the outlook for the tax bill.

Mansfield said that if the Senate can act on the tax measure this year, it probably will be the last bill brought up.

Interviewed by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., on a program taped for a Denver television station, Masfield said he has been told by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, that the tax bill would "take at least two months of hearings."

Area Robbery Suspects Held In Vidalia Jail

VIDALIA (Special) — Two suspects Saturday were being held in the Concordia Parish jail here pending investigation of a reported robbery Friday night near Lake St. John.

The suspects, identified as Roma Lee Fields, 35, of Ferriday, and William (Red) Ponder, 41, of Tallulah, were apprehended at a Ferriday service station approximately one hour after the alleged robbery by city law enforcement officers, Carl Rials and J. B. Myrick.

The Ferriday authorities had been alerted by parish deputies who received a complaint from Lonnie Mason, 40, stating that he had been robbed of approximately $92 around 7 p.m. The investigation is continuing.

He obtained his elementary education in the public schools of Madison Parish, and is a graduate of Darlington School, Rome, Georgia. In 1942, he entered Louisiana State University and graduated in 1950 with an LLB degree.

His college education was interrupted by a three year tour of duty in the United States Navy, during World War II. He now holds the rank of Captain in the United States Air Force Reserve. Since his graduation from law school he has been an active member of the law firm of Sevier, Yerger and Sevier, of Tallulah, Louisiana.

Sevier is a member of and is now serving as an Elder in the Tallulah Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the American Legion, and has served as president of the Madison Parish Chamber of Commerce, and the Tallulah Rotary Club.

Sevier made the following statement of his candidacy:

"I am seeking this important office, knowing that I am fully qualified to fill same, and at the request of many of my friends throughout the District.

"My experience as a practicing attorney for thirteen years has furnished me with an insight into the problems and needs of this area.

"While attending Louisiana State University Law School, I had the privilege of working in the office of the attorney general, in Baton Rouge, which afforded me great opportunities to study and know the functions of the various branches of our state government.

"It is my earnest desire to serve this district as senator and I pledge my wholehearted support to the progressive development of this "Delta country.

"I plan to make a vigorous campaign to this most important office, and look forward to the privilege of meeting the citizens of this district.

"Personally, I believe in States rights, and if elected will diligently work to reacquire these rights and maintain same. I will constantly strive to prove worthy of the confidence of the electorate."

Madame Nhu Tearfully Decries U.S. Aid Cutoff Possibility, Challenges U.N.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Tearfully deploring the possibility of a U.S. aid cutoff to South Viet Nam, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu challenged the United Nations Saturday to make an on-the-spot inspection of the crisis-riddled nation run by her brother-in-law.

"Viet Nam has nothing to hide," she told a news conference. "On the contrary, it is in the interest of Viet Nam to show."

She said, however, she doubted the U.N. membership ever would approve an inquiry into the Buddhist religious crisis in South Viet Nam. She said the investigation would set a precedent and violate the principle of noninterference in another nation's internal affairs.

"Many countries have not such a good cause as Viet Nam," she said, "and if they accept establishment of such a precedent it would turn against them in the future."

This was the Vietnamese First Lady's reply to a question raised here Friday at the 61-nation Interparliamentary Union conference by a delegate from Buddhist Ceylon, Maithripala Senanayake. He asked if South Viet Nam would permit a U.N. inquiry.

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant told a news conference in New York Thursday the situation in South Viet Nam was chaotic. He charged the government was operating only through use of force.

Mrs. Nhu, a delegate to the conference here, summoned newsmen to her hotel to present another defense of the government of Prsident Ngo Dinh Diem and of President Ngo Dinh Diem and to reply to the Ceylonese delegate's question about the U.N. investigation.

She answered questions for 40 newsmen for 90 minutes.

Tears glistened in her eyes when reporters asked about reports that the United States might cut off aid to Viet Nam, engaged in a war against Communist guerrilas as well as in the Buddhist struggle.

Looking at reporters from U.S. news organizations, she said "You have no right to drop it (aid). You will lose the confidence of the world."

Rep. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has introduced a resolution in Washington calling for a cutoff of U.S. aid to Viet Nam unless the government there ended what he called "policies of repression."

President Kennedy has said U.S. policy in South Viet Nam is to continue aid in order to defeat the Viet Cong, Communist guerrillas waging jungle warfare.

Said Mrs. Nhu "If the United States does not understand that victory is at hand now and drops the aid, by doing so the United States will seal its own fate.

"There is no excuse. Victory is there. The countryside is in our hands. Viet Nam is so near victory."

For the United States to cut aid to South Vietnamese forces would mean gains for the Communists in the world and in the United States itself, she asserted.

In other parts of the news conference, Mrs. Nhu charged that the press, chiefly the American press, was unfair in its coverage of the South Viet Nam crisis. She also claimed she had nohting to do with the operation of Diem's Regime.

Madame Nhu Tearfully Decries U.S. Aid Cutoff Possibility, Challenges U.N.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Tearfully deploring the possibility of a U.S. aid cutoff to South Viet Nam, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu challenged the United Nations Saturday to make an on-the-spot inspection of the crisis-riddled nation run by her brother-in-law.

"Viet Nam has nothing to hide," she told a news conference. "On the contrary, it is in the interest of Viet Nam to show."

She said, however, she doubted the U.N. membership ever would approve an inquiry into the Buddhist religious crisis in South Viet Nam. She said the investgation would set a precedent and violate the principle of noninterference in another nation's internal affairs.

PLANK ROAD in heart of business district is scheduled for restoration, as part of project which will transform St. Joseph into a pre-Civil War riverboat town. Staff photos by Mary Anne Corpin.

St. Joseph, Louisiana is transforming itself back into a Mississippi Riverboat town of the pre-Civil War era. Officials forecast the restoration will make the town one of the major tourist attractions in the South.

Steamboats once tied up at the edge of the town's main street, to take on cotton and farm produce for transportation down the Mississippi to New Orleans.

Several homes and buildings more than 100 years old still stand in good condition, forming a keystone for the restoration.

WORK STARTED

Work already has begun on the "pilot project" involving six stores.

It should be complete within the next month, according to Thompson L. Clarke, president of the 60-member St. Joseph Area Development Association.

Full restoration of some 35 business and public buildings will take an estimated three to five years.

The population of approximately 2,000 took on the ambitious project, at individual expense, to boost the economy. Stores, which once thrived on purchases by several thousand Negro plantation workers, have been hard hit by farm mechanization.

Not more than 30 Negro workers now live on the plantations surrounding the township.

Once the restoration is completed, tourist attraction plans call for daily skirmishes between Union and Confederate troops, old South balls at the ante - bellum Wavertree plantation and a tie - in with the annual Natchez, Miss. Pilgrimage.

Inducements to the tourist trade already are located within a few miles of St. Joseph.

Just north of town, Lake Bruin State Park is drawing 125,000 visitors during the three - month summer season alone.

LINE OF MARCH

Gen. U. S. Grant's line of march, recently marked by the Louisiana Centennial Commission, extends from Lake Providence to Hard Times three miles above St. Joseph.

The St. Joseph ferry crosses the Mississippi River to Port Gibson, connecting Grant's March with the historic Natchez Trace.

Restoration of the town will dovetail with all of this.

Mayor O. N. (Newt) Wilds admits, "It's a big project, when you change the appearance of a town. It's going to take a lot of hard work — but it is really going to improve the looks."

ARCHITECT'S PLANS

Complete plans and specifications, drawn up free-of-charge by Monroe architect B. G. Wardlaw, are being followed.

Buildings involved are on Plank Road, which connects with north-south U. S. Highway 65, and Levee Street, next to the Mississippi River.

Covered brick sidewalks, plank store fronts, old-time interiors and gaslight type street lights will be the rule.

Even gas stations will become "livery stables" with pumps underground and buggies tied up for local color.

Store names will be given full treatment. "Apothecary" will replace "drug store", and "emporiums" will contain dry goods.

PHOTOS GUIDE

Photos of the town, taken between 1850 and 1900, have been collected to use as guideposts in making the restoration as authentic as possible.

One of the establishments won't require much work. "If you'd go into that saloon right now, you would swear it was 1860. They won't have to do a thing to it," quipped Mayor Wilds.

St. Joseph is located just off recently rebuilt U. S. 65, a major link between the Mid-West and New Orleans.

Louisiana's Highway Department has agreed to improve the intersection where U. S. 65 connects to Plank Road, to make it easy for traffic to turn off.

COTTON PATCH

"We're going to plant a cotton patch at the intersection, as an eye - catcher," officials reveal.

"Yankee tourists will be able to stop and pick cotton. We're also going to have a Hospitality Booth at the intersection, with some of our prettiest girls on duty."

The State Forestry Commission is going to supply trees and shrubs, to be planted along the highway right - of - way from the intersection into town.

Land owners will replace barbed wire with white painted wooden fences.

An overall landscaping plan suggests that each property owner plant bushes or flowers to provide some type flower in bloom all year round. The levee, which protects the town from flooding by the Mississippi, will be planted in a solid bank of flowers.

In town, the Tensas Parish Police Jury is restoring the Courthouse and Library.

The Courthouse has been sandblasted on the outside.

"I'll bet this is the only courthouse in the state with a chandelier in the main lobby, and a carpet and draperies in the courtroom," commented one resident.

E. R. McDonald Sr., of Newellton, president of the police jury, said the parish also has plans for sandblasting the library.

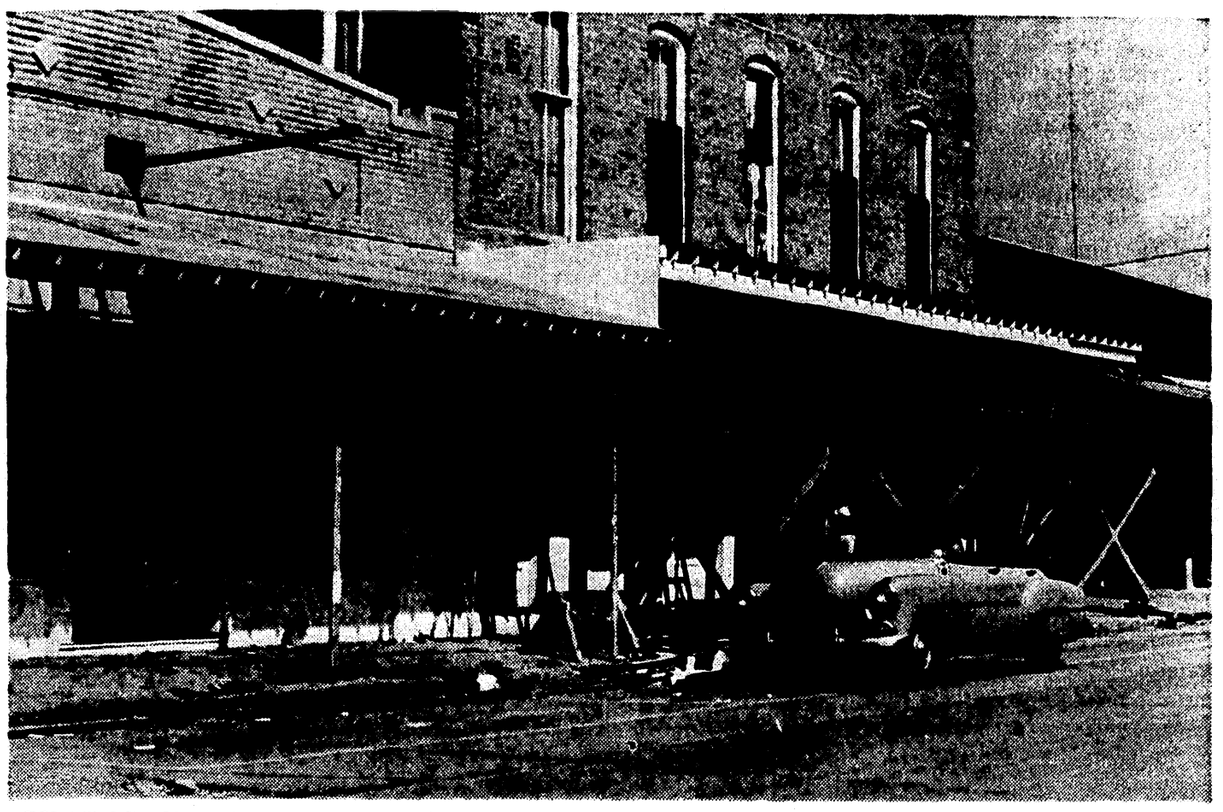
Built in the 1850's, the library on Plank Road was once a home, and as such is the oldest residence still standing in St. Joseph.

Museums, one containing historical documents on the second floor of the library, and another holding farm equipment and furnishings of the 19th century, are planned.

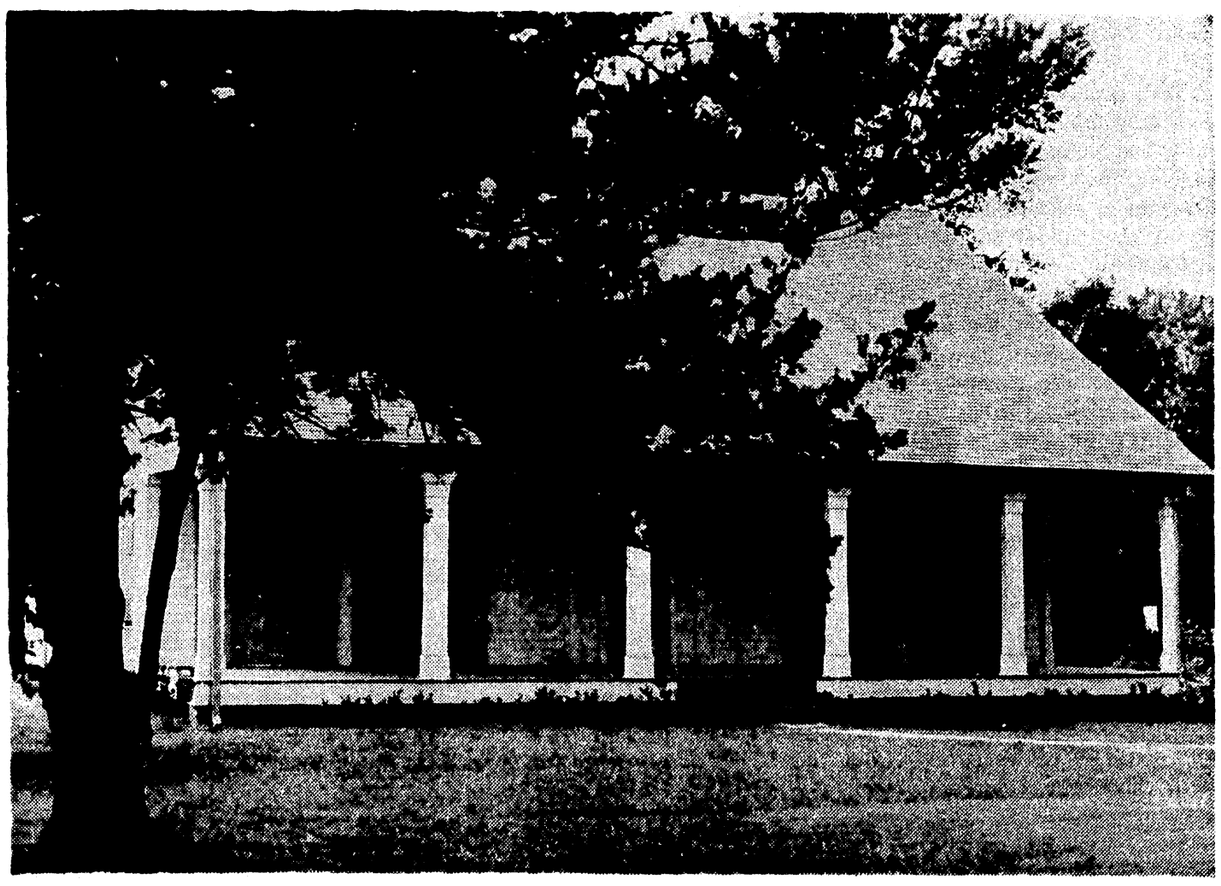
Daily skirmishes between "troops" of the famed Tensas Rifles and Tensas Cavalry of the Confederacy and Gen. U. S. Grant's federal forces are planned, once the restoration is complete.

National interest is being shown in the project. Aldermen Robert James Lancaster, R. O. Terral, Owen McBride, Glenn McIntosh and S. H. Woods, as well as Mayor Wilds and Clark, have been contacted.

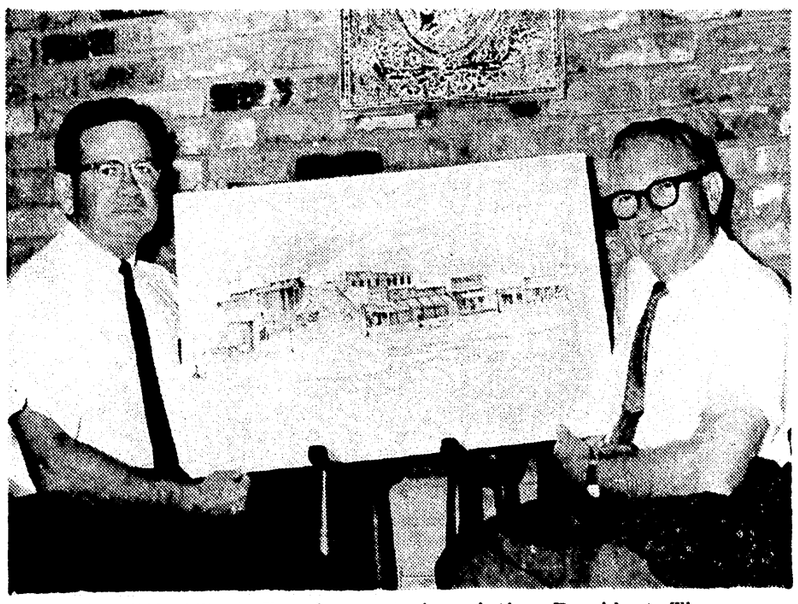
Louisiana Municipal Association public relations director Claude Morgan, informed public officials that a national TV network and two magazines want to learn more of the restoration, as possible material for publication.



PILOT PROJECT is underway on six storefronts along Plank Road. Sidewalks are getting overhead canopy, walks will be bricked, and stores themselves will be painted in authentic colors in use a century ago.



CAPTAIN BONDURANT House, now the Episcopal manse, was built on Mississippi River bank before Civil War. After the war, when the riverbank began to cave in, owners took the top story off the house and moved it into town. The River took what was left. House is typical of many century-old houses still in good condition in St. Joseph.



ST. JOSEPH AREA Development Association President Thompson L. Clarke, left, and Mayor O. N. (Newt) Wilds, hold architect's conception of restored business district.

BUILT IN 1850's, Tensas Parish Library building once was a residence. Outside restoration and museum on second floor are planned.

TENSAS PARISH COURTHOUSE is being restored to better-than-new condition by Police Jury. Exterior has been sandblasted. Offices are paneled, courtroom has carpet and drapes.

Voter Registration Urged

Louisiana, under a proclamation issued by Governor Jimmie Davis, has concluded a period known as "Registration Reminder Week" The period was of major importance because of the vital urgency that everyone who is otherwise qualified to vote should carry out the requirement of registering with the parish registrar of voters. For those who are not registered and did not register during that time, the need for registering is still great.

Within the year to come the people of Louisiana, as well as those in other states, will face one of the greatest voting periods in history. Louisiana voters will cast ballots for candidates all the way from the presidency down to the lowest parish and ward offices. There will be many city elections, local elections and special elections. All members of the United States house of representatives must seek re-election.

Now that "Registration Reminder Week" has ended, a statement by the governor, in which he pointed out that the individual freedom of the citzens of the United States is threatened, is as true now as it was when issued.

Urging "every adult citizen who believes in constitutional government to register or at least make definite plans to register, to exercise the priceless American privilege of voting," Governor Davis said in part:

"Our nation, our state and even our individual citizens are under increasing pressures these days by those who would replace government 'by the people' with centralized socialistic control.

"Our greatest weapon against such creeping tyranny is still the individual vote, cast for those in every contest who will fight for government conceived by the writers of the United States Constitution."

Even the person who is not sure he wants to vote in any of the upcoming elections should register. Registration does not compel a person to vote but it does give him an opportunity to do so — a choice when the time comes. Those who do not register in time will not be able to vote, even though they might decide at the last monent that they would like to.

In the race for governor which has already begun in Louisiana, there are many candidates. At least five or six of them may be designated as strong candidates. At this time, it would take a magician or a seer to be able to tell which two of these men will enter the runoff election after the first primary or which of the two will emerge as the final victor. Anyone who cares about the future of his state should be interested enough to do his part in determining who the new chief executive will be. Anyone who thinks he doesn't know enough about the candidates to make a decision is probably low-rating himself. He may know more than many others who will vote and if he doesn't he can inform himself on the men and the issues if he will take the trouble.

The Louisiana board of registration says there is little need to worry about passing the test required for registration and that the "chances are you can breeze through it. The questions are simple. Several possible answers are given and you just check one." Those capable of reading and who are informed enough to make a check mark after the question they believe to be right probably will have no difficulty.

For those who may have forgotten the civics they learned early in grammar school, the board of registration has prepared a brief brochure which outlines in simple language, and briefly, the information that will be needed in passing the test. If anyone should not be able to pass the test, he can inform himself and pass it later, just as many people do when they take driver license tests.

Most important of all the upcoming elections is that of the presidency. Many believe that on it hinge the issues of forced integration, of individual and business freedom and of possible total subjugation of the people by a dictatorship.

Regardless of how one may feel, he has a right to express himself at the polls — and he can do that only by registering and voting.

Faster Safe Speeds

Traffic experts learned long ago that both unusually fast and unusually slow speeds are major causes of accidents. Now some of them have concluded that the speed at which most people want to travel in any given place probably is the safest speed.

This is being reflected locally both in Monroe and West Monroe.

When the new Interstate 20 highway bridge across the Ouachita river was opened, several Monroe streets were changed to one-way, thus enabling automobiles to move along at an accelerated but still safe speed. This added considerably in relieving congested traffic.

In West Monroe, speed limit signs have been changed on Cypress street and probably will be changed soon on Seventh and Natchitoches streets. From the west end of the Louisville avenue bridge to Seventh street, the signs on Cypress street have been changed to show a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour instead of 25. From Seventh street to the city limits the maximum speed permitted has been raised from 35 to 45 miles an hour.

Cypress street is a part of the state highway system and is also a part of highway 80, which is a federal highway. New speed designations were made by the state department of safety. Natchitoches and Seventh street are also parts of the state highway system.

It was stated that the new speed limits seemed to be more in line with the speed at which most drivers want to travel. Since most drivers customarily travel at what they consider a safe speed, it was decided the movement of traffic could be facilitated and that possibly safety could be increased by providing a more realistic speed limit.

People who travel either eastward or westward out of Louisiana now find that they are permitted to increase their legal speed as soon as they cross the state line. Mississippi for some years has permitted a speed of 65 miles an hour on all highways not in congested areas. In Texas, a maximum speed of 70 miles and hour in the daytime and 65 miles and hour at night, as compared to former limits of 60 and 55, on two-lane as well as four-lane highways, recently went into effect. Louisiana has a maximum speed limit of 65 miles an hour on four-lane highways and 60 on two-lane highways.

Speed in automobiles has always been more or less generally associated with recklessness and unsafe driving. This is natural enough in view of the fact that reckless and dangerous drivers so often speed past others. It is well known that an even flow of spaced traffic on good highways is not particulary dangerous at 70 miles an hour and some states, on freeways, permit even highway speeds without a noticeable increase in accidents.

Good highways and good automobiles now make 70-mile speeds safer than were 35-mile speeds when brakes, automobile construction and highways were poorer.

Test Ban Treaty

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

Is the ratification of the test ban treaty really significant to the Communist Russians? I cannot believe that Khrushchev is anxiously awaiting the verdict from the United States Senate. Not one person on our side can say with conviction the reasoning behind the turnabout displayed by the Communists in signing this treaty. We do know for sure he has accomplished this: sown seeds of dissension between the military leaders and civilian leaders of the Defense Department; between the President and Senators of the opposition; between experts in specific fields and people of the aforementioned and the American people at large.

If the treaty was designed to produce discord in the government, it has certainly accomplished that purpose. Is this another way Khrushchev has of spitting in the face of the Red Chinese? Faced with a slowly-dying economy and a growing demand for more civilian goods and services by his own people, is this a "that in the door" phase for American help? Is he honestly trying to take the pounding shoe incident and tuck it away with a purpose in mind to slowly and peacefully guide a slowdown in the arms race which is costing too much? Is is a camouflage to divert attention from some undercover project? Any way one looks at it, ratification is largely in favor of the Communists.

Surely the treaty will be ratified without any reservations. How many more wars will we have to fight to make the world safe for democracy and then lose all hard-earned gains through subsequent treaties? Not only will the U. S. ratify, but we will lend non-strategic war materials aid to bolster their economy. Keep this in mind, any substance that can be used to sustain human life can be used by a war machine. Man hasn't yet built a self-sustaining combat machine. Ratification of the treaty will not give the present administration anything to crow about during the upcoming election campaign. There is absolutely too much at stake for quick ratification for which there is such a frantic push. It is hard to reconcile negotiation in our favor while we are dying in South Viet Nam, on the truce line in Korea, and Castro grows in strength.

Visualize these headlines: KHRUSHCHEV'S ULTIMATUM: SURRENDER OR DIE "While the free world was busily engaged in measures to insure the Test Ban Treaty of 1963 was being upheld, the Communist Russians, with the knowledge gained from experiments with high yield detonations in the atmosphere conducted in 1962, successfully built and deployed scores of airborne missiles throughout Russia, China, Cuba, and South America. The words were taken off these defense weapons when the military and civilian leaders of France, Germany, England and the United States were guests of Khrushchev at high level meeting called by the Russians purportedly to discuss the 'first stages of world disarmament'.

All guests were seated outside at a luncheon when Khrushchev, who had been studiously keeping track of the time, calmly announced and pointing to the sky, said, 'Put on those glasses lying before you and watch.' He then began a countdown from ten and when zero was reached there was a flash high in the atmosphere, the brilliance of which was compared to many suns.

"Gentlemen, you have just witnessed the destruction of a missile fired from Cuba 26 minutes and 14 seconds ago." were the words of his interpreter.

Our leaders and those who support his views say ratification is a gamble. A gamble? It is if one considers playing Communist Russian Roulette with an automatic pistol where the players opposite the Communist puts it to his head and makes the first trigger pull.

Time To Beware

Girard, La.

To the Editor:

Times like these every person is challenged to meet a situation that has to be met and disposed of either for or against the propositions submitted. Only action on the individuals part counts. This is politically referred, alluded, to and catagoried, by the politicians as "GRASS ROOTS". It is through this system we have reached our dilemma. Which is the point of where the world turns. And to turn any other way from the way it is we have to reverse our marches for freedom to do what the objectives of these marching gangs have as a goal for their biased, prejudices, gains. I have gotten through the mails this week application blanks for membership by donations, to three different named organizations from New York city, national and international headquarters for most of these subversive organizations. Names of organizers, managers, directors, all prominently displayed on applications, for prestige. Many of these names are prominent in the headlines, and also show on the communist headlines as on the secret documents, on file, contain. Now every individual, is to decide from the point of where we are, and realize the election of a governor, or any other officer will either add to, or retard these dedicated, subtle schemes by our enemies. It is a sad state of affairs that the White House is host for such-un-American, un - Godly, unscrupulous demogogue leadership. Still Wondering

To the Editor:

I am still wondering if there was an agreement that if Krushchev would remove the missiles from Cuba just prior to the 1962 congressional election to help the President get more liberals elected that the President after the election would not interfere in the affairs of Cuba but would see to it that the Cuban refugees or other Latin Americans nations would not interfere. I also wonder if this same performance will be repeated in the 1964 presidential election. After the President's promise to the Cuban refugees while holding the Cuban flag assured them that he would hand back the flag in a free Havana, not only did they not get any help from the government but were harassed in every try they made to go back and fight for the freedom of their country.

We should consider the foreign and domestic policy of the Kennedy administration from the Bay of Pigs invasion, the test ban treaty, the foreign aid spending, the civil rights bill and to declare off limits to service men any business that does not agree with his idea on civil rights.

The President has said "Think not what your country can do for you but what you can do for your country, I am thinking the best thing we can do for our country is to give the Kennedy administration his in-laws and advisors a one-way ticket out of the White House in the 1964 presidential election, and from what I read and hear there are more people that are thinking as I do.

For a few years when much younger I attended Massanutten Academy, at Woodstock, a charming and historic town in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

Woodstock's greatest tradition was the story of the Reverend Peter Muhlenberg. One Sunday just as this country was entering the Revolutionary War he preached a stirring sermon on American patriotism, at the conclusion of which, with the words "There's a time to pray, and a time to fight, and the time to fight has come," he threw back his robes to reveal himself in the uniform of an officer of General Washington's Continental Army. His uniform, let it be noted, was not that of a chaplain, but of a fighting officer of the line.

Peter Muhlenberg that Sunday enlisted many of his parishioners in the Eighth Virginia Regiment, which re organized and of which he became colonel, and which served with honor and distinction and effectiveness throughout the war.

Here of late it is becoming clear that the man in the White House has been losing his temper rather consistently, more especially as some of the Southern Governors remind him of his record in breaking the Constitution, that one thing the American People try to hang onto as our last vestige of all our forefathers have done to establish a republic in this country, called, "The Land of the Free". That he is guilty can be seen by anyone who reads those old documents of an era when led to more freedom, more honesty, more respectability and more Americanism. A word Washington is trying to replace than has ever before been accomplished throughout the centuries.

Kennedy's terrible temper was directed at Governor Ross Barnett last year, and, along with his little brother, they proceeded to spend over four millions of the taxpayer's money to push through one of their ideas. Now, for several months they have been crucifying another Southern Governor this time Governor Wallace of Alabama. Strange, this type of Federal Force, pushing students into forced association, all because of an act several years ago by a group who took the law into their own hands, passed a thing, which they, and those in the saddle in Washington called, "The Law of The Land," but which according to the greatest minds in the legal profession term is not true, as any court decision is only "The Law of The Case."

The Kennedy temper also flared a few days ago out at his opposition, the Republicans. He accused them of doing some things which were not nice, and he was represented as being very angry. Odd, how he can get angry so easily. These tantrums remind me of a small boy. I wrote several senators on the act of seating his brother Bobby, telling them that Bobby's actions, while connected with the McClellen Committee were those of a little boy, who, when the play didn't suit him, picked up his marbles and went home. Such juvenile acts do not belong in the venerable halls of Justice. Odd too, why almost all of the terrible anger of this pair is directed at Americans, some of whom are as loyal to this country as they can possibly be.

As for the truth of their acts and statements, there is, and has been for many years, about thirty in all, a sort of fad in the White House, to use a good bit of pressure on all connected to get passage of certain pet acts and deals. When a timid Congress fails to pass one of these, there is a scene put on for the benefit of the Press. As for this anger, if the man in the White House, the one in the Justice Department, AND several others in the know, could be induced to point it at Cuba, Russia and some other ENEMIES we the people, who are paying the bill, could sleep better.

Migration Of Negroes

To the Editor:

I feel that my opinion, which follows, on the mass Negro migration to Washington, may be of some interest to the public.

To begin with, I feel that "The March" and other such demonstrations are an attempt by integrationist leaders, both black and white, to bring about a form of mass hypnosis — of sympathy — to arouse the latent American tradition of helping the underdog.

To help clarify this idea, I shall refer the reader to Aristotle who, in effect, stated over 3,000 years ago that:

If the majority of the people were sick or mad and the few were sane and well, then the consensus of opinion would be that the majority were sane and the few sick or mad, for the consensus would come from the majority who, in reality, were sick or mad.

I believe this is the basis on which mass movements and demonstrations are founded.

I advocate the white people making a stand for their constitutional and civil "rights" in the name of decency through the rebirth of such organizations as the Citizens Councils, the Ku Klux Klan, the Vigilantes and like groups.

The federal government defends the brick-throwing Negro mobs — if, in the melee, the white man is defenseless he has only himself to blame.

It is now becoming evident in every state that the New Frontier has no intention of allowing any state to conduct its own affairs. What cannot be accomplished by the passage of unconstitutional laws is accomplished by executive order. In their latest crisis, they have created a Frankenstein and are going to any lengths to keep it from destroying them.

The Kennedy Administration (as well as some liberal Republicans) tries to bypass the constitutional provision of States' Rights with the argument that States' Rights have corresponding States' Responsiblities and if the states fail to act, it is the duty of the federal government to intervene. Senator Barry M. Goldwater in his books "The Conscience of a Conservative" says on p. 29 "The trouble with this argument is that it treats the Constitution of the U. S. as a kind of handbook in political theory, to be heeded or ignored depending on how it fits the plan of contemporary federal officials. The 10th Amendment is not 'a general assumption', but a prohibitory rule of law. States' Rights means that the States have a right to act or not to act, as they see fit. The states may have duties corresponding to these rights but the duties are owed to the people of the states, not the federal government."

The senator believes that the authority and responsibility of the federal government in the field of civil rights are quite limited simply because the term civil right means a right protected by a valid law. In the chapter on civil rights, Barry Goldwater says "I am not prepared to impose my judgement on the people of Mississippi or South Carolina or tell them what methods should be adopted. That is their business, not mine. The problem of race relations is best handled by the people directly concerned. Social and cultural change should not be effected by the engines of national power."

Senator Barry Goldwater is one of our country's most outstanding statesmen. He has repeatedly spoken out against the federal tyranny and executive dictatorship coming from Washington. He is now under heavy criticism from the fatcats in the northeast because he refuses to put an emotional minority bloc ahead of Constitutional government and States' Rights.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

PRESIDENT KENNEDY had some strong, harsh words for the House of Representatives — and particularly the Republican members — following the action of that body in sharply reducing his foreign aid money request.

Among other things, the President had this to say:

"I recall during eight years in the Senate, from 1953 to 1960, consistently supporting the requests which General Eisenhower made as President of the United States."

An examination of the Congressional Record, however, indicates that President Kennedy had some sharp reservations about foreign aid money during the so-called "Eisenhower years."

On July 29, 1953, Senator Kennedy voted to cut the Mutual Security Appropriation Act by $50 million.

On Aug. 3, 1954, Senator Kennedy voted with the majority to pass the Long Amendment to the Mutual Security Act of 1954. The effect of Senator Kennedy's vote was to cut the foreign aid authorization by half a billion dollars.

ON JULY 22, 1955 — not one year later — Senator Kennedy voted against restoring a $420-million cut in the Mutual Security Act appropriations made by the House of Representatives.

On June 14, 1957, Senator Kennedy voted for an amendment reducing Mutual Security Act appropriations for the fiscal year 1958 by some $90 million.

On June 5, 1958, Senator Kennedy remained consistent by voting for passage of the Ellender Amendment to the Mutual Security Act of 1958. The effect of that vote was to cut the foreign military assistance authorization by $200 million.

In his Senate votes, Senator Kennedy's performance followed closely the pattern which he established for himself in the House of Representatives. And in this connection it might be enlightening to quote from one of the speeches the President made on this subject when he was a member of the house.

On Aug. 15, 1951, Representative Kennedy took the floor to make a plea for his amendment to cut the foreign aid program by $35 million.

Here is what he said:

"I CANNOT BELIEVE that we are going to spend this money merely to set an example to these countries, some of which are ruled by an oligarchy, which they might follow in the future themselves. I believe in military assistance in this area, and that is a good thing, but I do not think that we can afford in this country to raise the standard of living of all the people all over the globe who might be subject to the lure of communism because of a low standard of living . . .

"I say it is impossible for us to think of raising the standard of living of all the low - standard countries of the world. I believe the funds provided in Section 203 can well be cut by the amount in my amendment. The cuts can be applied proportionately to the programs affected.

"Therefore, I ask that the House accept the cut from $175 million to $140 million."

I suggest the President had a better grasp of the realities of foreign aid while he was serving in the House of Representatives than he appears to have today. It certainly is just as impossible to think of raising the standard of living of all the low - standard countries today as it was back in 1951.

The mere fact that it is President Kennedy making the request for funds rather than Harry Truman or Dwight Eisenhower doesn't alter the situation one whit — except possibly in the President's mind.

How do you stand, sir?

BENEFICIAL BYPRODUCE— Big break-through in desalinization program could develop at salt water conversion plant in Key West, Florida. Plant under construction will determine feasibility of using atomic energy to generate electricity while producing steam for converting sea water. Major goal of desalinization program, with pilot plants already in operation in Texas, California, New Mexico and South Dakota, is to reduce cost of removing salt from sea water. Sale of electricity, produced as byproduct to desalinization, would cut costs measurably and put water prices in reach of cities, farms and industries.

WALLACE EMBARRASSES MARYLAND—Prospect of Governor C. Wallace of Alabama entering its Presidential primary is embarrassing top Democrats in Maryland. Wallace admittedly has only minority support on the Free State, but the primary law is so written that it could be slanted toward him. If he enters he probably would be running against an uninstructed slate, always a weak vote-geter because it puts nobody against somebody. Some Democrats are asking Governor Tawes to call a special session of the legislature to abolish the Maryland Presidential primary.

NEW YORK CONSERVATIVES — A half dozen New York State Republican members of the House of Representatives are worried about the new Conservative party in that State, which has won independent status and a place on the ballot in November election. If the Conservative party nominates a slate of candidates the result could be the splitting of conservative vote and the election of Democrats. If, however, the new party endorses the Republican candidates as the New York Liberal party usually endorses Democratic candidates there are few expected change in the Democratic - Republican complexion of the Empire State Congressional delegation in 1964.

Voter Registration Urged

Louisiana, under a proclamation issued by Governor Jimmie Davis, has concluded a period known as "Registration Reminder Week" The period was of major importance because of the vital urgency that everyone who is otherwise qualified to vote should carry out the requirement of registering with the parish registrar of voters. For those who are not registered and did not register during that time, the need for registering is still great.

Within the year to come the people of Louisiana, as well as those in other states, will face one of the greatest voting periods in history. Louisiana voters will cast ballots for candidates all the way from the presidency down to the lowest parish and ward offices. There will be many city elections, local elections and special elections. All members of the United States house of representatives must seek re-election.

Now that "Registration Reminder Week" has ended, a statement by the governor, in which he pointed out that the individual freedom of the citzens of the United States is threatened, is as true now as it was when issued.

Urging "every adult citizen who believes in constitutional government to register or at least make definite plans to register, to exercise the priceless American privilege of voting," Governor Davis said in part:

"Our nation, our state and even our individual citizens are under increasing pressures these days by those who would replace government 'by the people' with centralized socialistic control.

"Our greatest weapon against such creeping tyranny is still the individual vote, cast for those in every contest who will fight for government conceived by the writers of the United States Constitution."

Even the person who is not sure he wants to vote in any of the upcoming elections should register. Registration does not compel a person to vote but it does give him an opportunity to do so — a choice when the time comes. Those who do not register in time will not be able to vote, even though they might decide at the last monent that they would like to.

In the race for governor which has already begun in Louisiana, there are many candidates. At least five or six of them may be designated as strong candidates. At this time, it would take a magician or a seer to be able to tell which two of these men will enter the runoff election after the first primary or which of the two will emerge as the final victor. Anyone who cares about the future of his state should be interested enough to do his part in determining who the new chief executive will be. Anyone who thinks he doesn't know enough about the candidates to make a decision is probably low-rating himself. He may know more than many others who will vote and if he doesn't he can inform himself on the men and the issues if he will take the trouble.

The Louisiana board of registration says there is little need to worry about passing the test required for registration and that the "chances are you can breeze through it. The questions are simple. Several possible answers are given and you just check one." Those capable of reading and who are informed enough to make a check mark after the question they believe to be right probably will have no difficulty.

For those who may have forgotten the civics they learned early in grammar school, the board of registration has prepared a brief brochure which outlines in simple language, and briefly, the information that will be needed in passing the test. If anyone should not be able to pass the test, he can inform himself and pass it later, just as many people do when they take driver license tests.

Most important of all the upcoming elections is that of the presidency. Many believe that on it hinge the issues of forced integration, of individual and business freedom and of possible total subjugation of the people by a dictatorship.

Regardless of how one may feel, he has a right to express himself at the polls — and he can do that only by registering and voting.

Faster Safe Speeds

Traffic experts learned long ago that both unusually fast and unusually slow speeds are major causes of accidents. Now some of them have concluded that the speed at which most people want to travel in any given place probably is the safest speed.

This is being reflected locally both in Monroe and West Monroe.

When the new Interstate 20 highway bridge across the Ouachita river was opened, several Monroe streets were changed to one-way, thus enabling automobiles to move along at an accelerated but still safe speed. This added considerably in relieving congested traffic.

In West Monroe, speed limit signs have been changed on Cypress street and probably will be changed soon on Seventh and Natchitoches streets. From the west end of the Louisville avenue bridge to Seventh street, the signs on Cypress street have been changed to show a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour instead of 25. From Seventh street to the city limits the maximum speed permitted has been raised from 35 to 45 miles an hour.

Cypress street is a part of the state highway system and is also a part of highway 80, which is a federal highway. New speed designations were made by the state department of safety. Natchitoches and Seventh street are also parts of the state highway system.

It was stated that the new speed limits seemed to be more in line with the speed at which most drivers want to travel. Since most drivers customarily travel at what they consider a safe speed, it was decided the movement of traffic could be facilitated and that possibly safety could be increased by providing a more realistic speed limit.

People who travel either eastward or westward out of Louisiana now find that they are permitted to increase their legal speed as soon as they cross the state line. Mississippi for some years has permitted a speed of 65 miles an hour on all highways not in congested areas. In Texas, a maximum speed of 70 miles and hour in the daytime and 65 miles and hour at night, as compared to former limits of 60 and 55, on two-lane as well as four-lane highways, recently went into effect. Louisiana has a maximum speed limit of 65 miles an hour on four-lane highways and 60 on two-lane highways.

Speed in automobiles has always been more or less generally associated with recklessness and unsafe driving. This is natural enough in view of the fact that reckless and dangerous drivers so often speed past others. It is well known that an even flow of spaced traffic on good highways is not particulary dangerous at 70 miles an hour and some states, on freeways, permit even highway speeds without a noticeable increase in accidents.

Good highways and good automobiles now make 70-mile speeds safer than were 35-mile speeds when brakes, automobile construction and highways were poorer.

Test Ban Treaty

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

Is the ratification of the test ban treaty really significant to the Communist Russians? I cannot believe that Khrushchev is anxiously awaiting the verdict from the United States Senate. Not one person on our side can say with conviction the reasoning behind the turnabout displayed by the Communists in signing this treaty. We do know for sure he has accomplished this: sown seeds of dissension between the military leaders and civilian leaders of the Defense Department; between the President and Senators of the opposition; between experts in specific fields; and among all the aforementioned and the American people at large.

If the treaty was designed to produce discord in the government, it has certainly accomplished that purpose. Is this another way Khrushchev has of spitting in the face of the Red Chinese? Faced with a slowly-dying economy and a growing demand for more civilian goods and services by his own people, is this a "hat in the door" phase for American help? Is he honestly trying to take the pounding shoe incident and tuck it away with a purpose in mind to slowly and peacefully guide a slowdown in the arms race which is costing too much? Is is a camouflage to divert attention from some undercover project? Any way one looks at it, ratification is largely in favor of the Communists.

Surely the treaty will be ratified without any reservations. How many more wars will we have to fight to make the world safe for democracy and then lose all hard-earned gains through subsequent treaties? Not only will the U. S. ratify, but we will lend non-strategic war materials aid to bolster their economy. Keep this in mind, any substance that can be used to sustain human life can be used by a war machine. Man hasn't yet built a self-sustaining combat machine. Ratification of the treaty will not give the present administration anything to crow about during the upcoming election campaign. There is absolutely too much at stake for quick raification for which there is such a frantic push. It is hard to reconcile negotiation in our favor while we are dying in South Viet Nam, on the truce line in Korea, and Castro grows in strength.

Visualize these headlines: KHRUSHCHEV'S ULTIMATUM: SURRENDER OR DIE "While the free world was busily engaged in measures to insure the Test Ban Treaty of 1963 was being upheld, the Communist Russians, with the knowledge gained from experiments with high yield detonations in the atmosphere conducted in 1962, successfully built and deployed scores of anti-missile-missiles throughout Russia, China, Cuba, and South America. The wrans were taken off these defense weapons when the military and civilian leaders of France, Germany, England, and the United States were guests of Khruschev at high level meeting called by the Russians purportedly to discuss the last stages of world disarmament.

All guests were seated outside at a luncheon when Khrushchev, who had been studiously keeping track of the time, calmly announced and pointing to the sky, said, "Put on those glasses lying before you and watch." He then began a countdown from ten and when zero was reached there was a flash high in the atmosphere, the brilliance of which was compared to many suns.

"Gentlemen, you have just witnessed the destruction of a missile fired from Cuba 26 minutes and 14 seconds ago," were the words of his interpreter.

Our leaders and those who support his views say ratification is a gamble. A gamble? It is if one considers playing Communist Russian Roulette with an automatic pistol where the players opposite the Communist puts it to his head and makes the first trigger pull.

Time To Beware

Girard, La.

To the Editor:

Times like these every person is challenged to meet a situation that has to be met and disposed of either for or against the propositions submitted. Only action on the individuals part counts. This is politically referred, alluded, to and catagoried, by the politicians as "GRASS ROOTS". It is through this system we have reached our dilemma. Which is the point of where the world turns. And to turn any other way from the way it is we have to reverse our marches for freedom to do what the objectives of these marching gangs have as a goal for their biased, prejudices, gains. I have gotten through the mails this week application blanks for membership by donations, to three different named organizations from New York city, national and international headquarters for most of these subversive organizations. Names of organizers, managers, directors, all prominently displayed on applications, for prestige. Many of these names are prominent in the headlines, and also show on the communist headlines as on the secret documents, on file, contain. Now every individual is to decide from the point of where we are, and realize the election of a governor, or any other officer will either add to, or retard these dedicated, subtle schemes by our enemies. In the chapter on civil rights, Barry Goldwater says "I am not prepared to impose my judgement on the people of Mississippi or South Carolina or tell them what methods should be adopted. That is their business, not mine. The problem of race relations is best handled by the people directly concerned. Social and cultural change should not be effected by the engines of national power."

Senator Barry Goldwater is one of our country's most outstanding statesmen. He has repeatedly spoken out against the federal tyranny and executive dictatorship coming from Washington. He is now under heavy criticism from the fatcats in the northeast because he refuses to put an emotional minority bloc ahead of Constitutional government and States' Rights.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

PRESIDENT KENNEDY had some strong, harsh words for the House of Representatives — and particularly the Republican members — following the action of that body in sharply reducing his foreign aid money request.

Among other things, the President had this to say:

"I recall during eight years in the Senate, from 1953 to 1960, consistently supporting the requests which General Eisenhower made as President of the United States."

An examination of the Congressional Record, however, indicates that President Kennedy had some sharp reservations about foreign aid money during the so-called "Eisenhower years."

On July 29, 1953, Senator Kennedy voted to cut the Mutual Security Appropriation Act by $50 million.

On Aug. 3, 1954, Senator Kennedy voted with the majority to pass the Long Amendment to the Mutual Security Act of 1954. The effect of Senator Kennedy's vote was to cut the foreign aid authorization by half a billion dollars.

ON JULY 22, 1955 — not one year later — Senator Kennedy voted against restoring a $420-million cut in the Mutual Security Act appropriations made by the House of Representatives.

On June 14, 1957, Senator Kennedy voted for an amendment reducing Mutual Security Act appropriations for the fiscal year 1958 by some $90 million.

On June 5, 1958, Senator Kennedy remained consistent by voting for passage of the Ellender Amendment to the Mutual Security Act of 1958. The effect of that vote was to cut the foreign military assistance authorization by $200 million.

In his Senate votes, Senator Kennedy's performance followed closely the pattern which he established for himself in the House of Representatives. And in this connection it might be enlightening to quote from one of the speeches the President made on this subject when he was a member of the house.

On Aug. 15, 1951, Representative Kennedy took the floor to make a plea for his amendment to cut the foreign aid program by $35 million.

Here is what he said:

"I CANNOT BELIEVE that we are going to spend this money merely to set an example to these countries, some of which are ruled by an oligarchy, which they might follow in the future themselves. I believe in military assistance in this area, and that is a good thing, but I do not think that we can afford in this country to raise the standard of living of all the people all over the globe who might be subject to the lure of communism because of a low standard of living . . .

"I say it is impossible for us to think of raising the standard of living of all the low - standard countries of the world. I believe the funds provided in Section 203 can well be cut by the amount in my amendment. The cuts can be applied proportionately to the programs affected.

"Therefore, I ask that the House accept the cut from $175 million to $140 million."

I suggest the President had a better grasp of the realities of foreign aid while he was serving in the House of Representatives than he appears to have today. It certainly is just as impossible to think of raising the standard of living of all the low - standard countries today as it was back in 1951.

The mere fact that it is President Kennedy making the request for funds rather than Harry Truman or Dwight Eisenhower doesn't alter the situation one whit — except possibly in the President's mind.

How do you stand, sir?

BENEFICIAL BYPRODUCE— Big break-through in desalinization program could develop at salt water conversion plant in Key West, Florida. Plant under construction will determine feasibility of using atomic energy to generate electricity while producing steam for converting sea water. Major goal of desalinization program, with pilot plants already in operation in Texas, California, New Mexico and South Dakota, is to reduce cost of removing salt from sea water. Sale of electricity, produced as byproduct to desalinization, would cut costs measurably and put water prices in reach of cities, farms and industries.

WALLACE EMBARRASSES MARYLAND—Prospect of Governor C. Wallace of Alabama entering its Presidential primary is embarrassing top Democrats in Maryland. Wallace admittedly has only minority support on the Free State, but the primary law is so written that it could be slanted toward him. If he enters he probably would be running against an uninstructed slate, always a weak vote-geter because it puts nobody against somebody. Some Democrats are asking Governor Tawes to call a special session of the legislature to abolish the Maryland Presidential primary.

NEW YORK CONSERVATIVES — A half dozen New York State Republican members of the House of Representatives are worried about the new Conservative party in that State, which has won independent status and a place on the ballot in November election. If the Conservative party nominates a slate of candidates the result could be the splitting of conservative vote and the election of Democrats. If, however, the new party endorses the Republican candidates as the New York Liberal party usually endorses Democratic candidates there are few expected change in the Democratic - Republican complexion of the Empire State Congressional delegation in 1964.

The Week In Focus

by Jack Gates

A Political Move

It was apparent the past week that President Kennedy has started limbering up for the 1964 presidential campaign. It came when he went into a long praise of the South in handling the integration situation. He also cuffed a couple of potential Republican rivals.

At a press conference the President rebuked Senator Barry Goldwater for having said in a Chicago speech that there were not 10 men in America who knew the full truth about Cuba, all the facts about the limited nuclear test ban treaty or commitments made with the Communists. Kennedy claimed there are no commitments and said "I think Senator Goldwater is at least one of the 10 men in America who would know that is not true."

On another potential GOP candidate, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Kennedy lashed back at the New York governor's statement that he was withdrawing his promise not to raise state taxes because the Kennedy administration hadn't produced the economic growth which would have made such action unnecessary. Kennedy said he thought there had been substantial increases in economic growth and that New York had shared in them.

In a move obviously aimed at trying to bring the southern states back into his fold, the President poured praise on 150 southern cities which, he said, have integrated schools in the past two weeks with "courage and responsibility."

Not once during his lengthy remarks on desegregation did Kennedy mention Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, whose attempts to keep schools segregated in Brimingham, Mobile and Tuskegee were thwarted the past week when Kennedy took over control of the Alabama National Guard.

Instead, Kennedy, acting like the politician he is, emphasized what he called the "impressive story" the step-by-step desegregation in the South and said "most of the work has really been done by southerners themselves."

Then a reporter remarked that a Negro leader has called Kennedy greater than Abraham Lincoln and that a poll shows 95 per cent of Negroes probably will vote for Kennedy next year. The newsmen then asked a question which implied that many white northerners, formerly potential Kennedyites, might swing away from him because of the civil rights furor.

"I understand what you mean," the President replied. "That there is a danger of a division in the party, in the country, upon racial grounds. I would doubt that. I think the American people have been through too much to make that fatal mistake. I don't know what 1964 is going to bring. I think a division upon racial lines would be unfortunate."

On another point, a reporter bored in with a question on the practice or proposals, in some communities, to send children to schools some distance from their homes to attain racial balance. "Do you think it is right to wrench children away from their neighborhood-family areas and cart them off to strange, faraway schools to force racial balance?"

The President said he would not approve of the procedure described in the question, "but this in the final analysis must be decided by the local school board."

The answer was ironic. The President and his brother actually were the cause of such a system and at the same time they have ignored local school boards when those boards did not want to integrate.

There seems to be no doubt to those attending the conference about the President's aims. It was political all the way.

The Two Communist Powers

In the latest move, the Chinese, in a personal attack on Premier Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders, charged them with picking "up the spittle" of the U. S. to attack the Chinese Communist party. They said Khrushchev and others had "sunk to such depths" they do not hesitate to lie to the Russian people.

Meanwhile, irate Soviet authorities have booted out the crew and Chinese passengers of the Peking-Moscow Express, charging they tried to sneak in anti-Soviet propaganda and staged a sit-down strike when the literature was seized.

It seems apparent the Red Chinese are trying to provoke the Kremlin to break state or party ties with Peking, a move that might play into Peking's hands. So far Moscow has not risen to the bait, apparently sensing danger. In fact, the Russians are displaying a patience that must be galling to Khrushchev.

There is no question but what the split between the two is real and could lead to something more than a war of words. Peking said last week there had been incidents on the border between the two nations. Several thousand Chinese civilians have been building fortifications in Red China's northwest province of Sinkiang, while Moscow has reinforced its military strength on the Chinese border.

IN LAOS, right-wing troops fought a sharp two-hour battle near the American Embassy with pro-Communist Pathet Lao soldiers. At the same time, Neutralist Premier Prince Saouvanna Phouma postponed plans to fly to New York for the UN General Assembly as a new crisis loomed over Laos. Most observers figure that Laos will end up in full Communist control within a year — thanks to the treaty negotiated there by the U. S. with the Communist . . .

AT MIAMI, exile sources say that ex-president Luis A. Somoza of Nicaragua conferred privately with U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk the past week and outlined plans to support Cuban exile activity against the Fidel Castro regime. Reports say Rusk gave a "cool ear" to Somoza's report. In his address before the American Legion, Rusk said the U. S. would not tolerate Castro's ambition to spread communism beyond Cuba into Latin America. But he said he did not favor going to war over Cuba. Somoza, who chilled the U. S. in a speech for following a "folded arms policy" toward Castro, made it clear in repeated statements during his four-day stay that he favors giving the exiles the help they have been denied by the U. S. The Legion had approved a resolution asking the U. S. to proceed boldly alone if necessary to end the Castro regime . . .

SOMOZA

AND IN BRAZIL, Loyalist Brazilian troops crushed a vest-pocket revolt by noncommissioned officers at the modernistic capital of Brasilia. One rebel was killed and two wounded. The uprising was attributed to a ruling by Brazil's Supreme Electoral Tribunal, interpreted in some quarters as barring military men from running for public office in the future . . .

IN ATHENS, Greece, the primate of the Church of Greece, Orthodox Archbishop Chryssostomos, has rejected the papal appeal for unity and denounced the Roman Catholic Church as "capitalist and absolutist." The leader of the Greek Church, in harsh terms, accused the Roman church of trying to win away converts from the Orthodox faith . . .

ARE THE Soviets in control in Cuba? Most people believe so. This fact was emphasized more the past week when the leader of a band of refugees who escaped from that Red Island the past week to Mexico said the Soviets now give the orders in his homeland. Said Rafael Rodriquez — "Our homeland is full of Russians. They are a world apart, without contact with the Cuban people. But it is they who dictate. That we cannot tolerate.". . .

On The Hill

THE HOUSE Ways and Means Committee — in effect the past week — approved President Kennedy's $11 billion tax cut bill. The committee voted on strict party lines, 15 to 10, to direct Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas to introduce the bill finally agreed on after more than a half a year's work. Earlier, President Kennedy had described the reduction as recession insurance, and said "the prudent man does not tempt fate by unnecessarily delaying his acquisition of insurance." At the same time, Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Kennedy should pledge to cut back federal spending by approximately $800 million this year in order to justify the cut. He then proposed setting a $98-billion ceiling on the national budget until a surplus is reached . . . .

A RESIGNING U.S. ambassador to Panama, Joseph S. Farland — lashed the Kennedy administration on its aid program. He said U.S. aid to Latin America would accomplish more if applied with greater concern for individual dignity and less for bureaucratic planning. He cited red tape, a lack of competent aid administration, excessive control from Washington and unduly grandiose planning among aid deficiencies. Farland, while saying he believed in aid, thought the Alliance for Progress has not been a success. . . .

THE FIRST MAJOR administration bill to be cleared at this session of Congress — the medical education program — has been sent to the White House. It came when the Senate approved the $236.4-million bill which establishes the first broad federal aid program in education since passage of the 1958 national defense education law . . .

THE SENATE Commerce Committee has written a provision into President Kennedy's civil rights bill to open membership in labor unions to Negroes. This had not been requested by the administration. It would require unions to practice non-discrimination in accepting members. In the House Civil Rights subcommittee tentative approval was given one section of the civil rights program. Approval was on the plan to set up a Community Relations Service to help communities solve racial disputes. Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary Committee concluded its marathon questioning of Attorney Gen. Robert Kennedy at his 10th appearance before the group. Sen. J. Ervin Jr., of North Carolina had led in the questioning of the President's brother. . .

Another Red Visitor

President Josip Broz Tito, the Red dictator of Yugoslavia — is coming for an October 17 confab with President Kennedy — but the surprising thing about the announcement was the fact the news was received in Congress with remarkable calm. This was in strange contrast to 1957 when more than 160 House members signed a petition frowning on the visit to President Eisenhower. After that Tito found he couldn't come.

But this past week about the most vehement comment Congress could muster was that since Tito is coming, Kennedy ought to press him to hold free elections—a forlorn hope.

TITO

Tito broke with Stalin of Russia in 1948, whereupon the United States, Britain and France began to butter him up. U.S. arms aid to him totaled $700 million in the next decade. Economic aid totaled $1.7 billion through fiscal 1962.

Though Kennedy extended the invitation, officials stressed that it was because Tito wanted to come. Three reasons were mentioned: Tito is a man of curiosity and wants to look over the United States, which he considers a difficult big friend; a visit to the United States has prestige-building possibilities and Tito wants to improve trade. Congress, suspicious of Tito's alternate wheelings and dealings with Russia and the West, has banned most-favored-nation treatment for Yugoslavia.

Pentagon Secret

Another Defense Department secret leaked out the past week. It seems the Army has quietly been reducing its forces in Europe — this time by another 7,300 men — since the first of the year. This brings to about 22,300 the number of men returned to the United States in little more than a year.

These troop reductions have been made without announcement. And it appeared likely the Defense Department may have hoped to accomplish the scaling-down process with as little notice as possible to avoid disturbing the nation's as a weakening of American resolve to defend Europe.

There have been cutbacks in missiles, planes and men before. And these previous moves were also attempted in secret. There has been sharp criticism both at home and abroad over the pullbacks. . .

A Pal In Trouble

Frank Sinatra, the gangling singer and one-time pal of the President — it isn't known if he still is — who branched out as an actor, businessman and gambling impressario, has been threatened with loss of his Nevada gambling license. He is accused of allegedly allowing "one of America's crime overlords"—Sam Giancana — to stay on the premises of the Cal-Neva gambling lodge. Sinatra owns some 50 percent interest in the lodge.

SINATRA

A five-point complaint submitted to the State Gaming Commission in Carson City described Giancana of Oak Park, Ill., as "one of the 12 overlords of American Crime." The complaint says Sinatra knowingly playing host to Giancana in the early days of his election, Sinatra often visted the President.

Leaders Predict Neighbors Will Launch Attack In Next 2 Years

EDITOR'S NOTE — South African officials feel that their country is threatened seriously by neighboring states because of growing African nationalism. The feeling has reached the point where wives hold weekly "pistol parties" at which target practice is mixed with tea sipping.

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Faced with a vigorous African nationalist movement on her most critical borders, racially segregated South Africa lives in an atmosphere of nervous preparation for the attack which her leaders predict could come any time within the next two years.

A former South African deputy commissioner of police, Brig. J. C. Lemmer, says he believes the attack will be preceded by an attempt to stir an internal revolution.

DEFENSE

Formation of civilian defense units trained to combat radio active fallout, poison gas and germ warfare has been suggested by Lemmer.

Many white South Africans are perturbed at the sudden change of heart expressed by the all-white Nationalist government which, in the first flush of reaction to the Addis Ababa conference earlier this year, scoffed at the African heads of state pledge to form an African "liberation army" aimed at the overthrow of the continent's last bastions of white supremacy.

During the closing session of South Africa's 1963 parliamentary session in Cape Town the word "war' was echoed repeatedly in Nationalist speeches.

Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd said "Nobody wants war less than I do, but the African states have tried to frighten us in Addis Ababa and have become too big for their boots.

"We will not bend before pressure and, should South Africa be threatened, we will offer all, no matter how horrifying the prospects," he said.

The continued threat of boycotts and sanctions from independent African states and the growing pressure from overseas critics condemning South Africa's racial policies is pushing South Africa behind a white curtain of armed isolation on the southernmost tip of the continent.

Civilian home guards units train in many major cities. Schools plan to introduce anti-sabotage training for their pupils.

During school holidays teen-age girls undertake a "toughening up" course, learning hand-to-hand combat and pistol shooting.

In recent months the demand for light firearms had outstripped stocks and dealers face shortages. It is estimated that half of South Africa's three million whites have guns and know how to use them.

Tear gas shells and canisters are readily available to any white over 18 years of age.

MODERN WEAPONS

South Africa's defense minister, Jim Fouche, continues to stock the country with modern weapons, including rocket-firing jet aircraft and naval vessels.

South Africa's defense buildup has been intensified since the Addis Ababa conference. This country can call on 250,000 trained men in an emergency, in addition to 30,000 regular police and a civilian home guard force estimated at 20,000.

Border police are engaged in full-time patrols along the neighboring British protectorate borders of Swaziland, Bechuanaland and Basutoland.

These protectorates offered escape routes and hideouts for banned African nationalists, some of whom openly organized militant, anti-South African groups of saboteurs with the protectorates.

Algeria, Guinea and Tanganyika have donated $336,000 to an African freedom fund.

A radio station known as "Freedom Radio" has been heard in this country, broadcasting in English and the tribal languages of Zulu and Sotho.

The radio, operated by the banned African Nationalist Congress, is thought to be based in Ghana.

To combat the high cost and the possibility that overseas suppliers would be reluctant to supply modern weapons, South Africa intends undertaking its own arms research and manufacturing.

Fouche said: "We are all aware of the threats being made to force South Africa to alter her way of life, but we will not change through threats of force."

Three French-built Mirage supersonic, all-weather fighters have joined South Africa's growing jet airforce.

JOHANNESBURG housewives fire .22 pistols at a target during one of the weekly "pistol parties" in the capital of jittery white supremacist South Africa. These housewives belong to a pistol-packers' club of women aged 25 to 61, all top marksmen. They bring coffee and sandwiches for a mid-morning break during their practice on the range. It's all part of South Africa's defense build-up against attacks which the country's leaders say they expect from other African countries. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

LATEST SOUTH African defense weapon, a tear gas spray, is demonstrated by a housewife in Johannesburg. The handbag size cannister, designed primarily for women, costs $11. Only whites over 18 can buy it. The spray, effective up to 12 feet, totally blinds the victim for 10 minutes. It is said to leave no harmful effect. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Snake Cult Service In The Kentucky Hills Described

EDITOR'S NOTE — Few worshippers follow the Bible more literally than the snake handlers of the American South. The Bible says, "They shall take up serpents" so that's just what they do. And, reports a writer who dropped in on a Sunday service, if anyone gets bitten and dies, it's because he didn't have enough faith.

By HAMILTON GREGORY

RAINSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Half a dozen fiery preachers from the hills of Kentucky brought their snakes to a little church here on a summer Sunday afternoon to rekindle the faith of their backslid Alabama brethren.

Emmanuel Saylor, a young man from Pineville, Ky., exhorted some 250 members of the First Strait Creek Holiness Church and thus challenged laws in most Southern states forbidding the handling of reptiles in religious rites.

NOT AFRAID

"I am not afraid to go to jail," said Saylor. "St. Paul didn't mind being in jail, and I don't either."

The snake handlers say man's law should be broken if it conflicts with God's law. They base their religion on the Gospel according to St. Mark, Chapter 16, Verses 17-18: "And these signs shall follow them that believe: in my name shall they cast out devils: they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them: they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

Although these verses are blazoned in big letters on a wall of the little white church, the Alabamians had not been "taking up serpents" with any degree of regularity until the Kentucky preachers arrived.

Most of the members sat on benches facing a platform, which was cluttered with boxes of rattlers and copperheads. At one end of the platform were about 20 men, and facing them were an equal number of women. There was no preacher as such, and members arose to speak "when the Lord moved them."

Amid incoherent shouting—some of it not unlike an auctioneer's chant—the congregation encouraged the speakers with cries of "That's right!" and "Thank the Lord!" and "Praise His precious name!"

Reaching a fever pitch, the congregation burst into fast-paced mountain gospel music. Accompanied by four electric guitars and some tambourines, the members sang of life after death:

"I gotta home up in glory
"I gotta place up in the sky
"I gotta home up in glory
"That's where I'm going when I die."

The songs gave way to an intense chant, and the worshippers jumped to their feet and began clapping their hands loudly, emitting eerie moans.

On the platform the snakes were snatched from the boxes as the congregation shrieked with delirious delight.

The men and women on the platform fondled the snakes, tossed them back and forth among themselves. They jumped up and down, screaming with ecstasy.

This lasted for 10 long, exciting minutes, then ceased abruptly. The snakes were returned to the boxes. The worshippers sat down.

After a healing service, during which the faithful laid hands on the sick and the lame and loudly beseeched for divine miracles, the members drifted out of the church, went to their cars and brought forth big baskets of food. Under a large shade tree tables were laden with an abundance of golden boiled corn, red tomatoes and, of course, Southern friend chicken.

The rural sect has churches in Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida. It was founded in 1909 in Grasshopper Valley, Tenn. not far from Chattanooga.

There is no organization, no leader, and little communication among the churches. Each fashions its own religion as it pleases.

No one can estimate the number of snake-handling churches or the size of the congregations. Some are secret. A Kentucky believer says some cultists in Virginia have no church building but worship clandestinely in a secluded forest.

There has been no official count of the number of deaths from serpent bites, but newspaper clippings reveal at least 20 such deaths in religious services in the last three decades.

There may have been many more. A pert little teen-aged mountain girl, who plays the guitar in a tiny, obscure Kentucky church, said she has witnessed the deaths of two persons on the church floor in recent years. The hands of some snake handlers are gnarled by periodic bites.

A MEMBER OF the congregation at the Holiness Church at Manchester, Ky., demonstrates his faith by handling four rattlesnakes. Members of the cult of snakehandlers base their religion on a passage from Chapter 16, verses 17-18, of The Gospel according to St. Mark. The cultists do not believe in medicine. If a member is sick or suffers snake bite, they pray for him. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Said Rafael Rodriquez — "Our homeland is full of Russians. They are a world apart, without contact with the Cuban people. But it is they who dictate. That we cannot tolerate." . . .

On The Hill

THE HOUSE Ways and Means Committee — in effect the past week — approved President Kennedy's $11 billion tax cut bill. The committee voted on strict party lines, 15 to 10, to direct Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas to introduce the bill finally agreed on after more than a half a year's work. Earlier, President Kennedy had described the reduction as recession insurance, and said "the prudent man does not tempt fate by unnecessarily delaying his acquisition of insurance." At the same time, Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Kennedy should pledge to cut back federal spending by approximately $800 million this year in order to justify the cut. He then proposed setting a $98-billion ceiling on the national budget until a surplus is reached . . . .

A RESIGNING U.S. ambassador to Panama, Joseph S. Farland — lashed the Kennedy administration on its aid program. He said U.S. aid to Latin America would accomplish more if applied with greater concern for individual dignity and less for bureaucratic planning. He cited red tape, a lack of competent aid administration, excessive control from Washington and unduly grandiose planning among aid deficiencies. Farland, while saying he believed in aid, thought the Alliance for Progress has not been a success. . . .

THE FIRST MAJOR administration bill to be cleared at this session of Congress — the medical education program — has been sent to the White House. It came when the Senate approved the $236.4-million bill which establishes the first broad federal aid program in education since passage of the 1958 national defense education law . . .

THE SENATE Commerce Committee has written a provision into President Kennedy's civil rights bill to open membership in labor unions to Negroes. This had not been requested by the administration. It would require unions to practice non-discrimination in accepting members. In the House Civil Rights subcommittee tentative approval was given one section of the civil rights program. Approval was on the plan to set up a Community Relations Service to help communities solve racial disputes. Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary Committee concluded its marathon questioning of Attorney Gen. Robert Kennedy at his 10th appearance before the group. Sen. J. Ervin Jr., of North Carolina had led in the questioning of the President's brother. . .

Another Red Visitor

President Josip Broz Tito, the Red dictator of Yugoslavia — is coming for an October 17 confab with President Kennedy — but the surprising thing about the announcement was the fact the news was received in Congress with remarkable calm. This was in strange contrast to 1957 when more than 160 House members signed a petition frowning on the visit to President Eisenhower. After that Tito found he couldn't come.

But this past week about the most vehement comment Congress could muster was that since Tito is coming, Kennedy ought to press him to hold free elections—a forlorn hope.

TITO

Tito broke with Stalin of Russia in 1948, whereupon the United States, Britain and France began to butter him up. U.S. arms aid to him totaled $700 million in the next decade. Economic aid totaled $1.7 billion through fiscal 1962.

Though Kennedy extended the invitation, officials stressed that it was because Tito wanted to come. Three reasons were mentioned: Tito is a man of curiosity and wants to look over the United States, which he considers a difficult big friend; a visit to the United States has prestige-building possibilities and Tito wants to improve trade. Congress, suspicious of Tito's alternate wheelings and dealings with Russia and the West, has banned most-favored-nation treatment for Yugoslavia.

Pentagon Secret

Another Defense Department secret leaked out the past week. It seems the Army has quietly been reducing its forces in Europe — this time by another 7,300 men — since the first of the year. This brings to about 22,300 the number of men returned to the United States in little more than a year.

These troop reductions have been made without announcement. And it appeared likely the Defense Department may have hoped to accomplish the scaling-down process with as little notice as possible to avoid disturbing the nation's as a weakening of American resolve to defend Europe.

There have been cutbacks in missiles, planes and men before. And these previous moves were also attempted in secret. There has been sharp criticism both at home and abroad over the pullbacks. . .

A Pal In Trouble

Frank Sinatra, the gangling singer and one-time pal of the President — it isn't known if he still is — who branched out as an actor, businessman and gambling impressario, has been threatened with loss of his Nevada gambling license. He is accused of allegedly allowing "one of America's crime overlords"—Sam Giancana — to stay on the premises of the Cal-Neva gambling lodge. Sinatra owns some 50 percent interest in the lodge.

SINATRA

A five-point complaint submitted to the State Gaming Commission in Carson City described Giancana of Oak Park, Ill., as "one of the 12 overlords of American Crime." The complaint says Sinatra knowingly playing host to Giancana in the early days of his election, Sinatra often visted the President.

Leaders Predict Neighbors Will Launch Attack In Next 2 Years

EDITOR'S NOTE — South African officials feel that their country is threatened seriously by neighboring states because of growing African nationalism. The feeling has reached the point where wives hold weekly "pistol parties" at which target practice is mixed with tea sipping.

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Faced with a vigorous African nationalist movement on her most critical borders, racially segregated South Africa lives in an atmosphere of nervous preparation for the attack which her leaders predict could come any time within the next two years.

A former South African deputy commissioner of police, Brig. J. C. Lemmer, says he believes the attack will be preceded by an attempt to stir an internal revolution.

DEFENSE

Formation of civilian defense units trained to combat radio active fallout, poison gas and germ warfare has been suggested by Lemmer.

Many white South Africans are perturbed at the sudden change of heart expressed by the all-white Nationalist government which, in the first flush of reaction to the Addis Ababa conference earlier this year, scoffed at the African heads of state pledge to form an African "liberation army" aimed at the overthrow of the continent's last bastions of white supremacy.

During the closing session of South Africa's 1963 parliamentary session in Cape Town the word "war' was echoed repeatedly in Nationalist speeches.

Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd said "Nobody wants war less than I do, but the African states have tried to frighten us in Addis Ababa and have become too big for their boots.

"We will not bend before pressure and, should South Africa be threatened, we will offer all, no matter how horrifying the prospects," he said.

The continued threat of boycotts and sanctions from independent African states and the growing pressure from overseas critics condemning South Africa's racial policies is pushing South Africa behind a white curtain of armed isolation on the southernmost tip of the continent.

Civilian home guards units train in many major cities. Schools plan to introduce anti-sabotage training for their pupils.

During school holidays teen-age girls undertake a "toughening up" course, learning hand-to-hand combat and pistol shooting.

In recent months the demand for light firearms had outstripped stocks and dealers face shortages. It is estimated that half of South Africa's three million whites have guns and know how to use them.

Tear gas shells and canisters are readily available to any white over 18 years of age.

MODERN WEAPONS

South Africa's defense minister, Jim Fouche, continues to stock the country with modern weapons, including rocket-firing jet aircraft and naval vessels.

South Africa's defense buildup has been intensified since the Addis Ababa conference. This country can call on 250,000 trained men in an emergency, in addition to 30,000 regular police and a civilian home guard force estimated at 20,000.

Border police are engaged in full-time patrols along the neighboring British protectorate borders of Swaziland, Bechuanaland and Basutoland. .

These protectorates offered escape routes and hideouts for banned African nationalists, some of whom openly organized militant, anti-South African groups of saboteurs with the protectorates.

Algeria, Guinea and Tanganyika have donated $336,000 to an African freedom fund.

A radio station known as "Freedom Radio" has been heard in this country, broadcasting in English and the tribal languages of Zulu and Sotho.

The radio, operated by the banned African Nationalist Congress, is thought to be based in Ghana.

To combat the high cost and the possibility that overseas suppliers would be reluctant to supply modern weapons, South Africa intends undertaking its own arms research and manufacturing.

Fouche said: "We are all aware of the threats being made to force South Africa to alter her way of life, but we will not change through threats of force."

JOHANNESBURG housewives fire .22 pistols at a target during one of the weekly "pistol parties" in the capital of jittery white supremacist South Africa. These housewives belong to a pistol-packers' club of women aged 25 to 61, all top marksmen. They bring coffee and sandwiches for a mid-morning break during their practice on the range. It's all part of South Africa's defense build-up against attacks which the country's leaders say they expect from other African countries. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

LATEST SOUTH African defense weapon, a tear gas spray, is demonstrated by a housewife in Johannesburg. The handbag size cannister, designed primarily for women, costs $11. Only whites over 18 can buy it. The spray, effective up to 12 feet, totally blinds the victim for 10 minutes. It is said to leave no harmful effect. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Snake Cult Service In The Kentucky Hills Described

EDITOR'S NOTE — Few worshippers follow the Bible more literally than the snake handlers of the American South. The Bible says, "They shall take up serpents" so that's just what they do. And, reports a writer who dropped in on a Sunday service, if anyone gets bitten and dies, it's because he didn't have enough faith.

By HAMILTON GREGORY

RAINSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Half a dozen fiery preachers from the hills of Kentucky brought their snakes to a little church here on a summer Sunday afternoon to rekindle the faith of their backslid Alabama brethren.

Emmanuel Saylor, a young man from Pineville, Ky., exhorted some 250 members of the First Strait Creek Holiness Church and thus challenged laws in most Southern states forbidding the handling of reptiles in religious rites.

NOT AFRAID

"I am not afraid to go to jail," said Saylor. "St. Paul didn't mind being in jail, and I don't either."

The snake handlers say man's law should be broken if it conflicts with God's law. They base their religion on the Gospel according to St. Mark, Chapter 16, Verses 17-18: "And these signs shall follow them that believe: in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

Although these verses are blazoned in big letters on a wall of the little white church, the Alabamians had not been "taking up serpents" with any degree of regularity until the Kentucky preachers arrived.

Most of the members sat on benches facing a platform, which was cluttered with boxes of rattlers and copperheads. At one end of the platform were about 20 men, and facing them were an equal number of women. There was no preacher as such, and members arose to speak "when the Lord moved them."

Amid incoherent shouting—some of it not unlike an auctioneer's chant—the congregation encouraged the speakers with cries of "That's right!" and "Thank the Lord!" and "Praise His precious name!"

Reaching a fever pitch, the congregation burst into fast-paced mountain gospel music. Accompanied by four electric guitars and some tambourines, the members sang of life after death:

"I gotta home up in glory
"I gotta place up in the sky
"I gotta home up in glory
"That's where I'm going when I die."

The songs gave way to an intense chant, and the worshippers jumped to their feet and began clapping their hands loudly, emitting eerie moans.

On the platform the snakes were snatched from the boxes as the congregation shrieked with delirious delight.

The men and women on the platform fondled the snakes, tossed them back and forth among themselves. They jumped up and down, screaming with ecstasy.

This lasted for 10 long, exciting minutes, then ceased abruptly. The snakes were returned to the boxes. The worshippers sat down.

After a healing service, during which the faithful laid hands on the sick and the lame and loudly beseeched for divine miracles, the members drifted out of the church, went to their cars and brought forth big baskets of food. Under a large shade tree tables were laden with an abundance of golden boiled corn, red tomatoes and, of course, Southern friend chicken.

The rural sect has churches in Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida. It was founded in 1909 in Grasshopper Valley, Tenn. not far from Chattanooga.

There is no organization, no leader, and little communication among the churches. Each fashions its own religion as it pleases.

No one can estimate the number of snake-handling churches or the size of the congregations. Some are secret. A Kentucky believer says some cultists in Virginia have no church building but worship clandestinely in a secluded forest.

There has been no official count of the number of deaths from serpent bites, but newspaper clippings reveal at least 20 such deaths in religious services in the last three decades.

There may have been many more. A pert little teen-aged mountain girl, who plays the guitar in a tiny, obscure Kentucky church, said she has witnessed the deaths of two persons on the church floor in recent years. The hands of some snake handlers are gnarled by periodic bites.

A MEMBER OF the congregation at the Holiness Church at Manchester, Ky., demonstrates his faith by handling four rattlesnakes. Members of the cult of snakehandlers base their religion on a passage from Chapter 16, verses 17-18, of The Gospel according to St. Mark. The cultists do not believe in medicine. If a member is sick or suffers snake bite, they pray for him. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Iraq Regime Using Policy Of Fire In Fight With Kurds

A GROUP of Kurdish rebels wind their way along river in valley of Southern Kurdistan where they are engaged in a war against the Iraqi government. The war, little reported to the outside world, is in the ancient land of Messpotamia and has been fought for the last two years. (AP Wirephoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE — A bitter civil war, little reported to the outside world, is being fought in Iraq, the area of ancient Mesopotamia. Correspondent Alex Efty is back from two months on that front and tells in this dispatch how the war is affecting the Kurdish minority of Iraq.

By ALEX EFTY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—A pall of gray smoke from the blazing countryside hangs over the mountains of northern Iraq, where the Iraqi government is trying to crush the two-year-old Kurdish revolt with a scorched earth policy.

Government planes bomb villages to ruins, set fire to vast tracts of the green countryside and machine-gun anything that moves.

The 1.5 to 2 million colorful, turbanded Kurds live in a mountain region about the size of West Virginia. Their leaders demand self-rule in terms the government says it cannot grant. Fearing that self-rule by the Kurds threatens Iraq's rich northern oilfields and could lead to an independent Kurdish state, the government has decided to settle the Kurdish problem once and for all.

HORRORS OF WAR

The horrors of war have hit hardest on the plains and in the central section of Iraqi Kurdistan, in the remote valleys near the Turkish border, inhabited by about 1,000 families from the tribe of rebel leader Mullah Mustafa Barzani.

Driven back by incessant air and artillery attacks, some Barzani families have fled to the border and reportedly sought asylum in Turkey.

Kurdistan is about 250 miles long by 100 miles wide. This correspondent spent eight weeks on foot and horseback traveling through more than 400 miles of it.

Rebel leaders told me 20,000 Kurds—mainly women, children and noncombatants — have been killed since the fighting began in September 1961.

They claim 90 per cent of the crops in the grain-producing lowlands and half the fields in the mountain valleys have been destroyed by the government's scorched earth policy. Hundreds of precious livestock—cattle and goats—have perished.

Despite the attacks and the rout of the Barzani families, tough tribesmen in the north and a well-organized, uniformed army in the south part of Kurdistan appear in control of almost all the mountain regions.

The army has penetrated into the mountain terrain only on five main roads where its tanks could spearhead the advances. Armed with rifles, and some captured machine guns and mortars, the Kurdish guerrillas cannot fight tanks or planes.

The rebels claim more than 90 per cent—40,000 to 50,000 men—of the Iraqi army is in the battle against them. The rebel force totals about 15,000 expert mountain fighters. Their guerrilla tactics and ambushes for the past two years have confined government forces to the heavily guarded oil centers such as Kurkuk, half a dozen major towns, the lowland and along the twisting mountain roads.

Despite ringing government claims of victory, the rebels maintain they haven't lost a battle since the government offensive was renewed in June. They say their own death toll in battle since then is less than 100 men, and insist they have killed 20 or 30 times that many government troops.

I saw scores of villages that had been hit by frequent air attacks and long-range artillery bombardment, and watched planes strafing the least sign of movement—a grazing goat, a chicken pecking in the dust.

I watched planes dropping napalm and incendiary bombs, and saw miles of green mountain land burned to a blackened wasteland of windblown ash.

Hundreds of villages are in ruins, and hardly a hamlet in Kurdistan is not scarred with bomb craters. In some areas every village is deserted. The men are fighting the government and the women, children and the elderly have moved to the slopes.

There they live like primitive cave dwellers, sheltering in caves, beneath the trees or in the shadow of big rocks on the boulder-strewn hillsides.

THE SOUND

At the sound of an approaching plane, frantic mothers lift their multicolored, ankle-length dresses and gather the children together. They pack their families into small caves they have dug among the rocks, waiting for the overhead drone to pass.

The government offensive was started in 1961 by dictator Abdel Kerim Kassem. The Kurds declared a cease-fire last February when Kassem was executed in a revolution by the Ba'ath Socialist party. The Ba'ath resumed the attack in June.

Kurdish leaders claim that the death toll of civilians in the three months of war since June is as high as the number killed during 18 months of war under Kassem.

Kurdish morale appears high despite their bloodshed and the destruction of villages and crops. Rebel leaders say the harshness of the government assault has forged the strongest national unity the tribes have known in 50 years of Kurdish uprisings.

"If we had more rifles our army would be far bigger," said one officer, "and if we had antitank or antiaircraft guns, we would control all Kurdistan, including the lowland cities."

They note it took two complete government army divisions with armored support, plus aircraft, to push along the mountain road into Barzan, reoccupying villages the guerrillas said they did not try to hold.

STRONGER

At that rate, the rebels maintain, it would take the army years to occupy the hundreds of mountain villages, many inaccessible to tanks.

"We are getting stronger every day, and the government is getting weaker," said rebel chieftain Barzani. "The strain is too much for the overnment. Time is on our side."

As he was speaking two Soviet MIGs of the Iraqi air force screamed overhead.

Glancing briefly at them through the foliage of an old maple tree under which he was sitting, Barzani declared: "It is true that planes can go anywhere and bomb villages and kill women and children but all the same they can never defeat us in the mountains."

Asked whether he had any objections to mention of the location, the 61-year-old leader replied: "On the contrary, go ahead and write where we are. We have no secrets here. If the army decides to come after us they are welcome. We are anxious to meet them ourselves."

Women In Iran Will Vote First Time Next Tuesday

By PARVIZ RAEIN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—In veils and in chic Western dresses, Iran's women next Tuesday will vote for the first time.

The election is revolutionary in more ways than one. The new Parliament, instead of being filled with rich industrialists and powerful land barons, will include workers, farmers, middle class civil servants and possibly a few women.

A new electoral law has decreased abuses of past elections. No longer will an Iranian be able to vote half a dozen times, and no more ballots will be cast on behalf of animals, babies or villagers who died years ago.

SHORTCOMINGS

There are, however, shortcomings to the Majlis — lower house of Parliament — election.

Determined to form a Majlis that will back its reform programs, the government of Prime Minister Assadullah Alam has prevented the opposition from campaigning. Many opposition leaders are in jail, influential religious leaders are discredited, and some opposition organizations have announced they will boycott the contest.

Some Iranians believe the shah and the government are unconcerned by the criticism they may face for silencing their opponents. Though the election may fall short of Western-style democracy, they hold, it will be as fair as those in neighboring Pakistan and Turkey, and more democratic than those in Egypt or Iraq.

Diplomats here believe that even with a completely open election, the shah would have succeeded in defeating the powerful few who, in his words, "unlawfully ruled the country." But Iran's Parliament is a potentially powerful body and the government wants to avoid taking chances.

The voting of 1960 was so obviously rigged that Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi, who wanted reforms but couldn't seem to begin them, cancelled the election and held another.

REFORMS

He dissolved Parliament in 1961, but to institute the reforms he wanted — including a new electoral law giving women the vote —the shah needed approval.

He put directly to Iran's 20 millions a referendum on the electoral law, land reform, workers' profit sharing plans and other schemes. Almost five million Iranians backed him and only 4,000 voted against him, but the opposition contends the referendum violated the constitution.

Many Iranians appear indifferent to Tuesday's election or fear it will be the same old story of corruption.

During the first three weeks that electoral centers handed out voting cards, few people showed up to collect them.

Women's groups toured the streets with loudspeakers urging voters to register. The government extended the registration period and began applying pressure.

Shopkeepers say they must produce electoral cards showing they intend to vote before their shop licenses can be renewed. Civil servants say they must show theirs before they can collect salaries.

But only 200,000 of Tehran's 2 million residents signed up for electoral cards.

Anxious over a low turnout, the government called a mass rally in Tehran and brought 1,052 representatives from the countryside to a four-day national election convention. At this 200 candidates were proposed for the 200-seat Parliament.

EYE OPENER

The list was an eye opener for cynical Iranians. The names were almost all new — 6 women (including the wife of the mayor of Tehran) 14 workers, 13 farmers, a comedian, a world wrestling champion, a former weight-lifter and young teachers and intellectuals. It also included 98 government employes, including university professors, land reform officials, education ministry executives and retired officers.

Indevendents also were allowed to run, but opposition groups such as the National Front — which follows the fiery line of Mohammed Mossadegh, under house arrest since his chaotic premiership ended in 1953 —have been barred under martial law from campaigning.

Key National Front leaders have been in jail since January but three were released this month. Tehran's strongly opposition university is closed for summer holidays, and the religious leaders who stirred riots in June against land reform and women's rights have been rendered inactive.

For thousands of other Iranians, the very word election is a mystery. To the nomads and tribes that roam the countryside, the government is the shah. They hang his portrait in their goat-hair tents. Parliament is something for others to worry about.

JAWAHARLAL Nehru, Prime Minister of India and a world leader who has always been conscious of history, says he envisages a world of increasing order and prosperity. Nehru Gives Views On World Future

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—He slipped his feet out of their sandals and rubbed his bare toes on the carpet as he talked. Light was reflected across the bald top of his head, exposing a fringe of white hair.

With his mind alert, his voice low but forceful, he looked beyond his and India's immediate problems.

He envisaged a world of increasing order and prosperity, with nations grouped into regional confederations.

PROSPERITY

Progress toward prosperity in Asia is far from fast enough, Nehru said. But in the future, as he saw it, the basic necessities of life will be provided and that "will change the abiding discontent."

By the end of the century the world will see very big changes, India's prime minister said, explaining: "We can't go on living on the brink of war, nuclear war. I think some kind of major disarmament is bound to occur—that is, if war doesn't occur first."

The nations will change, Nehru said. "They won't become angels, but certain aggressive tendencies will be curbed—national enmities will grow less."

Nehru was asked about a movement toward cooperation by Malaya, the Philippines and Indonesia in a grouping called Maphilindo.

"I think the trend in the world is for large groupings—not federations but confederations of independent countries."

A pause, then: "Like in Western Europe."

Is such a grouping possible in this area?

"I am afraid of saying anything because it irritates Pakistan. They think it is only a dodge to absorb Pakistan in India."

Nehru noted that he wrote of a larger federation for this region years before British India was partitioned. But despite a tendency for groups "at present it does not appear to be likely in Asia at all," he said, in reference to the region around India.

A system of world order might grow out of the United Nations, he added.

The words were those of a philosopher whose gaze can rise from today's troubles—the poverty of his people, petty political squabbling at his feet, armed danger on the border—to a broader sweep of history.

Nehru always has been conscious of history. He has a place in it as the man who steered this massive and complex nation of 462 million from foreign rule into a functioning system of representative, unified government.

Despite the conflict with Communist China and the presence of Chinese troop concentrations on India's border, Nehru indicated hope of peace in this area.

The 73-year-old prime minister reiterated that he does not want to leave India a legacy of hostility with its biggest neighbor, China. It might be wishful thinking that continued hostlity can be avoded, Nehru noted, but it is the right thing to seek it.

STRENGTHEN

Meanwhile, India must strengthen itself. "There can be ultimately peaceful relations if we are strong," said the man who once decried the Western concept of balance of power with the Soviet Union.

A red rose hung from the buttonhole of his loose white clothes as he leaned forward to the coffee table.

He took a cigarette out of a silver box that a red-sashed servant had placed there before leaving Nehru and a visitor alone in the small parlor of his large house —once the house of the British military commander.

It is still a handsome face, but a bit more flabby than it was a year and a half ago when he was hit by illness — never officially described but believed to have been prostate trouble.

Now he walks more slowly. His Cabinet colleagues comment on a lack of vigor that sometimes leads to a listless and mentally empty appearance. But they find his mind sharp.

"I am told there are 15 million more Chinese to feed every year," Nehru said when asked about population pressure as a possible cause for Chinese expansion. "It is not easy to see such an increase in food production.

"The population question is very difficult in India but certainly not as difficult as in China."

Solving this problem "depends on education and somewhat better living conditions— it is no good just getting a pill and making everybody swallow it."

He talked on softly, his voice containing quiet confidence and a touch of self-assurance.

When the visitor rose to leave, Nehru slipped back into his sandals and went into the hallway to shake hands. Then he turned and walked slowly away.

U. S. Astronauts Rack Up Orbits Prior To Moon

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A space official said Saturday that American astronauts will have orbited the earth 1,300 times before they go to the moon.

To date, Americans have completed 34 earth orbits while Soviet cosmonauts have accomplished 259.

Addison M. Rothrock of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration told the Iowa City Daily Press Association, in a prepared talk, that "by the time our three astronauts leave for the moon landing we as a nation will have accumulated 2,000 flight hours in earth orbit of manned craft.

"To indicate to you the significance of this number—we have as of now less than five flight hours of manned aircraft at speeds in excess of Mach 2.5—2½ times the speed of sound."

Travel History Being Made Throughout South Pacific

Travel world history is currently in the making throughout the South Pacific.

The South Pacific has been greeting for the past few years a bigger percentage increase of North American visitors than any other major travel area.

Now the area is claiming a couple of travel world "firsts."

In an unprecedented get-together, all the major South Pacific travel countries have joined forces in a program to spell out the attractions of the entire area.

Every major airline and shipping company servicing the area is actively supporting this program, a co-operative effort also without a forerunner anywhere.

These suggestions are flexible. From them anyone can plan a South Pacific tour that suits individual requirements and be sure the travel suggestions in the booklet are practical.

FAMED MUTINY

A pleasure-bent crew of Captain Bligh's "Bounty" mutinied to stay there. Its enchantment drew literary "raves" from such writers as Melville, Stevenson, Maugham and Michener, to mention a few.

It has lost none of this special allure, though in some ways things have changed down under.

These days the South Pacific has the additional appeal of great cosmopolitan cities and first-rate facilities for every recreation from tropical big game fishing to skiing.

There are other reasons why record numbers of North Americans are now vacationing in the South Pacific.

The climate is a winner and the seasons are reversed. When winter's icy claws grip this continent, the South Pacific basks in a summer instalment of year-round sunshine.

Jet aircraft have annihilated distance so that the South Pacific is an overnight flight from the West Coast, and magnificent ships — including some of the world's newest and most attractive liners — carry travelers into and through the area that for so long remained hidden to the world.

People comprise the South Pacific's chief fascination. They are all notoriously happy-go-lucky, but in strikingly different ways.

Polynesians you meet in Tahiti, Samoa and New Zealand (Maoris) have only an easy going charm in common. Their native dances and songs, the food they serve you and the way they greet you contrast remarkably.

Likewise with the Melanesians and East Indians of Fiji and the Melanesians of New Caledonia.

EXOTIC LIFE

Frenchmen of the South Pacific have blended the civilized pleasures of their distant homeland with exotic ways of life in Tahiti and New Caledonia.

Different again are the English-speaking Australians and New Zealanders, each with a zest for living all their own. The strange and racially ancient Australian aborigines have no counterpart among all the world's peoples.

Scenically, the South Pacific has everything.

Tahiti, Fiji, Samoa and New Caledonia each has all the ingredients of a South Seas paradise — white coral sands, blue lagoons, coconut palms and valley jungles heady with the fragrance of tropical flowers.

New Zealand packs into two-thirds the area of California the whole world's range of scenery — semi-tropical beaches and permanently snow-capped mountains, grand fiords and the Southern Hemisphere's greatest glaciers, and the boiling mud pools and steaming geysers of spectacular thermal areas.

Cosmopolitan Sydney, sprawling around a magnificent harbor and with 30 ocean beaches within city limits, is the South Pacific's biggest and liveliest metropolis.

The island state of Tasmania is lush and green, a scenic gem, the arid central region around Alice Springs a "painted" desert where aborigines still hunt kangaroo and emu with spear and boomerang.

The underwater color miracle of the Great Barrier Reef, a string of islands and coral reefs fringing the north-east coast for 1250 miles, is one of the world's natural wonders.

Iraq Regime Using Policy Of Fire In Fight With Kurds

A GROUP of Kurdish rebels wind their way along river in valley of Southern Kurdistan where they are engaged in a war against the Iraqi government. The war, little reported to the outside world, is in the ancient land of Messpotamia and has been fought for the last two years. (AP Wirephoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE — A bitter civil war, little reported to the outside world, is being fought in Iraq, the area of ancient Mesopotamia. Correspondent Alex Efty is back from two months on that front and tells in this dispatch how the war is affecting the Kurdish minority of Iraq.

By ALEX EFTY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—A pall of gray smoke from the blazing countryside hangs over the mountains of northern Iraq, where the Iraqi government is trying to crush the two-year-old Kurdish revolt with a scorched earth policy.

Government planes bomb villages to ruins, set fire to vast tracts of the green countryside and machine-gun anything that moves.

The 1.5 to 2 million colorful, turbanded Kurds live in a mountain region about the size of West Virginia. Their leaders demand self-rule in terms the government says it cannot grant. Fearing that self-rule by the Kurds threatens Iraq's rich northern oilfields and could lead to an independent Kurdish state, the government has decided to settle the Kurdish problem once and for all.

HORRORS OF WAR

The horrors of war have hit hardest on the plains and in the central section of Iraqi Kurdistan, in the remote valleys near the Turkish border, inhabited by about 1,000 families from the tribe of rebel leader Mullah Mustafa Barzani.

Driven back by incessant air and artillery attacks, some Barzani families have fled to the border and reportedly sought asylum in Turkey.

Kurdistan is about 250 miles long by 100 miles wide. This correspondent spent eight weeks on foot and horseback traveling through more than 400 miles of it.

Rebel leaders told me 20,000 Kurds—mainly women, children and noncombatants — have been killed since the fighting began in September 1961.

They claim 90 per cent of the crops in the grain-producing lowlands and half the fields in the mountain valleys have been destroyed by the government's scorched earth policy. Hundreds of precious livestock—cattle and goats—have perished.

Despite the attacks and the rout of the Barzani families, tough tribesmen in the north and a well-organized, uniformed army in the south part of Kurdistan appear in control of almost all the mountain regions.

The army has penetrated into the mountain terrain only on five main roads where its tanks could spearhead the advances. Armed with rifles, and some captured machine guns and mortars, the Kurdish guerrillas cannot fight tanks or planes.

The rebels claim more than 90 per cent—40,000 to 50,000 men—of the Iraqi army is in the battle against them. The rebel force totals about 15,000 expert mountain fighters. Their guerrilla tactics and ambushes for the past two years have confined government forces to the heavily guarded oil centers such as Kurkuk, half a dozen major towns, the lowland and along the twisting mountain roads.

Despite ringing government claims of victory, the rebels maintain they haven't lost a battle since the government offensive was renewed in June. They say their own death toll in battle since then is less than 100 men, and insist they have killed 20 or 30 times that many government troops.

I saw scores of villages that had been hit by frequent air attacks and long-range artillery bombardment, and watched planes strafing the least sign of movement—a grazing goat, a chicken pecking in the dust.

I watched planes dropping napalm and incendiary bombs, and saw miles of green mountain land burned to a blackened wasteland of windblown ash.

Hundreds of villages are in ruins, and hardly a hamlet in Kurdistan is not scarred with bomb craters. In some areas every village is deserted. The men are fighting the government and the women, children and the elderly have moved to the slopes.

There they live like primitive cave dwellers, sheltering in caves, beneath the trees or in the shadow of big rocks on the boulder-strewn hillsides.

THE SOUND

At the sound of an approaching plane, frantic mothers lift their multicolored, ankle-length dresses and gather the children together. They pack their families into small caves they have dug among the rocks, waiting for the overhead drone to pass.

The government offensive was started in 1961 by dictator Abdel Kerim Kassem. The Kurds declared a cease-fire last February when Kassem was executed in a revolution by the Ba'ath Socialist party. The Ba'ath resumed the attack in June.

Kurdish leaders claim that the death toll of civilians in the three months of war since June is as high as the number killed during 18 months of war under Kassem.

Kurdish morale appears high despite their bloodshed and the destruction of villages and crops. Rebel leaders say the harshness of the government assault has forged the strongest national unity the tribes have known in 50 years of Kurdish uprisings.

"If we had more rifles our army would be far bigger," said one officer, "and if we had antitank or antiaircraft guns, we would control all Kurdistan, including the lowland cities."

They note it took two complete government army divisions with armored support, plus aircraft, to push along the mountain road into Barzan, reoccupying villages the guerrillas said they did not try to hold.

STRONGER

At that rate, the rebels maintain, it would take the army years to occupy the hundreds of mountain villages, many inaccessible to tanks.

"We are getting stronger every day, and the government is getting weaker," said rebel chieftain Barzani. "The strain is too much for the overnment. Time is on our side."

As he was speaking two Soviet MIGs of the Iraqi air force screamed overhead.

Glancing briefly at them through the foliage of an old maple tree under which he was sitting, Barzani declared: "It is true that planes can go anywhere and bomb villages and kill women and children but all the same they can never defeat us in the mountains."

Asked whether he had any objections to mention of the location, the 61-year-old leader replied: "On the contrary, go ahead and write where we are. We have no secrets here. If the army decides to come after us they are welcome. We are anxious to meet them ourselves."

Women In Iran Will Vote First Time Next Tuesday

By PARVIZ RAEIN

TEHRAN, Iran. (AP)—In veils and in chic Western dresses, Iran's women next Tuesday will vote for the first time.

The election is revolutionary in more ways than one. The new Parliament, instead of being filled with rich industrialists and powerful land barons, will include workers, farmers, middle class civil servants and possibly a few women.

A new electoral law has decreased abuses of past elections. No longer will an Iranian be able to vote half a dozen times, and no more ballots will be cast on behalf of animals, babies or villagers who died years ago.

SHORTCOMINGS

There are, however, shortcomings to the Majlis — lower house of Parliament — election.

Determined to form a Majlis that will back its reform programs, the government of Prime Minister Assadullah Alam has prevented the opposition from campaigning. Many opposition leaders are in jail, influential religious leaders are discredited, and some opposition organizations have announced they will boycott the contest.

Some Iranians believe the shah and the government are unconcerned by the criticism they may face for silencing their opponents. Though the election may fall short of Western-style democracy, they hold, it will be as fair as those in neighboring Pakistan and Turkey, and more democratic than those in Egypt or Iraq.

Diplomats here believe that even with a completely open election, the shah would have succeeded in defeating the powerful few who, in his words, "unlawfully ruled the country." But Iran's Parliament is a potentially powerful body and the government wants to avoid taking chances.

The voting of 1960 was so obviously rigged that Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi, who wanted reforms but couldn't seem to begin them, cancelled the election and held another.

REFORMS

He dissolved Parliament in 1961, but to institute the reforms he wanted — including a new electoral law giving women the vote —the shah needed approval.

He put directly to Iran's 20 millions a referendum on the electoral law, land reform, workers' profit sharing plans and other schemes. Almost five million Iranians backed him and only 4,000 voted against him, but the opposition contends the referendum violated the constitution.

Many Iranians appear indifferent to Tuesday's election or fear it will be the same old story of corruption.

During the first three weeks that electoral centers handed out voting cards, few people showed up to collect them.

Women's groups toured the streets with loudspeakers urging voters to register. The government extended the registration period and began applying pressure.

Shopkeepers say they must produce electoral cards showing they intend to vote before their shop licenses can be renewed. Civil servants say they must show theirs before they can collect salaries.

But only 200,000 of Tehran's 2 million residents signed up for electoral cards.

Anxious over a low turnout, the government called a mass rally in Tehran and brought 1,052 representatives from the countryside to a four-day national election convention. At this 200 candidates were proposed for the 200-seat Parliament.

EYE OPENER

The list was an eye opener for cynical Iranians. The names were almost all new — 6 women (including the wife of the mayor of Tehran) 14 workers, 13 farmers, a comedian, a world wrestling champion, a former weight-lifter and young teachers and intellectuals. It also included 98 government employes, including university professors, land reform officials, education ministry executives and retired officers.

Indevendents also were allowed to run, but opposition groups such as the National Front — which follows the fiery line of Mohammed Mossadegh, under house arrest since his chaotic premiership ended in 1953 —have been barred under martial law from campaigning.

Key National Front leaders have been in jail since January but three were released this month. Tehran's strongly oppositionist university is closed for summer holidays, and the religious leaders who stirred riots in June against land reform and women's rights have been rendered inactive.

For thousands of other Iranians, the very word election is a mystery. To the nomads and tribes that roam the countryside, the government is the shah. They hang his portrait in their goat-hair tents. Parliament is something for others to worry about.

Spotlight ON THE WORLD

JAWAHARLAL Nehru, Prime Minister of India and a world leader who has always been conscious of history, says he envisages a world of increasing order and prosperity. In an interview with AP correspondent Henry Bradsher he said that there will probably be increased groupings of nations into regional confederations. (AP Wirephoto)

Nehru Gives Views On World Future

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—He slipped his feet out of their sandals and rubbed his bare toes on the carpet as he talked. Light was reflected across the bald top of his head, exposing a fringe of white hair.

With his mind alert, his voice low but forceful, he looked beyond his and India's immediate problems.

He envisaged a world of increasing order and prosperity, with nations grouped into regional confederations.

PROSPERITY

Progress toward prosperity in Asia is far from fast enough, Nehru said. But in the future, as he saw it, the basic necessities of life will be provided and that "will change the abiding discontent."

By the end of the century the world will see very big changes, India's prime minister said, explaining: "We can't go on living on the brink of war, nuclear war. I think some kind of major disarmament is bound to occur—that is, if war doesn't occur first."

The nations will change, Nehru said. "They won't become angels, but certain aggressive tendencies will be curbed—national enmities will grow less."

Nehru was asked about a movement toward cooperation by Malaya, the Philippines and Indonesia in a grouping called Maphilindo.

"I think the trend in the world is for large groupings—not federations but confederations of independent countries."

A pause, then: "Like in Western Europe."

Is such a grouping possible in this area?

"I am afraid of saying anything because it irritates Pakistan. They think it is only a dodge to absorb Pakistan in India."

Nehru noted that he wrote of a larger federation for this region years before British India was partitioned. But despite a tendency for groups "at present it does not appear to be likely in Asia at all," he said, in reference to the region around India.

A system of world order might grow out of the United Nations, he added.

The words were those of a philosopher whose gaze can rise from today's troubles—the poverty of his people, petty political squabbling at his feet, armed danger on the border—to a broader sweep of history.

Nehru always has been conscious of history. He has a place in it as the man who steered this massive and complex nation of 462 million from foreign rule into a functioning system of representative, unified government.

Despite the conflict with Communist China and the presence of Chinese troop concentrations on India's border, Nehru indicated hope of peace in this area.

The 73-year-old prime minister reiterated that he does not want to leave India a legacy of hostility with its biggest neighbor, China. It might be wishful thinking that continued hostlity can be avoded, Nehru noted, but it is the right thing to seek it.

STRENGTHEN

Meanwhile, India must strengthen itself. "There can be ultimately peaceful relations if we are strong," said the man who once decried the Western concept of balance of power with the Soviet Union.

A red rose hung from the buttonhole of his loose white clothes as he leaned forward to the coffee table.

He took a cigarette out of a silver box that a red-sashed servant had placed there before leaving Nehru and a visitor alone in the small parlor of his large house —once the house of the British military commander.

It is still a handsome face, but a bit more flabby than it was a year and a half ago when he was hit by illness — never officially described but believed to have been prostate trouble.

Now he walks more slowly. His Cabinet colleagues comment on a lack of vigor that sometimes leads to a listless and mentally empty appearance. But they find his mind sharp.

"I am told there are 15 million more Chinese to feed every year," Nehru said when asked about population pressure as a possible cause for Chinese expansion. "It is not easy to see such an increase in food production.

"The population question is very difficult in India but certainly not as difficult as in China."

Solving this problem "depends on education and somewhat better living conditions— it is no good just getting a pill and making everybody swallow it."

He talked on softly, his voice containing quiet confidence and a touch of self-assurance.

When the visitor rose to leave, Nehru slipped back into his sandals and went into the hallway to shake hands. Then he turned and walked slowly away.

U. S. Astronauts Rack Up Orbits Prior To Moon

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A space official said Saturday that American astronauts will have orbited the earth 1,300 times before they go to the moon.

To date, Americans have completed 34 earth orbits while Soviet cosmonauts have accomplished 259.

Addison M. Rothrock of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration told the Iowa City Daily Press Association, in a prepared talk, that "by the time our three astronauts leave for the moon landing we as a nation will have accumulated 2,000 flight hours in earth orbit of manned craft.

"To indicate to you the significance of this number—we have as of now less than five flight hours of manned aircraft at speeds in excess of Mach 2.5—2½ times the speed of sound."

Travel History Being Made Throughout South Pacific

Travel world history is currently in the making throughout the South Pacific.

The South Pacific has been greeting for the past few years a bigger percentage increase of North American visitors than any other major travel area.

Now the area is claiming a couple of travel world "firsts."

In an unprecedented get-together, all the major South Pacific travel countries have joined forces in a program to spell out the attractions of the entire area.

Every major airline and shipping company servicing the area is actively supporting this program, a co-operative effort also without a forerunner anywhere.

These suggestions are flexible. From them anyone can plan a South Pacific tour that suits individual requirements and be sure the travel suggestions in the booklet are practical.

FAMED MUTINY

A pleasure-bent crew of Captain Bligh's "Bounty" mutinied to stay there. Its enchantment drew literary "raves" from such writers as Melville, Stevenson, Maugham and Michener, to mention a few.

It has lost none of this special allure, though in some ways things have changed down under.

These days the South Pacific has the additional appeal of great cosmopolitan cities and first-rate facilities for every recreation from tropical big game fishing to skiing.

There are other reasons why record numbers of North Americans are now vacationing in the South Pacific.

The climate is a winner and the seasons are reversed. When winter's icy claws grip this continent, the South Pacific basks in a summer instalment of year-round sunshine.

Jet aircraft have annihilated distance so that the South Pacific is an overnight flight from the West Coast, and magnificent ships — including some of the world's newest and most attractive liners — carry travelers into and through the area that for so long remained hidden to the world.

People comprise the South Pacific's chief fascination. They are all notoriously happy-go-lucky, but in strikingly different ways.

Polynesians you meet in Tahiti, Samoa and New Zealand (Maoris) have only an easy going charm in common. Their native dances and songs, the food they serve you and the way they greet you contrast remarkably.

Likewise with the Melanesians and East Indians of Fiji and the Melanesians of New Caledonia.

EXOTIC LIFE

Frenchmen of the South Pacific have blended the civilized pleasures of their distant homeland with exotic ways of life in Tahiti and New Caledonia.

Different again are the English-speaking Australians and New Zealanders, each with a zest for living all their own. The strange and racially ancient Australian aborigines have no counterpart among all the world's peoples.

Scenically, the South Pacific has everything.

Tahiti, Fiji, Samoa and New Caledonia each has all the ingredients of a South Seas paradise — white coral sands, blue lagoons, coconut palms and valley jungles heady with the fragrance of tropical flowers.

New Zealand packs into two-thirds the area of California the whole world's range of scenery — semi-tropical beaches and permanently snow-capped mountains, grand fiords and the Southern Hemisphere's greatest glaciers, and the boiling mud pools and steaming geysers of spectacular thermal areas.

Cosmopolitan Sydney, sprawling around a magnificent harbor and with 30 ocean beaches within city limits, is the South Pacific's biggest and liveliest metropolis.

The island state of Tasmania is lush and green, a scenic gem, the arid central region around Alice Springs a "painted" desert where aborigines still hunt kangaroo and emu with spear and boomerang.

The underwater color miracle of the Great Barrier Reef, a string of islands and coral reefs fringing the north-east coast for 1250 miles, is one of the world's natural wonders.

Stocks Rise To New High During Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market nudged to another record high last week on the heaviest volume in 15 months.

Because of profit taking after the list reached its top in mid week the market held only a slim advance on average — but it was the sixth straight weekly rise.

The advance was spurred by action of the House Ways and Means Committee in formally approving President Kennedy's $11 billion tax-cut bill. Although the fate of the bill in the Senate Committee and in its final disposition by both houses of Congress remain to be seen, Wall Street licked its lips at warmer prospects of more disposable income which could find its way into the stock market.

Selected motors, electronics, steels, papers and drugs did well but there were plenty of losers among recent favorites. Traders, it appeared, were shopping around for issues which they believed were "behind the market."

Volume during the week swelled to 27,797,550 shares from 24,557,722 in the four-day trading week previous (shortened by Labor day). It was the biggest total since the week ended June 2, 1962 when 40,563,230 shares changed hands.

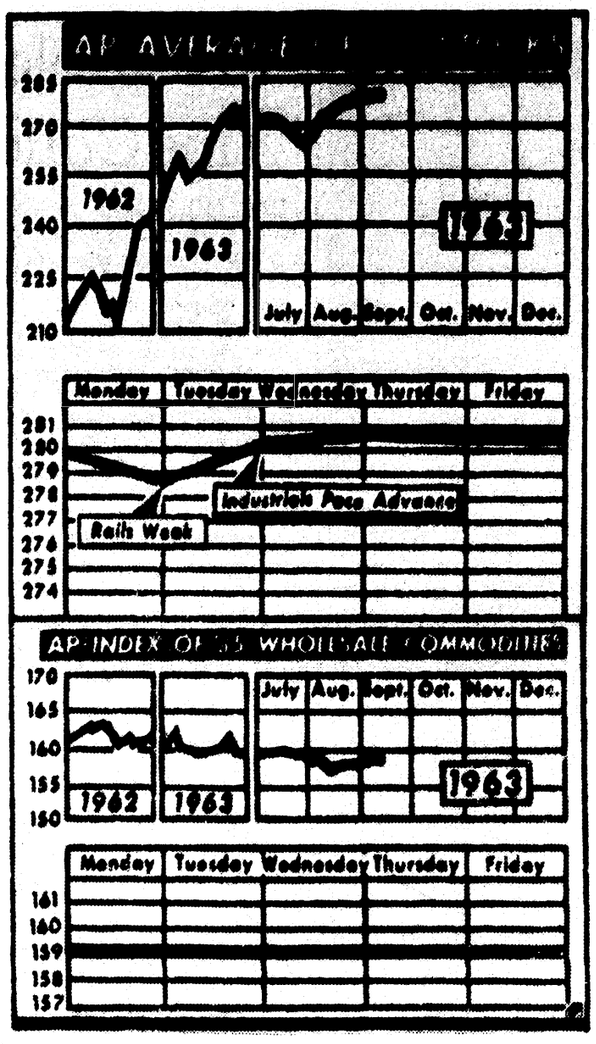
On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average reached a new historic closing peak of 740.34, but this indicator ended the week at 740.13, keeping a moderate net gain of 4.76.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks made a small advance of .6 at 280.5, remaining below its all-time record of 281.1 reached in the previous week. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, however, also made a new closing record of 73.20, ending the week at 73.17.

Not a single day had volume of less than five million shares and Wednesday's total was 6.68 million. On that day, the first-hour turnover was 1.84 million shares, the largest total for a first hour since Oct. 19, 1937 when 2.21 million shares changed hands.

The record highs and the rise in volume led to some pondering in Wall Street as to whether the small investor was once again returning to the market in droves. Cold statistics on the purchase and sale of small numbers of shares showed, however, that although his interest was reviving, he was still doing more selling than buying.

The bond markets steadied and even pointed upwards in spots to recover from the previous week's steepest losses of the year. Corporates finished the week virtually unchanged. Corporate volume totaled $22,982,400 par value, about the same as the previous week's $22,840,200.



FOR THE SEVENTH consecutive week, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher, closing at 280.5 from 279.9 a week ago. The weekly volume was the heaviest in 15 months. The commodity index held unchanged this week at 159.1 as compared with the preceding period. Gains and losses were evenly divided. (AP Wirephoto)

MONROE DISTRICT

16 Wells Completed In Area Oil Activity

Sixteen wells were completed last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District, in activity overshadowed by the staking of 41 new locations — an indication of things to come, as producers continue at unusually high levels of fall drilling.

The toal on finals included wells in eight parishes — five of them in the Monroe Field of Ouachita Parish and two in Union Parish's Monroe Field.

Other completions, according to a weekly report from District Manager Duncan S. Cook, occurred in LaSalle Parish which reported three, Rapides Parish ported three Rapides Parish with two, and Catahoula, Grant, Morehouse and Tensas Parishes, one each.

The 41 new locations were scattered over 10 of the district's 15 parishes, with most, seven each, recorded in Catahoula and Rapides, and Avoyelles which had six.

Others included four each in Concordia, LaSalle and Caldwell Parishes, five in Union Parish (three in the Monroe Gas Field), two in Tensas and one each in Richland and Madison Parishes.

Wells actively drilling or testing at week's end numbered 19, down moderately from recent weeks, and were found in six parishes. One of them was in Ouachita Parish, the Calhoun Field, drilling at 9330 feet.

Others reported were six in LaSalle, four in Tensas, three each in Catahoula and Concordia and two in Rapides Parish.

The only recompletion recorded came in Tensas Parish, the Buckhorn Field, and was Humble Oil's M. M. Bloom No. 13, recompleted at 8900 feet in section 25-12-11E.

Fifteen wells were abandoned during the week, leaving the inactive total at 93. Locations numbered 86; 47 drilling.

Grain Futures Maintain Pace

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market maintained a slow but generally steady firm trend last week with nearly all contracts accumulating broad advances on the Board of Trade.

Trade was brisk at times and on Thursday it reached the highest volume since mid July at more than 100 million bushels with soybeans accounting for more than half the total. However, both wheat and corn were unusually active with both commercial and speculative participation broader.

Industry Tax Exemption Hearing Set

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — The Louisiana Board of Commerce and Industry next Thursday will review applications for 10-year property tax exemptions on more than $52 million in new and expanded manufacturing facilities.

Guy C. Billups, board chairman, said the 33 proposed expansions would boost this year's industrial investment in the state to more than $182 million.

"This can only be interpreted as an investment in Louisiana's future and an expression of confidence in our future," said Billups.

The board will receive applications for ad valorem tax exemptions from manufacturers adding four new plants and 29 expansion projects to their Louisiana facilities.

The projects will create a total of 722 new permanent jobs and over 1,800 temporary construction jobs.

The largest single application is Crown Zellerbach Corporation's $39.8 million new plant at St. Francisville. The paper mill will employ 275 permanent workers and 500 construction employes.

This month's applications, Billups said, will insure that industrial investment in Louisiana in 1963 will top $200 million, one of the highest totals in the state's history.

The applicants, plus their value, location, number of permanent and construction employes, type of plant and construction dates are:

Loans Available Through SBA

Loans are available from the Small Business Administration for small firms to acquire equipment to eliminate or reduce the causes of air and water pollution, Justin Green, Branch Manager for this area, announced Saturday.

"Although loans for this purpose are authorized under the Small Business Act, only a few such loan applications have been received," Green said. "Since the problem of air and water pollution in many areas is becoming increasingly acute, SBA will make every effort to provide financial assistance to eligible small businesses which need to install anti-pollution equipment."

SBA can approve business loans, either directly or in participation with banks, up to $350,000 in Government funds. Maximum maturity of such loans is 10 years, and the maximum interest rate on SBA's share of the loan is 5½ per cent.

Cotton Futures Remain Same

Despite much wider daily fluctuations, they stood from 5 cents a bale higher to 5 cents lower at the close Friday as compared with the windup a week earlier. During that week, some contracts gained as much as 45 cents a bale while others were off 20 cents.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Tax Legislation Progress Spurs Market Activity

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Progress of tax reduction legislation in Congress this week gave the stock market and business in general a lift.

The $11 - billion tax cut bill was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee and moved ahead on an uncertain voyage through Congress.

Under President Kennedy's program, two-thirds of the cut would become effective Jan. 1, 1964, and the balance a year later.

The Treasury has estimated that the reduction would mean $2 to $4 a week more take-home pay for most wage-earning, taxpaying families.

Pressing for enactment of the legislation, Kennedy told the national conference of the Business Committee for Tax Reduction in 1963 "the prudent man does not tempt fate while unnecessarily delaying his acquisition of insurance."

While the President didn't predict a recession if there is no tax reduction, he said:

"But I do know that the prompt enactment of this bill, making certain both immediate and prospective tax reductions, will improve business conditions, increase consumer and investment incentives, and make the most of the antirecession thrust that this tax cut can provide."

The stock market responded to the bill's progress and climbed to another new high. This was the second time within a week that the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues had advanced into new high ground.

The market also was inspired by a gain in retail sales in August and other indications that the economy was moving forward.

The economic indicators point to further advances in over-all business activity despite a number of uncertainties, reported the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

"The performance of production and related indicators since mid-year has been at least as good as most analysts expected," the bank said. It added that most measures of economic activity posted significant gains in July and incomplete information for August suggests continued strength.

Retail sales in August amounted to about $20.8 billion. This was about the same as in July but was 6 per cent ahead of August 1962.

The Department of Commerce said sales of nondurable goods set a record in August, showing a 1 per cent gain over July and 5 per cent over August 1962.

Department store operators set their sights on a 5 per cent gain in sales in the second half of this year, which would boost volume for the year to a record $16.5 billion.

Demand for paperboard boxes continued high after a record August. This sensitive business barometer indicated that manufacturers expect their products to be selling well this fall.

The Commerce Department reported that manufacturers expect their sales to continue to increase the balance of this year. Indications are that factory sales this quarter will climb to $106.2 billion, up $1.3 billion from the June quarter, and to $107 billion in the final quarter, up $800 million from a year earlier.

Production of 1964 model automobiles moved toward high gear with estimated output this week 118,700 cars against 66,949 last week and 116,282 a year ago. This brought production for the year to 5,041,557, up 9.8 per cent from the 4,590,017 assembled by this time last year.

Steel production last week inched ahead for the third consecutive week with 1,775,000 tons of metal poured, a gain of 0.6 per cent over the previous week. The rate of orders indicated that that outlook is for steady gain in output this fall.

The Santa Fe Railroad won a preliminary round in one of the biggest battles of modern railroading. An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended that Santa Fe's proposal to control Western Pacific Railroad be approved and that of Southern Pacific be rejected.

Six aircraft companies—Boeing, Lockheed, North American Aviation, United Aircraft's Pratt & Whitney Division, General Electric's Flight Propulsion Division and Curtiss-Wright—notified the Federal Aviation Agency that they would compete for prime contracts to build the proposed U. S. commercial supersonice airliner. Three other firms, Douglas Aircraft, McDonnell Aircraft and General Dynamic's Convair Division, said they would not take part.

STATUS SURVEY

Pipeliners Slate Review Of Controls

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The pipeliners who deliver natural gas to homes and industrial plants in 48 states meet Monday for their annual review of the status of federal controls.

Federal efforts of the prices of natural gas moving in interstate commerce once again will dominate the two-day meeting of the Independent Natural Gas Association of America.

The association includes practically all the nation's interstate gas transmission firms, plus representatives of the producer and distributor segments of the industry.

It is the only major oil or gas trade group which has flirted with direct endorsement of the Federal Power Commission's (FPC) area formula for controlling wellhead prices of gas sold wholesale into interstate commerce.

Some members, however, have indicated increasing impatience over the long delay that has accompanied development of the area formula. There also has been concern over recent FPC decisions which would extend the commission's jurisdiction over gas sales.

By a 3-2 vote, the commission ruled in late August gas sold in the same state in which it is produced is subject to FPC jurisdiction if it is transported by an interstate pipeline. In such cases, the majority said, the gas has commenced its journey in interstate commerce even though it never leaves the state in which it is produced.

Woodward and Commissioner L. J. O'Connor Jr., have supported area pricing but their dissent to the August ruling said the action usurps state authority and conflicts with interstate commerce statutes.

The pipeliners indicated a willingness a year ago to give the FPC more time in which to formalize the area formula and, also, to permit the formula to be tested in court.

The Supreme Court, by a 5-4 decision, upheld the formula on May 20, but FPC proceedings on the first area formula case still are under way.

The area formula was adopted by the FPC in September, 1960, when the commission abandoned an old cost-rate method under which each producer's case was handled on an individual basis. The old system was replaced with a formula under which tentative prices were established for each of the nation's major producing areas.

The Permian Basin area of West Texas and southeastern New Mexico was selected for use in development of ground rules for the new formula. The Permian proceedings that began in March, 1961, still are in progress.

Woodward is to speak Tuesday on "Natural Gas Regulation: Dilemma or Promise?"

J. David Mann Jr., a Washington attorney, will make a similar approach to the subject Monday when he speaks before the producer division of the association. Mann will discuss "Area Rate pricing—Where Does It Stand, or Does It?"

The reaction of small producers to gas regulation will be discussed by Alden J. Alborde, New Orleans, president of the Ocean Drilling & Exploration Co.

Jefferson Tests At Wildcat Site Hint New Field

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Production tests at a Jefferson County wildcat continued Saturday, with indications it may open a new producing field. Southwest Gas — W. C. Feazel are flowing their wildcat at the rate of 197 barrels of oil per day plus an unestimated amount of gas from a sand at 9,603-04 feet. The well is about two miles south of the Rodney field and is the Nobel No. 1, sec. 30-10n-1w.

A shallow gas sand is under test at a Pike County wildcat that was drilled to 11,100 feet. Campbell & Moore, Cane Corp., Sun Oil and Wallace Harrison are testing their wildcat, the Paulk No. 1 sec 24-4n-7e, from a sand at 3-534-38 feet. The sand is in the sparta formation with the well flowing at the rate of 390,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The well is about one mile northeast of Summit.

In Jones County, Triad Oil & Gas Co. has officially completed its wildcat, the Trotter — Collins No. 1, sec 14-7n-13w, as the discovery well of the Blackburn field. The new oiler is flowing at the rate of 192 barrels of oil per day from a sand in the Paluxy formation at 12,490-500 feet. The new field is four miles southwest of Ellisville.

Austral Oil Co.'s new deep discovery in Smith is continuing to flow at the rate of 388 barrels of oil per day. The wildcat is the USA No. 1, sec 13-4n-8e, and was completed last week from the Smackover lime formation at 14,140-50 feet. The discovery is the first oil to be found from the Smackover formation in Mississippi. It is in Smith County about two miles west of the Jasper line.

Leasing activity in Smith, Scott, Jasper, Newton and Clarke counties has been brisk on the strength of the new deep discovery.

In Rankin County, California Co. drilled below 14,600 feet in its wildcat, the west No. 1, sec. 34-8n-3e. The well is scheduled to be drilled to 16,000 feet to test the Smackover lime.

The California wildcat is about 20 miles south of the Loring field of Madison County. Loring is the only field in the state that produces from the Smackover lime other than the new discovery. It is productive of sour gas with high consensate content.

Jones O'brien and Callon Petroleum Co. completed its wildcat the Hogue No. 5, as the discovery well of the Glassock townhead field in Adams County near the Mississippi River. The well flowed from the Wilcox zone at the rate of 88 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 5,924-37 feet.

In the Oakland fields of Adams County, Germany & Gulmon finaled their Stowes No. 2, sec. 26-8n-2w, pumping 40 barrels of oil day from perforations at 5,924-37 feet.

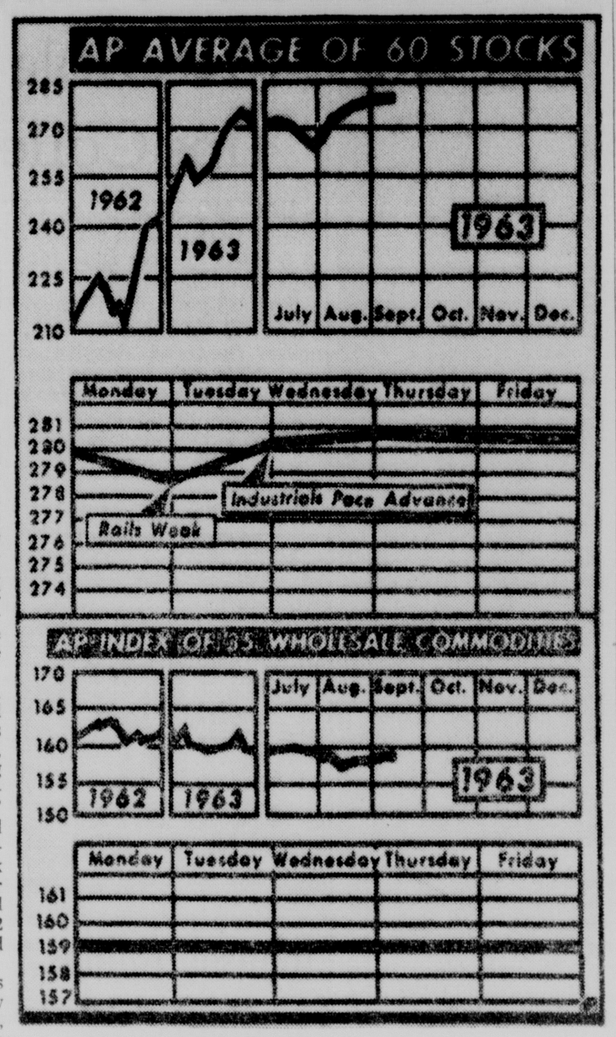
Stocks Rise To New High During Week



FOR THE SEVENTH consecutive week, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher, closing at 280.5 from 279.9 a week ago. The weekly volume was the heaviest in 15 months. The commodity index held unchanged this week at 159.1 as compared with the preceding period. Gains and losses were evenly divided. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market nudged to another record high last week on the heaviest volume in 15 months.

Because of profit taking after the list reached its top in mid week the market held only a slim advance on average — but it was the sixth straight weekly rise.

The advance was spurred by action of the House Ways and Means Committee in formally approving President Kennedy's $11 billion tax-cut bill. Although the fate of the bill in the Senate Committee and in its final disposition by both houses of Congress remain to be seen, Wall Street licked its lips at warmer prospects of more disposable income which could find its way into the stock market.

Selected motors, electronics, steels, papers and drugs did well but there were plenty of losers among recent favorites. Traders, it appeared, were shopping around for issues which they believed were "behind the market."

Volume during the week swelled to 27,797,550 shares from 24,557,722 in the four-day trading week previous (shortened by Labor day). It was the biggest total since the week ended June 2, 1962 when 40,563,230 shares changed hands.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average reached a new historic closing peak of 740.34, but this indicator ended the week at 740.13, keeping a moderate net gain of 4.76.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks made a small advance of .6 at 280.5, remaining below its all-time record of 281.1 reached in the previous week. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, however, also made a new closing record of 73.20, ending the week at 73.17.

Not a single day had volume of less than five million shares and Wednesday's total was 6.68 million. On that day, the first-hour turnover was 1.84 million shares, the largest total for a first hour since Oct. 19, 1937 when 2.21 million shares changed hands.

The record highs and the rise in volume led to some pondering in Wall Street as to whether the small investor was once again returning to the market in droves. Cold statistics on the purchase and sale of small numbers of shares showed, however, that although his interest was reviving, he was still doing more selling than buying.

The bond markets steadied and even pointed upwards in spots to recover from the previous week's steepest losses of the year. Corporates finished the week virtually unchanged. Corporate volume totaled $22,982,400 par value, about the same as the previous week's $22,840,200.

Industry Tax Exemption Hearing Set

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — The Louisiana Board of Commerce and Industry next Thursday will review applications for 10-year property tax exemptions on more than $52 million in new and expanded manufacturing facilities.

Guy C. Billups, board chairman, said the 33 proposed expansions would boost this year's industrial investment in the state to more than $182 million.

"This can only be interpreted as an investment in Louisiana's future and an expression of confidence in our future," said Billups.

The board will receive applications for ad valorem tax exemptions from manufacturers adding four new plants and 29 expansion projects to their Louisiana facilities.

The projects will create a total of 722 new permanent jobs and over 1,800 temporary construction jobs.

The largest single application is Crown Zellerbach Corporation's $39.8 million new plant at St. Francisville. The paper mill will employ 275 permanent workers and 500 construction employes.

This month's applications, Billups said, will insure that industrial investment in Louisiana in 1963 will top $200 million, one of the highest totals in the state's history.

Loans Available Through SBA

Loans are available from the Small Business Administration for small firms to acquire equipment to eliminate or reduce the causes of air and water pollution, Justin Green, Branch Manager for this area, announced Saturday.

"Although loans for this purpose are authorized under the Small Business Act, only a few such loan applications have been received," Green said. "Since the problem of air and water pollution in many areas is becoming increasingly acute, SBA will make every effort to provide financial assistance to eligible small businesses which need to install anti-pollution equipment."

SBA can approve business loans, either directly or in participation with banks, up to $350,000 in Government funds. Maximum maturity of such loans is 10 years, and the maximum interest rate on SBA's share of the loan is 5½ per cent.

Cotton Futures Remain Same

Despite much wider daily fluctuations, they stood from 5 cents a bale higher to 5 cents lower at the close Friday as compared with the windup a week earlier. During that week, some contracts gained as much as 45 cents a bale while others were off 20 cents.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Tax Legislation Progress Spurs Market Activity

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Progress of tax reduction legislation in Congress this week gave the stock market and business in general a lift.

The $11 - billion tax cut bill was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee and moved ahead on an uncertain voyage through Congress.

Under President Kennedy's program, two-thirds of the cut would become effective Jan. 1, 1964, and the balance a year later.

The Treasury has estimated that the reduction would mean $2 to $4 a week more take-home pay for most wage-earning, tax-paying families.

Pressing for enactment of the legislation, Kennedy told the national conference of the Business Committee for Tax Reduction in 1963 "the prudent man does not tempt fate while unnecessarily delaying his acquisition of insurance."

While the President didn't predict a recession if there is no tax reduction, he said:

"But I do know that the prompt enactment of this bill, making certain both immediate and prospective tax reductions, will improve business conditions, increase consumer and investment incentives, and make the most of the antirecession thrust that this tax cut can provide."

The stock market responded to the bill's progress and climbed to another new high. This was the second time within a week that the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues had advanced into new high ground.

The market also was inspired by a gain in retail sales in August and other indications that the economy was moving forward.

The economic indicators point to further advances in over-all business activity despite a number of uncertainties, reported the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

"The performance of production and related indicators since mid-year has been at least as good as most analysts expected," the bank said. It added that most measures of economic activity posted significant gains in July and incomplete information for August suggests continued strength.

Retail sales in August amounted to about $20.8 billion. This was about the same as in July but was 6 per cent ahead of August 1962.

The Department of Commerce said sales of nondurable goods set a record in August, showing a 1 per cent gain over July and 5 per cent over August 1962.

Department store operators set their sights on a 5 per cent gain in sales in the second half of this year, which would boost volume for the year to a record $16.5 billion.

Demand for paperboard boxes continued high after a record August. This sensitive business barometer indicated that manufacturers expect their products to be selling well this fall.

The Commerce Department reported that manufacturers expect their sales to continue to increase the balance of this year. Indications are that factory sales this quarter will climb to $106.2 billion, up $1.3 billion from the June quarter, and to $107 billion in the final quarter, up $800 million from a year earlier.

Production of 1964 model automobiles moved toward high gear with estimated output this week 118,700 cars against 66,949 last week and 116,282 a year ago. This brought production for the year to 5,041,557, up 9.8 per cent from the 4,590,017 assembled by this time last year.

Steel production last week inched ahead for the third consecutive week with 1,775,000 tons of metal poured, a gain of 0.6 per cent over the previous week. The rate of orders indicated that that outlook is for steady gain in output this fall.

The Santa Fe Railroad won a preliminary round in one of the biggest battles of modern railroading. An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended that Santa Fe's proposal to control Western Pacific Railroad be approved and that of Southern Pacific be rejected.

Six aircraft companies—Boeing, Lockheed, North American Aviation, United Aircraft's Pratt & Whitney Division, General Electric's Flight Propulsion Division and Curtiss-Wright—notified the Federal Aviation Agency that they would compete for prime contracts to build the proposed U. S. commercial supersonice airliner. Three other firms, Douglas Aircraft, McDonnell Aircraft and General Dynamic's Convair Division, said they would not take part.

STATUS SURVEY

Pipeliners Slate Review Of Controls

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The pipeliners who deliver natural gas to homes and industrial plants in 48 states meet Monday for their annual review of the status of federal controls.

Federal efforts of the prices of natural gas moving in interstate commerce once again will dominate the two-day meeting of the Independent Natural Gas Association of America.

The association includes practically all the nation's interstate gas transmission firms, plus representatives of the producer and distributor segments of the industry.

It is the only major oil or gas trade group which has flirted with direct endorsement of the Federal Power Commission's (FPC) area formula for controlling wellhead prices of gas sold wholesale into interstate commerce.

Some members, however, have indicated increasing impatience over the long delay that has accompanied development of the area formula. There also has been concern over recent FPC decisions which would extend the commission's jurisdiction over gas sales.

By a 3-2 vote, the commission ruled in late August gas sold in the same state in which it is produced is subject to FPC jurisdiction if it is transported by an interstate pipeline. In such cases, the majority said, the gas has commenced its journey in interstate commerce even though it never leaves the state in which it is produced.

Woodward and Commissioner L. J. O'Connor Jr., have supported area pricing but their dissent to the August ruling said the action usurps state authority and conflicts with interstate commerce statutes.

The pipeliners indicated a willingness a year ago to give the FPC more time in which to formalize the area formula and, also, to permit the formula to be tested in court.

The Supreme Court, by a 5-4 decision, upheld the formula on May 20, but FPC proceedings on the first area formula case still are under way.

The area formula was adopted by the FPC in September, 1960, when the commission abandoned an old cost-rate method under which each producer's case was handled on an individual basis. The old system was replaced with a formula under which tentative prices were established for each of the nation's major producing areas.

The Permian Basin area of West Texas and southeastern New Mexico was selected for use in development of ground rules for the new formula. The Permian proceedings that began in March, 1961, still are in progress.

Woodward is to speak Tuesday on "Natural Gas Regulation: Dilemma or Promise?"

J. David Mann Jr., a Washington attorney, will make a similar approach to the subject Monday when he speaks before the producer division of the association. Mann will discuss "Area Rate pricing—Where Does It Stand, or Does It?"

The reaction of small producers to gas regulation will be discussed by Alden J. Alborde, New Orleans, president of the Ocean Drilling & Exploration Co.

Grain Futures Maintain Pace

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market maintained a slow but generally steady firm trend last week with nearly all contracts accumulating broad advances on the Board of Trade.

Trade was brisk at times and on Thursday it reached the highest volume since mid July at more than 100 million bushels with soybeans accounting for more than half the total. However, both wheat and corn were unusually active with both commercial and speculative participation broader.

MONROE DISTRICT

16 Wells Completed In Area Oil Activity

Sixteen wells were completed last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District, in activity overshadowed by the staking of 41 new locations — an indication of things to come, as producers continue at unusually high levels of fall drilling.

The toal on finals included wells in eight parishes — five of them in the Monroe Field of Ouachita Parish and two in Union Parish's Monroe Field.

Other completions, according to a weekly report from District Manager Duncan S. Cook, occurred in LaSalle Parish which reported three, Rapides Parish ported three Rapides Parish with two, and Catahoula, Grant, Morehouse and Tensas Parishes, one each.

The 41 new locations were scattered over 10 of the district's 15 parishes, with most, seven each, recorded in Catahoula and Rapides, and Avoyelles which had six.

Others included four each in Concordia, LaSalle and Caldwell Parishes, five in Union Parish (three in the Monroe Gas Field), two in Tensas and one each in Richland and Madison Parishes.

Wells actively drilling or testing at week's end numbered 19, down moderately from recent weeks, and were found in six parishes. One of them was in Ouachita Parish, the Calhoun Field, drilling at 9330 feet.

Others reported were six in LaSalle, four in Tensas, three each in Catahoula and Concordia and two in Rapides Parish.

The only recompletion recorded came in Tensas Parish, the Buckhorn Field, and was Humble Oil's M. M. Bloom No. 13, recompleted at 8900 feet in section 25-12-11E.

Fifteen wells were abandoned during the week, leaving the inactive total at 93. Locations numbered 86; 47 drilling.

A brief look at Cook's report follows:

Jefferson Tests At Wildcat Site Hint New Field

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Production tests at a Jefferson County wildcat continued Saturday, with indications it may open a new producing field. Southwest Gas — W. C. Feazel are flowing their wildcat at the rate of 197 barrels of oil per day plus an unestimated amount of gas from a sand at 9,603-04 feet. The well is about two miles south of the Rodney field and is the Nobel No. 1, sec. 30-10n-1w.

A shallow gas sand is under test at a Pike County wildcat that was drilled to 11,100 feet. Campbell & Moore, Cane Corp., Sun Oil and Wallace Harrison are testing their wildcat, the Paulk No. 1, sec 24-4n-7e, from a sand at 3-534-38 feet. The sand is in the sparta formation with the well flowing at the rate of 390,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The well is about one mile northeast of Summit.

In Jones County, Triad Oil & Gas Co. has officially completed its wildcat, the Trotter — Collins No. 1, sec 14-7n-13w, as the discovery well of the Blackburn field. The new oiler is flowing at the rate of 192 barrels of oil per day from a sand in the Paluxy formation at 12,490-500 feet. The new field is four miles southwest of Ellisville.

Austral Oil Co.'s new deep discovery in Smith is continuing to flow at the rate of 388 barrels of oil per day. The wildcat is the USA No. 1, sec. 13-4n-8e, and was completed last week from the Smackover lime formation at 14,140-50 feet. The discovery is the first oil to be found from the Smackover formation in Mississippi. It is in Smith County about two miles west of the Jasper line.

Leasing activity in Smith, Scott, Jasper, Newton and Clarke counties has been brisk on the strength of the new deep discovery.

In Rankin County, California Co. drilled below 14,600 feet in its wildcat, the west No. 1, sec. 34-8n-3e. The well is scheduled to be drilled to 16,000 feet to test the Smackover lime.

The California wildcat is about 20 miles south of the Loring field of Madison County. Loring is the only field in the state that produces from the Smackover lime other than the new discovery. It is productive of sour gas with high consensate content.

Jones O'brien and Callon Petroleum Co. completed its wildcat the Hogue No. 5, as the discovery well of the Glassock townhead field in Adams County near the Mississippi River. The well flowed from the Wilcox zone at the rate of 88 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 5,92437 feet.

In the Oakland fields of Adams County, Germany & Gulmon finaled their Stowes No. 2, sec. 26-8n-2w, pumping 40 barrels of oil day from perforations at 5,924-37 feet.

Taylor Stamps Out Brave Uprising To Save Cards' Victory, 3-2

Showdown Is Coming; LA Series Nears

By TOM PENDERGAST

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Taylor snuffed out a ninth inning Milwaukee rally in relief of Bob Gibson Saturday as challenging St. Louis beat the Braves 3-2 and stayed 2½ games behind the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodgers, 5-1 winners at Philadelphia, meet the Cards in a three-game series at St. Louis starting Monday.

The victory over Milwaukee was the Cardinals' eighth straight and their 17th in the last 18 games.

Gibson pitched a three-hitter into the ninth inning, and added an important double in the Cards' two-run fifth inning.

Bill White hit a solo homer for the Cardinals in the sixth which proved to be the deciding run.

Ty Cline got the first hit off Gibson, a high hopper to the mound in the fifth inning, and Joe Torre homered in the seventh.

That brought on Taylor. He retired Dennis Menke on a foul to White, struck out Cline and got Frank Bolling to hit into a force play for the final out.

Gibson struck out seven and walked five in his eight innings and won his 18th against eight losses.

Tim McCarver, the hard-working rookie Card catcher hitting at a .382 clip in the last 15 games, started St. Louis' two-run rally in the fifth with a single, his second. With one out, Gibson blasted a long one to the top of the wall in left which went for a double when umpires claimed a fan touched it.

McCarver, raced home from third on Julian Javier's grounder to short when Roy McMillan threw wild to the plate and Gibson went to third. Gibson scored when Frank Bolling threw home too late to get him on a grounder by Dick Groat.

White added his 26th home run. Curt Flood singled to extend his hitting streak to 15 straight games.

The Braves made another serious scoring threat in the eighth when, with one out, Hank Aaron singled and went to second as Eddie Mathews was safe on an error. But Gene Oliver hit into a double play, ending the inning.

Five-Hole Streak Tips College King

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Clock-steady Deane Beman defeated an erratic Dick Sikes 2 and 1 Saturday in a tense 36-hole final for the United States Amateur Golf Championship.

The 25-year-old Bethesda, Md., insurance man, never flustered despite a puny drive that cost him the first hole, annexed his second national title mainly because of a five-hole winning streak that started late in the morning round and carried over into the afternoon.

However, it was his trusty putter that brought him a birdie on the 32nd hole from 18 feet and closed any chances that Sikes might have had of staging a late rally.

Sikes out	535	454	443	—37
Beman in	444	425	43
Sikes in	544	535	43
Beman wins, 2 and 1

The five-hole surge lifted Beman from 3 down to 2 up over Sikes, the National Collegiate king from Arkansas, who eight times drove off the fairway before lunch and then fought a balky putter most of the way in the day's second trip over the wooded hills of the Wakonda Club's 6,896 yards.

Beman first won the U.S. Amateur in 1960, a year after he had taken the British title. Since his 1959 triumph overseas, the stocky, father of three daughters has been the low amateur in the 1962 U.S. open, played on three Walker Cup teams, three America's Cup teams and two world amateur squads.

The restless Sikes, who charges from tee to green like a fireman answering a general alarm, looked headed for a runaway before Beman started his five-hole rally on the 15th by sinking a 10-foot birdie putt.

Beman cut his deficit by another hole on the 16th when the former Public Links champion missed the green and lost to a par. Beman stuck a No. 6 iron shot 30 inches from the flag for a birdie deuce on No. 17, and then wedged one to eight feet from the hole on the 18th for a birdie three that gave him a 1-up edge before they went to lunch.

When play was resumed, Sikes sent his second on the 19th over the green and the ball rolled down the steep incline into a pocket in a gravel path below. A study of the rule book showed that it was not a hazard and the slender Arkansan chopped out, the ball going only half way up the slope.

Sikes' desperate try for a par from the uphill lie was short and Beman posted a calm par for another winner. That made Beman's edge 2 up. But Deane missed the green with his approach on the 24th and Sikes draw even on the 26th when he knocked in a 13-foot downhill putt for a birdie.

Beman went ahead again on the 28th when Sikes' strong second shot bounced on the green and hopped into a trap. Then came Beman's decisive deuce on the 32nd.

Only twice during the day did the poker-faced Beman, whose petite wife trudged all of the 10 rounds the winner needed to regain the crown, show any emotion.

The first time was on the sixth hole of the morning round when his second shot wandered slightly off the line into the rough and the ball was imbedded in the soft turf. He showed displeasure when he found that a spectator had stepped on the ball while trying to get out of the way. He finally was permitted to lift.

The second time came at the ninth hole when Deane looked up just before putting and saw his father and mother, whom he thought to be in Bethesda. They had flown in unexpectedly. The incident interrupted his concentration and Beman missed the putt.

Beman, rated one of the best putters in modern times, had eight strokes over par for 163 holes played, losing six of these in his fifth round victory over Barry Meerdink.

He was one over par for the final two rounds while Sikes was three over. The defeated finalist was 14 over for 168 holes in the tournament.

Richert Throws Dodgers By Phils To Hold Margin

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Richert's five-hit pitching, backed by home runs by Ken McMullen and Tommy Davis, gave Los Angeles a 5-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday, and maintained the Dodgers' National League lead at 2½ games.

The challenging St. Louis Cardinals also won, 3-2 over Milwaukee.

the 23-year-old Richert pitched his first complete game in more than a year as he earned his fifth win against a single loss, striking out eight and walking none. The only run off the southpaw was a home run by Bobby Wine in the eighth, the fifth of the season for the Phillies' shortstop.

Richert's last complete game was a 6-1 win over Pittsburgh Sept. 8, 1962.

The Dodgers didn't fare much better with the Phillies' starter and loser, John Boozer 2-4. Boozer allowed only six hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth, but the home run ball was his undoing. McMullen, who also had a pair of singles, sent the Dodgers ahead 1-0 in the fifth with his fifth homer, and Tommy Davis made it 2-0 with a shot into the left field seats in the eighth, his 14th.

BEAT DENVER 20-14

Pass Interception Hands Oilers Win

HOUSTON (AP)—Tony Banfield made a game-saving pass interception in the closing seconds Saturday night as the Houston Oilers used the kicking and passing of George Blanda for a 20-14 American Football League victory over the Denver Broncos.

Banfield intercepted a Frank Tripucka pass at the Houston seven as the Broncos were threatening seriously to shove across a second final period touchdown.

Denver then executed a successful on-sides kick on the kickoff and Slaughter promptly passed 34 yards to Don Stone at the Houston 11.

The veteran Tripucka then replaced Slaughter but Banfield moved in for his interception on the first play.

Houston had built its 20-7 lead on field goals of 18 and 48 yards by Blanda, an 18-yard pass interception return by Freddie Glick, and a nine-yard touchdown pass from Blanda to Willard Dewveall.

The Indians committed three errors and the first three Angel runs were unearned. Pearson scored the winning run after leading off with a walk in the seventh inning.

Tulane Greenies Drill For Tilt With Longhorns

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Tulane's football team worked on spotting Texas plays, pass offense and defense, and its kicking game Saturday.

Coach Tommy O'Boyle was considerably happier with the workout than on Friday when he said the "Green Wave looked sluggish."

"Our quarterbacks, Al Burguieres, Julius Sternfels and David East all looked good in their passing," he said.

"End Clem Dellenger was receiving well."

Green Wave coaches had praise for end Bob Genenz, a 180-pound junior from Skokie, Ill.

"Genenz is continuing to improve as he did in spring practice," O'Boyle said.

"He's not very big," end coach Arnsparger said, "but he's going to play a lot of football this fall."

The team will resume workouts Monday.

Singleton Stars To Lead Victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — Former Yale star Tom Singleton switched from passing to running in the second half and scored the winning touchdown as the Quantico Marines defeated Xavier of Ohio 9-7 in the opening football game for both teams Saturday night.

Two first-half Marine offensives ended when the Musketeers intercepted Singleton's passes. But in the third quarter, Singleton gained 23 yards in a run around Xavier's left end and scored shortly thereafter on a roll around the right flank from the five-yard line.

Axmen Get Upset Win Over Demons

Playing more than three quarters of the game the 16 top axmen posted a 10-0 upset victory over Northwestern State college, before a gathering of 5,000 in Shreveport's first collegiate game of the year.

Coach Travis (Shorty) Hughes in his second year at the helm of the Lumberjacks from Nacogdoches, Tex., saw his fired up charges rack the Demons all over the lot.

S. F. bunched its scoring in the second quarter, fought Northwestern to a standstill in the third chapter, and spent the final quarter turning back three NSC scoring threats.

It wasn't until midway of the fourth quarter that Hughes substituted an entire unit. But, it didn't appear that they needed it for the Texans were fleet of foot and in almost perfect condition.

Halfback Robert Neff, a sophomore from Hearne, Tex., scored the SFA touchdown on the first play of the second quarter with a one yard plunge off left tackle. Another soph, guard Jackie Roberson, of Donna, Tex., booted the extra point and came back with a 39 yard field goal with 1:17 left in the half.

With the victory, SFA gained possession of Chief Caddo for a year. The chief, a seven - foot wooden indian is a symbol of victory between the two schools. It was carved from a blackgum tree chopped from the SFA campus. The chief spent a year in Natchitoches after the Demons won 23-8 here last year.

The Lone Star gained its first victory in posting a 14-12 verdict in the opener of their Shreveport Series in 1956. In the over - all series Northwestern now holds a 16-7-2 advantage.

Richmond Grabs 10-7 Win With Big Field Goal

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's football Spiders, badly outplayed much of the distance, defeated East Carolina 10-7 Saturday night on a last period, 35-yard field goal by kicking specialist Bruce Gossett.

The three point boot by Gossett, one of nine transfers on the Richmond team, came moments after he had pinned the Pirates' backs to the wall with a punt that rolled out of bounds on the East Carolina eight-yard line.

The Pirates took a 7-0 lead in the second period on a 10-yard run by tailback Bill Cline and almost completely dominated the action in the first half.

Once, however, they let their defenses drop and the Spiders took full advantage of the lapse. With only 14 seconds left in the half, quarterback Bill Silvi found Kennedy Stoudt on a 54-yard pass play which, with Gossett's extra point kick, pulled the Spiders even at intermission.

The Pirates had two touchdowns called back because of penalties in the opening quarter after launching the game's longest sustained drive to the Richmond 13.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth shot a par round of 74 and Marilynn Smith carded a 75 Saturday as they tied for first place after the third round of the Eugene Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Smith, from Tequesta, Fla., now has a 54-hole score of 74-70-75—219. Miss Whitworth, from Jal, N.M., has 73-72-74—219.

The $10,000 tournament, being played at the Eugene Country Club, will end Sunday.

Johnson Guides Cardinals 34-7 Win Over 'Pokes

DALLAS (AP)— Charley Johnson's passing, Bill Triplett's running, a 58-yard dash with an intercepted pass by Jimmy Hill and Dallas mistakes gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 34-7 victory in an opening National Football League game Saturday night.

Jim Bakken also kicked field goals of 43 and 45 yards.

Dallas continued frustrated. It never has been able to beat St. Louis although heavily favored to make it this time.

The best opening crowd in Dallas' four years of NFL membership—36,432—turned out in the Cotton Bowl to be disappointed once more.

The Cowboys drew first blood, scoring a touchdown in the second quarter as Don Meredith found the passing range. He threw for 49 yards in a 69-yard march, with the payoff a 15-yarder to Pettis Norman.

But from there on Dallas had little chance with the hard-running Cardinals, guided by Johnson, who chipped in with some crucial runs himself.

St. Louis jammed 20 points into the second period with Bakken's 43-yard field goal coming first after Johnson had sent the Cards 42 yards.

As soon as St. Louis got the ball again it went ahead with a 79-yard drive, a screen pass from Johnson to Triplett that ate up 38 yards getting the surge going. A 30-yard dash by Triplett got the ball to the Dallas two and Joe Childress finally ran a yard around right end for the touchdown.

St. Louis made it 17-7 when Hill intercepted the Meredith pass and ran to an easy touchdown. Wtih two seconds left in the half, St. Louis scored again as Bakken booted his 45-yarder.

A short kick by Sam Baker set St. Louis up in business in the third period. Johnson's 14-yard pass to Bobby Joe Conrad and a 14-yard run by Johnson got most of the distance. Dallas was penalized to its four-yard line for roughing the passer then Johnson passed to Conrad for the score.

The final St. Louis touchdown came on a 60-yard drive with Childress running for 11, Johnson passing to Triplett for 13 and to Conrad for 14 as the big plays. Johnson slid off right tackle from the one for the score.

Johnson passed for 133 yards and Triplett ran for 82 as the big guns of the St. Louis offense.

Donovan Leads Furman's 17-0 Win Saturday

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Senior quarterback Danny Donovan ran and passed Furman to a 17-0 victory over Davidson Saturday night opening the Southern Conference football season for both teams.

Donovan, a 165-pounder with a slingshot arm, ran for one touchdown and his passing and running set up a second period field goal and a final period touchdown by fullback Elliott Keller.

Showdown Is Coming; LA Series Nears

By TOM PENDERGAST

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Taylor snuffed out a ninth inning Milwaukee rally in relief of Bob Gibson Saturday as challenging St. Louis beat the Braves 3-2 and stayed 2½ games behind the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodgers, 5-1 winners at Philadelphia, meet the Cards in a three-game series at St. Louis starting Monday.

The victory over Milwaukee was the Cardinals' eighth straight and their 17th in the last 18 games.

Gibson pitched a three-hitter into the ninth inning, and added an important double in the Cards' two-run fifth inning.

Bill White hit a solo homer for the Cardinals in the sixth which proved to be the deciding run.

Ty Cline got the first hit off Gibson, a high hopper to the mound in the fifth inning, and Joe Torre homered in the seventh.

That brought on Taylor. He retired Dennis Menke on a foul to White, struck out Cline and got Frank Bolling to hit into a force play for the final out.

Gibson struck out seven and walked five in his eight innings and won his 18th against eight losses.

Tim McCarver, the hard-working rookie Card catcher hitting at a .382 clip in the last 15 games, started St. Louis' two-run rally in the fifth with a single, his second. With one out, Gibson blasted a long one to the top of the wall in left which went for a double when umpires claimed a fan touched it.

McCarver, raced home from third on Julian Javier's grounder to short when Roy McMillan threw wild to the plate and Gibson went to third. Gibson scored when Frank Bolling threw home too late to get him on a grounder by Dick Groat.

White added his 26th home run. Curt Flood singled to extend his hitting streak to 15 straight games.

The Braves made another serious scoring threat in the eighth when, with one out, Hank Aaron singled and went to second as Eddie Mathews was safe on an error. But Gene Oliver hit into a double play, ending the inning.

Five-Hole Streak Tips College King

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Clock-steady Deane Beman defeated an erratic Dick Sikes 2 and 1 Saturday in a tense 36-hole final for the United States Amateur Golf Championship.

The 25-year-old Bethesda, Md., insurance man, never flustered despite a puny drive that cost him the first hole, annexed his second national title mainly because of a five-hole winning streak that started late in the morning round and carried over into the afternoon.

However, it was his trusty putter that brought him a birdie on the 32nd hole from 18 feet and closed any chances that Sikes might have had of staging a late rally.

The five-hole surge lifted Beman from 3 down to 2 up over Sikes, the National Collegiate king from Arkansas, who eight times drove off the fairway before lunch and then fought a balky putter most of the way in the day's second trip over the wooded hills of the Wakonda Club's 6,896 yards.

Beman first won the U.S. Amateur in 1960, a year after he had taken the British title. Since his 1959 triumph overseas, the stocky, father of three daughters has been the low amateur in the 1962 U.S. open, played on three Walker Cup teams, three America's Cup teams and two world amateur squads.

The restless Sikes, who charges from tee to green like a fireman answering a general alarm, looked headed for a runaway before Beman started his five-hole rally on the 15th by sinking a 10-foot birdie putt.

Beman cut his deficit by another hole on the 16th when the former Public Links champion missed the green and lost to a par. Beman stuck a No. 6 iron shot 30 inches from the flag for a birdie deuce on No. 17, and then wedged one to eight feet from the hole on the 18th for a birdie three that gave him a 1-up edge before they went to lunch.

When play was resumed, Sikes sent his second on the 19th over the green and the ball rolled down the steep incline into a pocket in a gravel path below. A study of the rule book showed that it was not a hazard and the slender Arkansan chopped out, the ball going only half way up the slope.

Sikes' desperate try for a par from the uphill lie was short and Beman posted a calm par for another winner. That made Beman's edge 2 up. But Deane missed the green with his approach on the 24th and Sikes draw even on the 26th when he knocked in a 13-foot downhill putt for a birdie.

Beman went ahead again on the 28th when Sikes' strong second shot bounced on the green and hopped into a trap. Then came Beman's decisive deuce on the 32nd.

Only twice during the day did the poker-faced Beman, whose petite wife trudged all of the 10 rounds the winner needed to regain the crown, show any emotion.

The first time was on the sixth hole of the morning round when his second shot wandered slightly off the line into the rough and the ball was imbedded in the soft turf. He showed displeasure when he found that a spectator had stepped on the ball while trying to get out of the way. He finally was permitted to lift.

The second time came at the ninth hole when Deane looked up just before putting and saw his father and mother, whom he thought to be in Bethesda. They had flown in unexpectedly. The incident interrupted his concentration and Beman missed the putt.

Beman, rated one of the best putters in modern times, had eight strokes over par for 163 holes played, losing six of these in his fifth round victory over Barry Meerdink.

He was one over par for the final two rounds while Sikes was three over. The defeated finalist was 14 over for 168 holes in the tournament.

Richert Throws Dodgers By Phils To Hold Margin

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Richert's five-hit pitching, backed by home runs by Ken McMullen and Tommy Davis, gave Los Angeles a 5-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday, and maintained the Dodgers' National League lead at 2½ games.

The challenging St. Louis Cardinals also won, 3-2 over Milwaukee.

the 23-year-old Richert pitched his first complete game in more than a year as he earned his fifth win against a single loss, striking out eight and walking none. The only run off the southpaw was a home run by Bobby Wine in the eighth, the fifth of the season for the Phillies' shortstop.

Richert's last complete game was a 6-1 win over Pittsburgh Sept. 8, 1962.

The Dodgers didn't fare much better with the Phillies' starter and loser, John Boozer 2-4. Boozer allowed only six hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth, but the home run ball was his undoing. McMullen, who also had a pair of singles, sent the Dodgers ahead 1-0 in the fifth with his fifth homer, and Tommy Davis made it 2-0 with a shot into the left field seats in the eighth, his 14th.

BEAT DENVER 20-14

Pass Interception Hands Oilers Win

HOUSTON (AP)—Tony Banfield made a game-saving pass interception in the closing seconds Saturday night as the Houston Oilers used the kicking and passing of George Blanda for a 20-14 American Football League victory over the Denver Broncos.

Banfield intercepted a Frank Tripucka pass at the Houston seven as the Broncos were threatening seriously to shove across a second final period touchdown.

Denver then executed a successful on-sides kick on the kickoff and Slaughter promptly passed 34 yards to Don Stone at the Houston 11.

The veteran Tripucka then replaced Slaughter but Banfield moved in for his interception on the first play.

Houston had built its 20-7 lead on field goals of 18 and 48 yards by Blanda, an 18-yard pass interception return by Freddie Glick, and a nine-yard touchdown pass from Blanda to Willard Dewveall.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A stolen base by Albie Pearson and a single by Charlie Dees produced the run that brought the Los Angeles Angels a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday night.

The Indians committed three errors and the first three Angel runs were unearned. Pearson scored the winning run after leading off with a walk in the seventh inning.

Tulane Greenies Drill For Tilt With Longhorns

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Tulane's football team worked on spotting Texas plays, pass offense and defense, and its kicking game Saturday.

Coach Tommy O'Boyle was considerably happier with the workout than on Friday when he said the "Green Wave looked sluggish."

Green Wave coaches had praise for end Bob Genenz, a 180-pound junior from Skokie, Ill.

"Genenz is continuing to improve as he did in spring practice," O'Boyle said.

"He's not very big," end coach Arnsparger said, "but he's going to play a lot of football this fall."

The team will resume workouts Monday.

Singleton Stars To Lead Victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — Former Yale star Tom Singleton switched from passing to running in the second half and scored the winning touchdown as the Quantico Marines defeated Xavier of Ohio 9-7 in the opening football game for both teams Saturday night.

Two first-half Marine offensives ended when the Musketteers intercepted Singleton's passes. But in the third quarter, Singleton gained 23 yards in a run around Xavier's left end and scored shortly thereafter on a roll around the right flank from the five-yard line.

10-0 IN SHREVEPORT

Axmen Get Upset Win Over Demons

Playing more than three quarters of the game the 16 top axmen posted a 10-0 upset victory over Northwestern State college, before a gathering of 5,000 in Shreveport's first collegiate game of the year.

Coach Travis (Shorty) Hughes in his second year at the helm of the Lumberjacks from Nacogdoches, Tex., saw his fired up charges rack the Demons all over the lot.

S. F. bunched its scoring in the second quarter, fought Northwestern to a standstill in the third chapter, and spent the final quarter turning back three NSC scoring threats.

It wasn't until midway of the fourth quarter that Hughes substituted an entire unit. But, it didn't appear that they needed it for the Texans were fleet of foot and in almost perfect condition.

Halfback Robert Neff, a sophomore from Hearne, Tex., scored the SFA touchdown on the first play of the second quarter with a one yard plunge off left tackle. Another soph, guard Jackie Roberson, of Donna, Tex., booted the extra point and came back with a 39 yard field goal with 1:17 left in the half.

With the victory, SFA gained possession of Chief Caddo for a year. The chief, a seven - foot wooden indian is a symbol of victory between the two schools. It was carved from a blackgum tree chopped from the SFA campus. The chief spent a year in Natchitoches after the Demons won 23-8 here last year.

The Lone Star gained its first victory in posting a 14-12 verdict in the opener of their Shreveport Series in 1956. In the over - all series Northwestern now holds a 16-7-2 advantage.

Richmond Grabs 10-7 Win With Big Field Goal

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's football Spiders, badly outplayed much of the distance, defeated East Carolina 10-7 Saturday night on a last period, 35-yard field goal by kicking specialist Bruce Gossett.

The three point boot by Gossett, one of nine transfers on the Richmond team, came moments after he had pinned the Pirates' backs to the wall with a punt that rolled out of bounds on the East Carolina eight-yard line.

The Pirates took a 7-0 lead in the second period on a 10-yard run by tailback Bill Cline and almost completely dominated the action in the first half.

Once, however, they let their defenses drop and the Spiders took full advantage of the lapse. With only 14 seconds left in the half, quarterback Bill Silvi found Kennedy Stoudt on a 54-yard pass play which, with Gossett's extra point kick, pulled the Spiders even at intermission.

The Pirates had two touchdowns called back because of penalties in the opening quarter after launching the game's longest sustained drive to the Richmond 13.

Whitworth Ties Smith For Lead In Eugene Open

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth shot a par round of 74 and Marilynn Smith carded a 75 Saturday as they tied for first place after the third round of the Eugene Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Smith, from Tequesta, Fla., now has a 54-hole score of 74-70-75—219. Miss Whitworth, from Jal, N.M., has 73-72-74—219.

The $10,000 tournament, being played at the Eugene Country Club, will end Sunday.

Mickey Wright from Dallas, Tex., the top woman professional golf money winner, skidded to a 76. That with her earlier rounds of 71 and 74 gave her a three-day total of 221.

Completing the seven furlongs in the fastest time of the meeting, 1:25, Skilligolee paid $10.80, $4.00 and $3.20 after leading Steel Viking to the finish.

Johnson Guides Cardinals 34-7 Win Over 'Pokes

DALLAS (AP)— Charley Johnson's passing, Bill Triplett's running, a 58-yard dash with an intercepted pass by Jimmy Hill and Dallas mistakes gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 34-7 victory in an opening National Football League game Saturday night.

Jim Bakken also kicked field goals of 43 and 45 yards.

Dallas continued frustrated. It never has been able to beat St. Louis although heavily favored to make it this time.

The best opening crowd in Dallas' four years of NFL membership—36,432—turned out in the Cotton Bowl to be disappointed once more.

The Cowboys drew first blood, scoring a touchdown in the second quarter as Don Meredith found the passing range. He threw for 49 yards in a 69-yard march, with the payoff a 15-yarder to Pettis Norman.

But from there on Dallas had little chance with the hard-running Cardinals, guided by Johnson, who chipped in with some crucial runs himself.

St. Louis jammed 20 points into the second period with Bakken's 43-yard field goal coming first after Johnson had sent the Cards 42 yards.

As soon as St. Louis got the ball again it went ahead with a 79-yard drive, a screen pass from Johnson to Triplett that ate up 38 yards getting the surge going. A 30-yard dash by Triplett got the ball to the Dallas two and Joe Childress finally ran a yard around right end for the touchdown.

St. Louis made it 17-7 when Hill intercepted the Meredith pass and ran to an easy touchdown. With two seconds left in the half, St. Louis scored again as Bakken booted his 45-yarder.

A short kick by Sam Baker set St. Louis up in business in the third period. Johnson's 14-yard pass to Bobby Joe Conrad and a 14-yard run by Johnson got most of the distance. Dallas was penalized to its four-yard line for roughing the passer then Johnson passed to Conrad for the score.

The final St. Louis touchdown came on a 60-yard drive with Childress running for 11, Johnson passing to Triplett for 13 and to Conrad for 14 as the big plays. Johnson slid off right tackle from the one for the score.

Johnson passed for 133 yards and Triplett ran for 82 as the big guns of the St. Louis offense.

Louisiana State In Final Stages Of Aggie Drills

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Fullback Buddy Hamic scored three touchdowns in a scrimmage encounter under game conditions Saturday as Louisiana State University completed its rough work for its opener against Texas A. & M. Sept. 21.

Sophomore quarterback Pat Screen reeled off two long touchdown heaves against the freshmen team.

Coach Charles McClendon said he hoped to correct some Tiger shortcomings in the final week of preparations for the Aggies.

Donovan Leads Furman's 17-0 Win Saturday

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Senior quarterback Danny Donovan ran and passed Furman to a 17-0 victory over Davidson Saturday night opening the Southern Conference football season for both teams.

Donovan, a 165-pounder with a slingshot arm, ran for one touchdown and his passing and running set up a second period field goal and a final period touchdown by fullback Elliott Keller.

Donovan's cleverness set up Keller's four-yard touchdown in the fourth period. With nine yards to go and fourth down, Donovan knelt as if to hold for a field goal attempt. Instead, he whipped a pass to Sammy Pickens, who raced 17 yards to the seven. Keller ploughed over two plays later.

Carter In Easy Decision Victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rubin (Hurricane) Carter, unleashing a fearsome two-fisted attack to the body, scored an easy 10-round decision over Farid Salim Saturday night at Pittsburgh's Civic Arena.

A crowd of 4,316 watched the one-sided battle which was the last in the series of nationally televised Saturday night fights which began in Oct. 1960. The fights will be telecast once again Sept. 20.

Teal Season In September

With Sam Hanna

Yancey Says Possible

It wouldn't be like duck hunting, sitting in a blind in your shirtsleeves, mopping the sweat from your brow while waiting for that familiar whistle of wings.

That is, if you decided to go duck hunting instead

But if the Mississippi Flyway Council gets its way, you can get used to blowing your duck call in the heat, although in the case of most hunters that wouldn't be too much of a sacrifice.

Dick Yancey, the assistant director of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, tells us that there is a good possibility the Mississippi Flyway will get a special teal season next September.

The flyway council adopted a resolution by Yancey at its August 1st meeting requesting the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service to try a teal season in September.

This request is under consideration, but Yancey says the outlook is good. Several meetings have been held with the federal people since the resolution was passed.

Yancey's argument is that the bluewing teal moves down the Mississippi Flyway much too early for the hunter to get in his whacks. Teal were reported as early as the Labor Day weekend on Black Bayou, for example.

And that's the case. They move out of Canada early, coming down the flyway before they eventually settle down in Mexico and points south of the bullrings.

By the time the teal comes back through, our season is closed, because the homeward migration comes in March, April and early May. The duck season is long forgotten about by then.

Yancey says the Louisiana marsh has a great number of teal now. He flew it several days ago.

It's true that a few greenwing teal, plus some pintails and shovellers, move out with the big migration of bluewing teal, but the season is the Mississippi Flyway Council is asking for concerns the blue - colored teal only.

Of course, the first season would be an experiment and that depends on whether the Canadian duck factories can produce enough teal to warrant the special hunt.

But it sounds like a good thing. And it would help to take the bite off all the troubles the duck hunter has had lately, although this year's season is vastly improved.

Teal or dove? Sounds strange.

Telephone Dove Survey

With the first split of the dove season closing at sunset Monday, the state commission plans to conduct a statewide telephone survey to determine hunter success.

Director L. D. Young Jr. says 45,000 residential telephone subscribers' names have been selected at random from directories in the state and one third of those subscribers will be contacted.

The survey, which will be conducted by commission personnel and volunteers, will be done through several exchanges, including Monroe, Jena, Newellton, Waterproof and Olla.

Young said the questions will deal with the number of trips made, bag success and similar data that will be analyzed and serve as an important tool in dove management.

He stressed that the telephone survey is not designed to provide a figure on the total dove bag in the state. The results will indicate the number of trips made and provide an idea of average hunter success as well as which portion of the three-way split seems to be the most productive to hunters in various areas.

Young said a similar survey was made during 1960-61, but we don't remember it.

Upcoming Squirrel Season

Squirrel season opens October 5th, and of course that means the hunters are wondering if we're going to have the bushytails like we did last year.

Last year was one of the best.

Different reports that we receive, all unofficial, say there are good numbers of squirrels this fall, that the young ones are in good evidence.

But that remains to be seen.

Remember last year when the hunting was so good, the reason for it was traced to the fact that the mast was plentiful the year before, leaving the squirrels in good shape to re - produce. Then last year, the mast was not plentiful, which would indicate that the young squirrel population this year would not be as good.

So we'll have to wait and see.

Another thing, a bad factor right now is the dry conditions of the woods, in view of the fact that recent rainfall has been lacking. It'll take several rains like the one here Thursday night to improve the woods conditions.

A few years back the squirrel season was closed because of the dry condntions. We need some rain.

New Pesticide Report

The U. S. Department of the Interior has released a report for 1961-62 that, according to the governemnt, shows added evidence of the effects of pesticides on wildlife.

Conducted by the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service, the report reveals that among samples of adult and young ducks and eggs taken north of Canada's Great Slave Lake, the eggs and immature ducks contained more pesticide residues than any adult sampled.

Scientists contend, according to a government release, that the adult ducks were exposed to pesticides somewhere on migration or wintering areas and passed the residues along to their progeny in a yet-unexplained manner.

All of the specimens were collected more than 500 miles north of any known insecticide application.

The report notes that 75 per cent of the United States has never been treated by any insecticide and that only about 5 per cent is treated each year, but adds that "contamination of wild forms is widespread."

Of interest to Louisiana, the survey disclosed a lack of breeding success in coastal areas — a fact that has led some people to suspect that these areas, which are frequently treated for mosquito control, are producing contaminated fish.

If you're interested in the report, copies are available from the Fish & Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C. 20240.

Little Man's Corner

Fishing was slow and interest in dove hunting dropped off slightly, but the littlemen made news afield.

Two crack, local shots, Harry Cooper and Clay Blakemore, had a good afternoon of dove shooting, reporting they bagged the limit in the Goodwill area.

Jimmy Thurman and his son, joining several Monroe hunters, had a good shoot in Franklin Parish. Mike Tarver of Monroe was in on a local party that did well in that area.

In the Ferriday area, Jack Huber, Billy Priester, Percy May and Al Strickland bagged a total of 30 birds. August Stone Jr. was in on a hunt that produced the limit around Lake St. John.

On the fishing scene, John Gatlin and Joe Dark of Jonesboro caught their limits of white perch in Saline Bayou in the Jena area.

W. M. Ainsworth of Lake St. John caught the limit of bass in St. John on the Hell Diver and the H&H. Harvey Gunner of Ferriday got the limit of white perch in the Blue Hole.

From Rayville, James Butler caught the limit of bream in St. John on red worms. St. John also produced good dove shooting for George Lee and Butch Cross, who live down there.

Harold Miller and Charles Sandifer of Vidalia got the limit of bass in Lake Concordia. Mr. and Mrs. John Witt of Ferriday got the limit of speckled perch at the Red River barpit.

Triandos, traded off by the Orioles last winter, ruined a magnificent pitching performance by his old batterymate, Robin Roberts. Roberts gave up only three hits and had a no-hitter until the sixth.

Jackets Topple Florida

By MIKE BARRON

ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia Tech kept its string of 37 consecutive home opening football victories intact Saturday, beating the Florida Gators 9-0 in the nationally televised first major college game of the season in a cold, steady rain.

Tech's strong defense kept the Gators bottled up in their own territory most of the game. Florida's deepest penetration was to Tech's 30 at the start of the second half.

Quarterback Billy Lothridge, Tech's "Mr. Do-It-All," booted a 35-yard field goal with 3:30 remaining in the first half. Halfback Joe Auer drove over from the 9-yard line with 5:35 seconds remaining in the third period. Lothridge missed the extra point.

Tech's powerful defense held the Gators to minus five yards rushing. The Gators also were hurt badly by several crucial 15-yard penalties. Florida was penalized 75 yards.

Florida's left-handed quarterback, Tom Shannon, was time and again thrown for big losses by Tech's hard-rushing line.

The Gators also rushed Lothridge hard and he was able to complete only four of 11 passes for 41 yards.

Tech went into the shotgun offense in the second period with Lothridge passing from several yards behind the line of scrimmage. But Tech was unable to gain.

Florida attempted to make a first down on fourth and one at its own 34, but a mixup in signals gave Tech the ball. On fourth down halfback Joe Auer ran 13 yards around left end for a first down at Florida's 14. However, the Gators held and moved Tech back to the Florida 18.

On fourth down Lothridge booted a 35-yard field goal for Tech's first score.

Tech missed another chance to score a few plays later when a blocked punt rolled out of the end zone. The play was called back when Tech was penalized five yards for being offside. Then a bad snap from center on the next play gave Tech the ball at the Florida 8, but back Ken Russell intercepted a Lothridge pass and Florida ran out the clock.

CHATTANOOGA NEXT?

Northeast's Top Squads Rip Subs In Scrimmage

Northeast State's first two teams rolled up a 46-0 score against the rest of the squad in a Saturday morning scrimmage as they warmed up for next Saturday's opener against powerful Chattanooga.

The scrimmage, under game conditions, was held under a steady drizzle and marked the end of the first phase of Northeast's fall practice. The squad, which has been working out twice a day since September 2, will begin one-a-day workouts next week, Coach Jack Rowan announced.

Rowan called the workout "a great improvement" over last Saturday's scrimmage.

"I believe we're a little ahead of last year's team at this time," Rowan said. "However, the boys weren't playing against Chattanooga out there and we've still got a lot of work to do before next Saturday."

Next week's drills will be held from 3:30 to 5:30 each afternoon.

The Tribe's top two units, the Whites and the Maroons, appeared about even on offense in the drill with the White unit appearing to have the edge on defense. The Blue and Red team got off its longest sustained drive of the morning against the Maroons, a 36-yard push that ended when Jack Trimble punted dead on the three.

Halfback Ronnie Myrick scored five touchdowns in the game, two on runs, two on passes and the other on an 80-yard punt return. End Jimmy Love scored once on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Bookie Shillcutt and fullback Ronnie Graham couted the other on a 10-yard smash up the middle as the workout ended. Quarterback Mike Cooper pitched both of Myrick's touchdown passes, one for 11 yards and the other for 37.

Fullback Willie Ragan kicked four out of five extra points, Shillcutt missed on one kick and a running play failed on the other PAT attempt.

Only seven plays later, after an interception by Ray Pommier, Cooper tossed an 11-yard pass to Myrick for another touchdown and Ragan made it 14-0.

Shillcutt hit Love with a 17-yard toss for the third touchdown, then missed the extra point.

Four plays later, Trimble kicked 48 yards to Myrick on the 20. The scatback threaded his way for 80 yards and his third touchdown to make the score 26-0. Ragan missed on the PAT.

In the second half, the White team took over on its three after a 41-yard Trimble punt and moved 97 yards in seven plays for a touchdown. Alton Thomas dashed 63 of the yards before being pulled down from behind on the 25 by Lynn Mitchell. Myrick turned right end for 17 yards and the touchdown and a fumble ruined an attempt for two points.

A few plays later, Cooper hit Myrick with a quick toss in the flat and the Oak Grove junior went 37 yards for his fifth and final TD. Ragan kicked the PAT.

Graham sparked the last scoring drive, gained 39 yards of the 62 in the push. He went over from 10 yards out, Ragan kicked the point after and the scrimmage ended.

Thomas was the game's top rusher with 99 yards in 10 carries, Ragan got 56 in 11, Graham 51 in eight, Morris Douglas 29 in seven and Pommier 24 in three.

Cooper completed two of two passes for 48 yards and two touchdowns and Shillcutt hit on two of six for 40 yards and TD. Myrick gained 42 yards in three runs, and caught two passes for 48 yards and two scores.

Trimble's kicking was the top feature of the reserves' play. He punted seven times for a 40.1-yard average, getting off only one poor kick, a 21-yarder off the side of his foot.

Home Tickets For Tiger Tilts Going Rapidly

BATON ROUGE (Special) — With the season opener against Texas A&M only one week away, the LSU athletic business office reported Saturday that 94 per cent of available tickets for Tiger home games have been sold.

Athletic Business Manager Jack Gilmore reported that only 4,425 tickets remain for the Texas A&M game and a sellout for the lid-lifter against the Aggies is almost assured. No family plan tickets are left for the opener, or for four other home games. Tickets in the family plan section are available only for the Tulane game. Last week a run on family plan tickets completed the sale in this section for all but the season finale. The Ole Miss Game has been sold out for months.

Gilmore also said that the Georgia Tech tickets were going at a rapid clip with only 2,625 tickets left for the October 5 clash with the Yellow Jackets. The inventory for the T.C.U. game (band day) showed 3,625 tickets remaining while Tulane's count revealed 4,718 available. Kentucky (homecoming) showed still 8,825 tickets unsold.

Memphis State Racks Southern

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Sophomore quarterback Olie Corgill provided offensive spark Saturday night for ambitious Memphis State University in a 28-7 football victory over Southern Mississippi.

Corgill reeled off a 45-yard sprint in the second quarter to set up the first Memphis State score and knifed two yards to get the second tally.

Memphis State kept Southern off balance throughout the game as its faster backs skirted Southern's end or exploded through momentary holes in the Southern line.

Memphis State drove 79 yards in six plays for its first touchdown midway in the second quarter. After Corgill's fine run, fullback Dave Casinelli bulled 11 yards through the line for the touchdown.

In the third quarter an interception by guard Charles Owens gave Memphis State the ball at the Southern eight to set up Corgill's touchdown.

Greentree Stable's Outing Class, who had upset Chateaugay here July 13 in the Dwyer Handicap, closed on the outside from last place in the field of seven 3-year-olds for third money.

Teal Season In September

With Sam Hanna

Yancey Says Possible

It wouldn't be like duck hunting, sitting in a blind in your shirtsleeves, mopping the sweat from your brow while waiting for that familiar whistle of wings.

That is, if you decided to go duck hunting instead

But if the Mississippi Flyway Council gets its way, you can get used to blowing your duck call in the heat, although in the case of most hunters that wouldn't be too much of a sacrifice.

Dick Yancey, the assistant director of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, tells us that there is a good possibility the Mississippi Flyway will get a special teal season next September.

The flyway council adopted a resolution by Yancey at its August 1st meeting requesting the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service to try a teal season in September.

ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia Tech kept its string of 37 consecutive home opening football victories intact Saturday, beating the Florida Gators 9-0 in the nationally televised first major college game of the season in a cold, steady rain.

Tech's strong defense kept the Gators bottled up in their own territory most of the game. Florida's deepest penetration was to Tech's 30 at the start of the second half.

Quarterback Billy Lothridge, Tech's "Mr. Do-It-All," booted a 35-yard field goal with 3:30 remaining in the first half. Halfback Joe Auer drove over from the 9-yard line with 5:35 seconds remaining in the third period. Lothridge missed the extra point.

Tech's powerful defense held the Gators to minus five yards rushing. The Gators also were hurt badly by several crucial 15-yard penalties. Florida was penalized 75 yards.

Florida's left-handed quarterback, Tom Shannon, was time and again thrown for big losses by Tech's hard-rushing line.

The Gators also rushed Lothridge hard and he was able to complete only four of 11 passes for 41 yards.

Tech went into the shotgun offense in the second period with Lothridge passing from several yards behind the line of scrimmage. But Tech was unable to gain.

Florida attempted to make a first down on fourth and one at its own 34, but a mixup in signals gave Tech the ball. On fourth down halfback Joe Auer ran 13 yards around left end for a first down at Florida's 14. However, the Gators held and moved Tech back to the Florida 18.

On fourth down Lothridge booted a 35-yard field goal for Tech's first score.

Tech missed another chance to score a few plays later when a blocked punt rolled out of the end zone. The play was called back when Tech was penalized five yards for being offside. Then a bad snap from center on the next play gave Tech the ball at the Florida 8, but back Ken Russell intercepted a Lothridge pass and Florida ran out the clock.

CHATTANOOGA NEXT?

Northeast's Top Squads Rip Subs In Scrimmage

Northeast State's first two teams rolled up a 46-0 score against the rest of the squad in a Saturday morning scrimmage as they warmed up for next Saturday's opener against powerful Chattanooga.

The scrimmage, under game conditions, was held under a steady drizzle and marked the end of the first phase of Northeast's fall practice. The squad, which has been working out twice a day since September 2, will begin one-a-day workouts next week, Coach Jack Rowan announced.

Rowan called the workout "a great improvement" over last Saturday's scrimmage.

"I believe we're a little ahead of last year's team at this time," Rowan said. "However, the boys weren't playing against Chattanooga out there and we've still got a lot of work to do before next Saturday."

Next week's drills will be held from 3:30 to 5:30 each afternoon.

The Tribe's top two units, the Whites and the Maroons, appeared about even on offense in the drill with the White unit appearing to have the edge on defense. The Blue and Red team got off its longest sustained drive of the morning against the Maroons, a 36-yard push that ended when Jack Trimble punted dead on the three.

Halfback Ronnie Myrick scored five touchdowns in the game, two on runs, two on passes and the other on an 80-yard punt return. End Jimmy Love scored once on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Bookie Shillcutt and fullback Ronnie Graham couted the other on a 10-yard smash up the middle as the workout ended. Quarterback Mike Cooper pitched both of Myrick's touchdown passes, one for 11 yards and the other for 37.

Fullback Willie Ragan kicked four out of five extra points, Shillcutt missed on one kick and a running play failed on the other PAT attempt.

Only seven plays later, after an interception by Ray Pommier, Cooper tossed an 11-yard pass to Myrick for another touchdown and Ragan made it 14-0.

Shillcutt hit Love with a 17-yard toss for the third touchdown, then missed the extra point.

Four plays later, Trimble kicked 48 yards to Myrick on the 20. The scatback threaded his way for 80 yards and his third touchdown to make the score 26-0. Ragan missed on the PAT.

In the second half, the White team took over on its three after a 41-yard Trimble punt and moved 97 yards in seven plays for a touchdown. Alton Thomas dashed 63 of the yards before being pulled down from behind on the 25 by Lynn Mitchell. Myrick turned right end for 17 yards and the touchdown and a fumble ruined an attempt for two points.

A few plays later, Cooper hit Myrick with a quick toss in the flat and the Oak Grove junior went 37 yards for his fifth and final TD. Ragan kicked the PAT.

Graham sparked the last scoring drive, gained 39 yards of the 62 in the push. He went over from 10 yards out, Ragan kicked the point after and the scrimmage ended.

Thomas was the game's top rusher with 99 yards in 10 carries, Ragan got 56 in 11, Graham 51 in eight, Morris Douglas 29 in seven and Pommier 24 in three.

Cooper completed two of two passes for 48 yards and two touchdowns and Shillcutt hit on two of six for 40 yards and TD. Myrick gained 42 yards in three runs, and caught two passes for 48 yards and two scores.

Trimble's kicking was the top feature of the reserves' play. He punted seven times for a 40.1-yard average, getting off only one poor kick, a 21-yarder off the side of his foot.

Home Tickets For Tiger Tilts Going Rapidly

BATON ROUGE (Special) — With the season opener against Texas A&M only one week away, the LSU athletic business office reported Saturday that 94 per cent of available tickets for Tiger home games have been sold.

Athletic Business Manager Jack Gilmore reported that only 4,425 tickets remain for the Texas A&M game and a sellout for the lid-lifter against the Aggies is almost assured. No family plan tickets are left for the opener, or for four other home games. Tickets in the family plan section are available only for the Tulane game. Last week a run on family plan tickets completed the sale in this section for all but the season finale. The Ole Miss Game has been sold out for months.

Gilmore also said that the Georgia Tech tickets were going at a rapid clip with only 2,625 tickets left for the October 5 clash with the Yellow Jackets. The inventory for the T.C.U. game (band day) showed 3,625 tickets remaining while Tulane's count revealed 4,718 available. Kentucky (homecoming) showed still 8,825 tickets unsold.

Memphis State Racks Southern

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Sophomore quarterback Olie Corgill provided offensive spark Saturday night for ambitious Memphis State University in a 28-7 football victory over Southern Mississippi.

Corgill reeled off a 45-yard sprint in the second quarter to set up the first Memphis State score and knifed two yards to get the second tally.

Memphis State kept Southern off balance throughout the game as its faster backs skirted Southern's end or exploded through momentary holes in the Southern line.

Memphis State drove 79 yards in six plays for its first touchdown midway in the second quarter. After Corgill's fine run, fullback Dave Casinelli bulled 11 yards through the line for the touchdown.

In the third quarter an interception by guard Charles Owens gave Memphis State the ball at the Southern eight to set up Corgill's touchdown.

Chateaugay Wins Jerome Handicap Run

NEW YORK (AP)—Chateaugay overhauled the pace setting Accordant in a tingling homestretch duel Saturday at Aqueduct and won the $57,300 Jerome Handicap by one-half length to strengthen his claim to the 3-year-old championship.

John W. Galbreath's Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes winner, given a cool waiting ride by Braulio Baeza, was winning his first big stakes since the 1½-mile Belmont June 8.

Greentree Stable's Outing Class, who had upset Chateaugay here July 13 in the Dwyer Handicap, closed on the outside from last place in the field of seven 3-year-olds for third money.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Muscular Trojans Open Defense Of Grid Crown

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

Muscular Southern California opens its quest for a rare second straight national collegiate football title in the rarified Colorado air Saturday.

Actually the first big campus gridiron weekend gets a Friday night sendoff when the fourth ranked Texas Longhorns of 1962 visit Tulane, Miami meets Florida State and Pitt invades UCLA.

Hoping for continued swashbuckling successes in the best tradition of top Trojan fan John Wayne, Southern Cal carries an 11-game winning streak into the encounter with the University of Colorado making its debut under new coach Eddie Crowder.

Loss of offensive fullback Ben Wilson and four lettermen tackles worries coach-of-the-year John McKay but Southern Cal returns 26 monogram winners including 17 of the first 21 linemen. SC's bid to become the first national champ to succeed itself since Oklahoma (1955-56) rests heavily on the four "B's"—All America linebacker-guard Damon Bame, end Hal Bedsole, quarterback Pete Beathard and halfback Willie Brown.

However, the Trojans must jell quickly in this warmup test with the rebuilding Buffs because the four following weeks bring Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame and Ohio State in succession.

Colorado will unveil former halfback Ted Somerville in his new role as quarterback, display speedsters Bill Harris and Leon Mavity plus a tougher defense. But depth and passing are subpar.

Not too many miles from Boulder, Colo., Washington bows in against Air Force minus defending Big Five rushing king Junior Coffey sidelined by a broken right foot. The improved Falcons, meanwhile, have more experience and quarterback Terry Isaacson.

Texas, unbeaten in the regular season last fall before losing to Louisiana State in the Cotton Bowl has handed field generalship chores to two-year defensive specialist Duke Carlisle who turned in four scoring tosses in the spring game.

Again featuring ball control and its Flip-Flop offense, the Steers face Tulane's recent Southeastern Conference doormats Friday night. The Green Wave went 0-10 last fall and already has lost No. 1 fullback George Cortez with torn knee ligaments. Coach Tommy O'Boyle compares his task to "running the Kentucky Derby with plow horses."

Miami coach Andy Gustafson launches his last season counting on intensive defensive drills to pay off. He knows the multiple talents of All-America quarterback George Mira but remembers how his one-man show fell short in the Gotham Bowl, 36-34, because of a porous defense.

Second-ranked Wisconsin warms up to the task of defending its Big Ten title by playing host to Western Michigan. The Badgers have speed and experience if only lightning will strike twice at quarterback. Ron VanderKelen had played only a few minutes before last fall yet directed Wisconsin to within five points of USC in the Rose Bowl. His successor is southpaw Hal Brandt.

Two Saturday games draw special attention: Northwestern at Missouri and Navy at West Virginia. Northwestern is a national championship candidate testing its improved defense against the always tough Tigers. Navy's Eastern title hopefuls send elusive Roger Staubach against third team All-America Jerry Yost in a battle of quarterbacks.

Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and Oklahoma are favored to successfully launch another big season. Talent-laden Ole Miss brings a 10-game winning streak and quarterback Perry Lee Dunn, converted from full, to bear against Memphis State.

Alabama, loser of only two games in the past three years, bumps into SEC rival Georgia just 12 months after the meeting on which the now celebrated, jury-refuted Wally Butts-Bear Bryant fix allegations were based. 'Bama again rules a solid favorite with Joe Namath still at controls and perhaps injured '62 backs Mike Fracchia and Larry Wall ready for combat.

Forced to rebuild its offensive backfield, Arkansas remains Texas' strongest challenger in the Southwest. The Porkers open against Oklahoma State whose new coach Phil Cutchin helped Alabama whip Arkansas in the '62 Sugar Bowl.

Oklahoma's Big Eight defenders play host to a Clemson eleven rated strong enough to win the Atlantic Coast crown. Two other ranked teams of last year who anticipate tougher sledding—Louisiana State and Penn State—meet Texas A&M and Oregon, respectively.

Dallas Netter Blasts Osuna

FORT WORTH, TEX. (AP)—Ham Richardson upset U.S. singles champion Rafael Osuna on Saturday and gained the finals of the Colonial National Invitation Tennis tournament against Chuck McKinley.

Richardson, at 31 only semi-active on the tennis circuit, battled to a 2-6, 6-3, 10-8 victory over the Mexican Davis Cup star.

Osuna, the No. 2 seed behind McKinley, held match point six times in the final set and six times Richardson rallied brilliantly.

McKinley crushed fourth-seeded Antonio Palafox of Mexico, 6-2, 6-3.

The 22-year-old Wimbledon champion, who spent the morning in a whirlpool bath to sooth an aching back, broke the Mexican Davis Cupper's service in the second game of the first set and coasted on in to the final berth.

A near-capacity crowd of 1,500 gave the third-seeded Richardson and Osuna a standing ovation after the tall Dallas belter clinched the match with a smooth backhand into the corner beyond Osuna's reach.

Giants Defeat Bucs As Pegan Smashes Homer

PITTSBURGH (AP)—San Francisco scored three unearned runs in the second inning on Jose Pagan's homer and the Giants went on to rout Pittsburgh, 7-3 Saturday.

Jack Sanford survived several Pirate outbursts but finally came out in the ninth after Pittsburgh rallied for two runs. Billy Pierce got the final out.

Bombers, Twins Split 2 Games On Tresh Blast

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP)—Tom Tresh's sixth-inning home run and Ralph Terry's steady pitching gave the American League champion New York Yankees a 3-1 victory over Minnesota Saturday night and a split in a day-night doubleheader.

The Yankees got a run off loser Gerry Arrigo, 1-1, in the third when Bobby Richardson singled in a run, and added another in the eighth off reliever Bill Dailey on Hector Lopez' run-scoring triple.

Minnesota got its only run in the fourth when Harmon Killebrew, on with a single, scored as Earl Battey hit into a double-play.

AS SEASON OPENS

Green Bay Healthiest Team In The League

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers began their quest for an unprecedented third consecutive National Football League championship Sunday with the healthiest team in the league.

Coach Vince Lombardi feels he'll need all his key players hale and hardy for their first three games of the new season—against the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions and Baltimore Colts.

"They're all tough," says Lombardi. "But if we can get through those first three, we'll be in good shape."

For the opener against the Bears at Green Bay, the Packers have been installed 10½ point favorites. The Packers have beaten the Bears five straight times in league competition since the 1960 season.

In the four other games on the Sunday schedule, the New York Giants' Eastern Division champs are rated "pick-'em" against the Colts at Baltimore; the Cleveland Browns are the choice by 5½ at home over the Washington Redskins; the Minnesota Vikings are picked by 3½ over the Forty Niners at San Francisco, and the Pittsburgh Steelers are 2½ over the Eagles at Philadelphia.

(The Dallas Cowboys played the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Lions met the Los Angeles Rams on Saturday night.)

Packers Without Hornung

Green Bay will start a season without Paul Hornung for the first time in seven years. But the other important holdovers from the 1962 championship team are in excellent shape.

There will be one rookie in the Packer lineup. Lionel Aldridge of Utah State will start in the defensive end post vacated when Bill Quinlan was traded.

The Bears will be missing defensive end Ed O'Bradovich and kick return specialist Billy Martin; Willie Galimore still is working his way back into shape after two knee operations, and a few other players are nursing assorted twists and bruises.

The Colts suffered a tough break when Lenny Moore was stricken with appendicitis Friday. Johnny Unitas is recovering from a sore shoulder, leaving the Colts in tough shape for the opener against the Giants. Flanker Jimmy Orr and defensive tackle John Diehl also are questionable starters.

Air Attack Strong

The Giants' Tittle-to-Shofner air threat is in good shape, but the same cannot be said for halfback Hugh McElhenny, flanker Frank Gifford and guard Darrell Dess.

The young Vikings, with four to six rookies in their starting units, find themselves in the unusual role of favorite against the Forty Niners. San Francisco has linebacker Mike Dowdle, defensive end Dan Colchico and rookie Floyd Dean hobbled by knee injuries.

The Vikings compiled an impressive 4-1 record in pre-season games while San Francisco failed to win in five exhibitions.

Five Cleveland players underwent X-ray examinations during the week and all, including Jimmy Brown, should be ready to play against Washington. This will be the Browns' first regular-season game under a coach other than Paul Brown.

The Steelers are in sound physical shape for their game against Philadelphia. The Eagles lost fullback Clarence Peaks during training and rookie pass-catcher Ron Goodwin because of an appendectomy during the past week. Philadelphia will start two rookies each on offense and defense.

Buffalo Crushes Gettysburg Club On 34-0 Shutout

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Buffalo, moving almost at will after a sluggish first quarter, crushed Gettysburg College 34-0 Saturday in the first football game of the season for both teams.

The Bulls marched 80 yards in 13 plays for their first touchdown, with Butler lunging over from the one with 4:45 gone in the second quarter.

John Stofa hit Pawloski in the end zone and reserve quarterback Don Gilbert teamed with Edward on a 20-yard pass play for other second-quarter touchdowns.

Burd bucked four yards for a touchdown in the third period, and late in the fourth Ryan ran 24 yards for the game's last six-pointer.

Two Weeks Left Before McNeese

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech footballers Monday start the final two weeks of work before meeting the team considered the best in the Gulf States Conference — McNeese State's Cowboys.

Tech's hard-working squad closed out the first two weeks with a scrimmage game before visiting newsmen Saturday. Two-a-day field sessions will drop off with the registration proceedings and start of classes this week.

Tech Coach Joe Aillet said he is delighted with the progress that his starting unit composed of four sophomores, two juniors, and five seniors.

"The starting unit has been very impressive and has the size, quickness, and mobility necessary. We think the starters will be able to hold their own with any starting club in the conference," Aillet said.

After the first two weeks of work, the starting club was composed of Charles Bourgeois of Sulphur and Wayne Davis of Shreveport Woodlawn at ends; Dan Irby of Bastrop and Robert Malone of Springhill at tackles; Richard Enis of Bossier City and Wally Martin of Ruston at guards; John Robert Williamson of El Dorado at center. Billy Laird of Shreveport Woodlawn is the quarterback, Paul Labenne of Shreveport Fair Park is the halfback, Gerald McDowell of Sulphur is the fullback and Coky Corkern of Bossier City is the flanker back.

Aillet said the major problem now is to bring along a second club that approaches the abilities of the first unit. "We feel as though the material is there and that we can get it up to the level desired. The youngsters have a lot of techniques to learn and they must find their own motivation," Aillet said.

The Tech mentor said after the second club is up to the standards desired, work will be concentrated on getting a third unit ready for combat for the tough schedule of games ahead.

The Techsters face three league foes in their first four games including McNeese Sept. 28 in Lake Charles, Southwestern here Oct. 12 and Northwestern State in Shreveport Oct. 19. The home opener is with Louisiana College Oct. 5.

YMCA To Begin Fall Program This Monday

In addition, special classes will be held in baton twirling and ballet for girls, skin and scuba diving for youth and adults, and a special exercise class emphasizing deep breathing and physical fitness for asthmatic children.

Rex Dillingham, certified YMCA instructor, will teach skin and scuba diving while George Smith, "Y" Physical Director will direct the exercise class for asthmatic children.

Bridge lessons will be taught by Mrs. J. H. Lary for beginners and persons interested are urged to attend an organizational meeting slated this week in the YMCA lobby.

Other instructors include Jim Williams, gymnastics and swimming, Agnes Newton, ladies slimnastics and swimming, Ronnie Smith, swimming and Edwin Davis, trampoline.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Muscular Trojans Open Defense Of Grid Crown

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

Muscular Southern California opens its quest for a rare second straight national collegiate football title in the rarified Colorado air Saturday.

Actually the first big campus gridiron weekend gets a Friday night sendoff when the fourth ranked Texas Longhorns of 1962 visit Tulane, Miami meets Florida State and Pitt invades UCLA.

Hoping for continued swashbuckling successes in the best tradition of top Trojan fan John Wayne, Southern Cal carries an 11-game winning streak into the encounter with the University of Colorado making its debut under new coach Eddie Crowder.

Loss of offensive fullback Ben Wilson and four lettermen tackles worries coach-of-the-year John McKay but Southern Cal returns 26 monogram winners including 17 of the first 21 linemen. SC's bid to become the first national champ to succeed itself since Oklahoma (1955-56) rests heavily on the four "B's"—All America linebacker-guard Damon Bame, end Hal Bedsole, quarterback Pete Beathard and halfback Willie Brown.

However, the Trojans must jell quickly in this warmup test with the rebuilding Buffs because the four following weeks bring Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame and Ohio State in succession.

Colorado will unveil former halfback Ted Somerville in his new role as quarterback, display speedsters Bill Harris and Leon Mavity plus a tougher defense. But depth and passing are subpar.

Not too many miles from Boulder, Colo., Washington bows in against Air Force minus defending Big Five rushing king Junior Coffey sidelined by a broken right foot. The improved Falcons, meanwhile, have more experience and quarterback Terry Isaacson.

Texas, unbeaten in the regular season last fall before losing to Louisiana State in the Cotton Bowl has handed field generalship chores to two-year defensive specialist Duke Carlisle who turned in four scoring tosses in the spring game.

Again featuring ball control and its Flip-Flop offense, the Steers face Tulane's recent Southeastern Conference doormats Friday night. The Green Wave went 0-10 last fall and already has lost No. 1 fullback George Cortez with torn knee ligaments. Coach Tommy O'Boyle compares his task to "running the Kentucky Derby with plow horses."

Miami coach Andy Gustafson launches his last season counting on intensive defensive drills to pay off. He knows the multiple talents of All-America quarterback George Mira but remembers how his one-man show fell short in the Gotham Bowl, 36-34, be cause of a porous defense.

Second-ranked Wisconsin warms up to the task of defending its Big Ten title by playing host to Western Michigan. The Badgers have speed and experience if only lightning will strike twice at quarterback. Ron VanderKelen had played only a few minutes before last fall yet directed Wisconsin to within five points of USC in the Rose Bowl. His successor is southpaw Hal Brandt.

Two Saturday games draw special attention: Northwestern at Missouri and Navy at West Virginia. Northwestern is a national championship candidate testing its improved defense against the always tough Tigers. Navy's Eastern title hopefuls send elusive Roger Staubach against third team All-America Jerry Yost in a battle of quarterbacks.

Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and Oklahoma are favored to successfully launch another big season. Talent-laden Ole Miss brings a 10-game winning streak and quarterback Perry Lee Dunn, converted from full, to bear against Memphis State.

Alabama, loser of only two games in the past three years, bumps into SEC rival Georgia just 12 months after the meeting on which the now celebrated, jury-refuted Wally Butts-Bear Bryant fix allegations were based. 'Bama again rules a solid favorite with Joe Namath still at controls and perhaps injured '62 backs Mike Fracchia and Larry Wall ready for combat.

Forced to rebuild its offensive backfield, Arkansas remains Texas' strongest challenger in the Southwest. The Porkers open against Oklahoma State whose new coach Phil Cutchin helped Alabama whip Arkansas in the '62 Sugar Bowl.

Oklahoma's Big Eight defenders play host to a Clemson eleven rated strong enough to win the Atlantic Coast crown. Two other ranked teams of last year who anticipate tougher sledding—Louisiana State and Penn State — meet Texas A&M and Oregon, respectively.

Dallas Netter Blasts Osuna

FORT WORTH, TEX. (AP) —Ham Richardson upset U.S. singles champion Rafael Osuna on Saturday and gained the finals of the Colonial National Invitation Tennis tournament against Chuck McKinley.

Richardson, at 31 only semi-active on the tennis circuit, battled to a 2-6, 6-3, 10-8 victory over the Mexican Davis Cup star.

Osuna, the No. 2 seed behind McKinley, held match point six times in the final set and six times Richardson rallied brilliantly.

McKinley crushed fourth-seeded Antonio Palafox of Mexico, 6-2, 6-3.

The 22-year-old Wimbledon champion, who spent the morning in a whirlpool bath to sooth an aching back, broke the Mexican Davis Cupper's service in the second game of the first set and coasted on in to the final berth.

A near-capacity crowd of 1,500 gave the third-seeded Richardson and Osuna a standing ovation after the tall Dallas belter clinched the match with a smooth backhand into the corner beyond Osuna's reach.

Giants Defeat Bucs As Pegan Smashes Homer

PITTSBURGH (AP)—San Francisco scored three unearned runs in the second inning on Jose Pagan's homer and the Giants went on to rout Pittsburgh, 7-3 Saturday.

Jack Sanford survived several Pirate outbursts but finally came out in the ninth after Pittsburgh rallied for two runs. Billy Pierce got the final out.

Bombers, Twins Split 2 Games On Tresh Blast

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP)—Tom Tresh's sixth-inning home run and Ralph Terry's steady pitching gave the American League champion New York Yankees a 3-1 victory over Minnesota Saturday night and a split in a day-night doubleheader.

The Yankees got a run off loser Gerry Arrigo, 1-1, in the third when Bobby Richardson singled in a run, and added another in the eighth off reliever Bill Dailey on Hector Lopez' run-scoring triple.

Minnesota got its only run in the fourth when Harmon Killebrew, on with a single, scored as Earl Battey hit into a double-play.

AS SEASON OPENS

Green Bay Healthiest Team In The League

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers began their quest for an unprecedented third consecutive National Football League championship Sunday with the healthiest team in the league.

Coach Vince Lombardi feels he'll need all his key players hale and hardy for their first three games of the new season—against the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions and Baltimore Colts.

"They're all tough," says Lombardi. "But if we can get through those first three, we'll be in good shape."

For the opener against the Bears at Green Bay, the Packers have been installed 10½ point favorites. The Packers have beaten the Bears five straight times in league competition since the 1960 season.

In the four other games on the Sunday schedule, the New York Giants' Eastern Division champs are rated "pick-'em" against the Colts at Baltimore; the Cleveland Browns are the choice by 5½ at home over the Washington Redskins; the Minnesota Vikings are picked by 3½ over the Forty Niners at San Francisco, and the Pittsburgh Steelers are 2½ over the Eagles at Philadelphia.

(The Dallas Cowboys played the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Lions met the Los Angeles Rams on Saturday night.)

Packers Without Hornung

Green Bay will start a season without Paul Hornung for the first time in seven years. But the other important holdovers from the 1962 championship team are in excellent shape.

There will be one rookie in the Packer lineup. Lionel Aldridge of Utah State will start in the defensive end post vacated when Bill Quinlan was traded.

The Bears will be missing defensive end Ed O'Bradovich and kick return specialist Billy Martin; Willie Galimore still is working his way back into shape after two knee operations, and a few other players are nursing assorted twists and bruises.

The Colts suffered a tough break when Lenny Moore was stricken with appendicitis Friday. Johnny Unitas is recovering from a sore shoulder, leaving the Colts in tough shape for the opener against the Giants. Flanker Jimmy Orr and defensive tackle John Diehl also are questionable starters.

Air Attack Strong

The Giants' Tittle-to-Shofner air threat is in good shape, but the same cannot be said for halfback Hugh McElhenny, flanker Frank Gifford and guard Darrell Dess.

The young Vikings, with four to six rookies in their starting units, find themselves in the unusual role of favorite against the Forty Niners. San Francisco has linebacker Mike Dowdle, defensive end Dan Colchico and rookie Floyd Dean hobbled by knee injuries.

The Vikings compiled an impressive 4-1 record in pre-season games while San Francisco failed to win in five exhibitions.

Five Cleveland players underwent X-ray examinations during the week and all, including Jimmy Brown, should be ready to play against Washington. This will be the Browns' first regular-season game under a coach other than Paul Brown.

The Steelers are in sound physical shape for their game against Philadelphia. The Eagles lost fullback Clarence Peaks during training and rookie pass-catcher Ron Goodwin because of an appendectomy during the past week. Philadelphia will start two rookies each on offense and defense.

Buffalo Crushes Gettysburg Club On 34-0 Shutout

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Buffalo, moving almost at will after a sluggish first quarter, crushed Gettysburg College 34-0 Saturday in the first football game of the season for both teams.

The Bulls marched 80 yards in 13 plays for their first touchdown, with Butler lunging over from the one with 4:45 gone in the second quarter.

John Stofa hit Pawloski in the end zone and reserve quarterback Don Gilbert teamed with Edward on a 20-yard pass play for other second-quarter touchdowns.

Burd bucked four yards for a touchdown in the third period, and late in the fourth Ryan ran 24 yards for the game's last six-pointer.

Two Weeks Left Before McNeese

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech footballers Monday start the final two weeks of work before meeting the team considered the best in the Gulf States Conference — McNeese State's Cowboys.

Tech's hard-working squad closed out the first two weeks with a scrimmage game before visiting newsmen Saturday. Two-a-day field sessions will drop off with the registration proceedings and start of classes this week.

Fans Will Honor Great Lefty On Big 'Warren Spahn' Night

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball's greatest southpaw pitcher will be honored with a "Warren Spahn night" here Sept. 17, and quietly bursting with pride in a front row seat will be the veteran mound star's No. 1 booster—Mrs. Warren Spahn.

What manner of man is this who at the age of 42, rewrites baseball record books every time he strikes out another hitter and wins another game for the only major league team he has ever served, the Milwaukee Braves?

His teammates call him the greatest. Sports writers find him receptive and accommodating, always willing to answer questions or pose for pictures. The fans love him. But if you really want to know what a man is like, you ask his wife.

Maintaining these double identities isn't hard for Mrs. Spahn. "Both have their advantages," she says. "But they are so different, really two different phases."

"We rarely talk baseball at home in Hartshorne, Okla.; we're busy with the ranch. It's almost 3,000 acres. So when February rolls around, we return to the game with new eagerness."

Warren Spahn is a family man, a husband and father who spends his off-field hours with his wife, their 14-year-old son, Greg, and a spunky grey poodle in a comfortable surburban split-level home here in summer and on their Oklahoma ranch in winter. Having earned something in the neighborhood of $80,000 annually for a number of years and invested it wisely, he also is a man of some wealth.

The tipoff on Spahn's personality can be found in his reaction to the committee's plans to hold a recognition night for him when the San Francisco Giants come to town for the last time this season. He approved the idea only upon a promise that he would not be presented expensive gifts and that any money collected would go into a scholarship fund for needy youngsters. If there's anything Spahnie doesn't need, it's another automobile.

For weeks, Milwaukee fans have been buying "Spahnie" buttons at 25 cents each, and the money will be used to establish a Warren Spahn Foundation for academic scholarships. Spahn is donating $500.00 to this himself. Some of the younger peanut vendors at the stadium gave up their commissions to sell "Spahnie" buttons instead of peanuts. And even opposing players come away from the stadium wearing "Spahnie" buttons on their coats.

Young Greg, who has returned to high school at Haileyville, Okla. near Hartshorne, won't miss his dad's big night. He'll fly in for the occasion. For most of the 1963 season, Greg worked as a clubhouse boy in the Braves' locker room. Like his mother, he follows Spahnie's baseball achievements closely and helps her compile the records that cover the great southpaw's 347 victories — more than any other left-hander in baseball history.

"It used to be easy to remember all the records," says LoRene. "Now there are so many we have to keep a scrapbook handy."

And LoRene does keep a record of every game—win or lose.

"Good games or bad, I keep all the sports pages, so when Warren tells our grandchildren what a great pitcher he was, I can show them both sides of the story."

Has she always been a baseball fan?

"When I met Warren, he was in the service. He hoped to get back into baseball, but thought he'd have to spend some time in the minors," said LoRene, a native of Tulsa, Okla.

"When Warren came back, the Braves asked us to postpone our wedding because they needed a left-handed pitcher right away. So Warren joined the club in his Army uniform and we got married in Boston instead of Tulsa."

"After that I had to learn about the game, so Warren asked some Boston sports writers to teach me how to score," LoRene admitted.

Now she rarely misses a game.

Warren told sports writers on the night of his four-hit victory No. 19 this season that LoRene was hospitalized for treatment of an ulcer. "It's the first home game I've started that she's missed since we were married. Except in 1948 when our son Greg was born."

LoRene added that the doctors weren't even going to let her listen to the game, but she finally persuaded them, or so she thought.

"They gave me some kind of sleeping pill, and I dozed off and only heard the first three innings and the ninth."

LoRene says Milwaukee fans readily recognize her, especially because of a local show which guests ballplayers' wives. "People don't ask me too many questions on the street," she said, "they know all about us from regular TV viewing."

Greg is known by Milwaukee and Hartshorne residents alike. LoRene says he's the first to admit he gets "quite embarrassed by all the fuss."

"That's why he always dreads the first day of school and all the attention," she said. "But once he's back, he's just one of the Haileyville High gang and he loves it."

Warren recently added his thirteenth 20-victory season.

But LoRene can recall his first 20-victory season quite well. In 1947, Warren's second full year with the Braves, he finished the season with a 21-10 mark.

"The club promised us a bonus if he won 15 games, so we didn't give much thought to his winning 20 until he got 15 wins so early in the season. We were both thrilled. I guess it's every pitcher's dream."

Warren set another record last month when he totaled 2,383 strikeouts for a new mark for left-handed pitchers. On Sept. 4 he got his fifth shutout of the season and 60th since winning his first game with the Braves, then in Boston, in 1946.

How has all this affected the Spahns?

LoRene says they are a close knit family, but confesses they don't have as much time together during the season as they would like.

"After baseball season, though, we can swim, ride horses, hunt and fish," she said.

MORE EXPECTED

Yankee Pennant Is No Surprise

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Tall Ralph Terry grinned broadly while the champagne rolled down his face during the New York Yankee victory celebration and sounded what should be an ominous warning to the rest of the American League.

"We're going to have a few more of these parties in the next few years, I think," Terry said. "This club has great young players. I may have trouble making the pitching staff next year."

Terry's enthusiasm was not the talk of momentary joy over the Yankees' winning their 28th pennant.

Most of the Yankees from Manager Ralph Houk down feel the same way.

"This club has got great young pitchers," aging Yogi Berra said. "And we've got a couple of more who weren't up here this year who will be just as good."

Houk has no trouble expounding on why his Bombers won the 1963 race with the earliest clinching date since 1941, when the Yankees won on Sept. 4.

"I guess you'd have to say our young pitchers, plus Pepitone, have been the biggest help this year," Houk began.

"But guys like Tresh, Blanchard and Lopez have all come through. Nobody on this club has a great record batting, but they've all helped. They've all had streaks to carry us along for a while.

"Yogi Berra has had a great year. He's been a great help letting me rest Elston Howard. And Yogi has hit as a pinch hitter.

"Better pitching than my first two years, and Pepitone has made our infield defense terrific. Bright has come along real good just when we needed him.

"I don't think losing Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris for long periods of time hurt us; the record shows that. Nor did losing them particularly make the others stronger morale-wise.

Monbouquette Wins Number 20 With Relief Aid

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Monbouquette, with liberal assistance from Dick Radatz, became the American League's third 20-game winner Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox slammed three home runs—two of them by Dick Stuart—and defeated the Kansas City Athletics, 6-4.

Monbouquette, who had failed in two previous attempts to win his 20th, was given a 4-0 lead in the first inning but barely lasted long enough to qualify for the victory, working five and a third innings. Radatz finished up without allowing a run.

WITH JOCKEY Wayne Chambers in the saddle, Mongo (no.2) topped the field to win the $125,000 Invitational feature over the turf course at Atlantic City Saturday. Never Bend (no. 3) was second and Carry Back (no.10) took third money. (AP Wirephoto)

Mongo Winner Of U.N. Race In Big Upset

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Montpelier Farm's Mongo won his second straight United Nations Handicap Saturday, beating nine rivals in the $125,000 invitational race on the Atlantic City infield grass course.

Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend set the pace most of the way in the 1 3-16-mile event and was second. The favored Carry Back finished third.

Mongo was ridden by Wayne Chambers and was timed in 1:55 1-5.

Never Bend, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, and with 118 pounds, paid $7.60 and $4.80. Carry Back, second top weight with 127 and piloted by Howard Grant, returned $3.80 to show.

Carry Back, the Cinderalla horse who captured the fancy of two contients, was seeking his first major victory since returning from stud. He was never too far out of things and put on his patented stretch run but could not catch the leaders.

In addition to Saturday's victory, Mongo has accounted for four other stakes—Kelly-Olympic, Bowie, Camden Nand Diamond State handicaps.

Completing the field in the U.M. were B. Major, Bronze Babu, Hot Dust, Hard Rock Man, Crimson Satan, The Axe 2nd and Cadiz.

Passing Wizard Sets More Marks

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Passing wizard George Bork set a NCAA college division record Saturday by throwing seven touchdown passes in leading Northern Illinois to a 55-7 football victory over Whitewater.

Bork, who now holds nine individual NCAA game and career passing records, hit end Hugh Rohrschneider with four of the scoring passes and finished the game with 25 completions in 31 attempts for 417 yards.

Floyd In Lead At Seattle Open

SEATTLE (AP) — Raymond Floyd, a 21-year-old Carolinian with a soft drawl and muscles, powered his way into first place Saturday in the $35,000 Seattle Open golf tournament by firing a third round 66, six-under-par.

The sparkling round, which started with an eagle 3 and finished with a 34, gave Floyd 201 for 54 holes.

Bobby Nichols of Corona, Calif., remained just one stroke off the pace with a 68, but Stan Leonard of Canada, Friday's leader, skidded to a 205 when he could only match par despite an eagle 3 on the final hole.

Moving into third place was Dow Finsterwald, whose 66 matched Floyd's as the day's best round. It gave him a 204 for three rounds.

Larry Mowry of Bonita, Calif., posted his third successive 69 and tied Billy casper at 207. Casper had a 70.

Few of the 8,500 spectators were in the right spot to see the day's most dramatic shot, a 216-yard hole-in-one worth $10,000 for Phil Rodgers of Perdido Bay, Fla.

2nd Gun Clinic Held Sept. 28 At Bancroft

Youngsters attending the Monroe Optimist Club's Second Gun Safety Clinic at Bancroft's Camp on September 28th will be treated to demonstrations of trap and skeet shooting by members of the Pine Hills Gun Club.

The clinic will be open to all youngsters for two sessions from 9:30 a.m. until noon and 2-4:30 p.m., according to chairman Gordon Surguine.

While the Ten Commandments of gun safety will be stressed by personnel of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, a highlight of the clinic will be trap and skeet shooting by top shooters from the Pine Hills Gun Club.

"We believe that skeet and trap shooting teaches a shooter safety methods and for that reason we are pleased to have the Pine Hills Gun Club participate on our program," Surguine explained.

He noted that youngsters need not attend both sessions, but can if they want to. Optimist certificates of participation will be presented to the kids attending.

Besides the skeet and trap shooting, demonstrations of the dangers of firearms will be featured by Art Hill of Winchester-Western and Otis McCollum, a gun demonstrator from Memphis.

They participated in the clinic held last May when about 350 youngsters attended.

Surgine said the Optimist Club believed the clinic would attract well over 500 youngsters this time, since the hunting seasons have begun.

"Now that the dove season has opened and since the squirrel season is opening October 5th, there is a great need for stressing the important of gun safety," Surguine said.

Sheriff Bailey Grant, assisted by his deputies, will serve as clinic master. Several deputies will serve as instructors, joined by members of the Monroe Police Department.

In addition, Boy Scouts in uniform will participate sponsored by the Ouachita Valley Council.

Instructions will be held on the Pine Hills Gun Club range at Bancroft's Camp located outside West Monroe.

Fans Will Honor Great Lefty On Big 'Warren Spahn' Night

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball's greatest southpaw pitcher will be honored with a "Warren Spahn night" here Sept. 17, and quietly bursting with pride in a front row seat will be the veteran mound star's No. 1 booster—Mrs. Warren Spahn.

What manner of man is this who, at the age of 42, rewrites the baseball record books every time he strikes out another hitter or wins another game for the only major league team he has ever served, the Milwaukee Braves?

His teammates call him the greatest. Sports writers find him receptive and accommodating, always willing to answer questions or pose for pictures. The fans love him. But if you really want to know what a man is like, you ask his wife.

Maintaining these double identities isn't hard for Mrs. Spahn. "Both have their advantages," she says. "But they are so different, really two different phases."

"We rarely talk baseball at home in Hartshorne, Okla.; we're busy with the ranch. It's almost 3,000 acres. So when February rolls around, we return to the game with new eagerness."

Warren Spahn is a family man, a husband and father who spends his off-field hours with his wife, their 14-year-old son, Greg, and a spunky grey poodle in a comfortable surburban split-level home here in summer and on their Oklahoma ranch in winter. Having earned something in the neighborhood of $80,000 annually for a number of years and invested it wisely, he also is a man of some wealth.

The tipoff on Spahn's personality can be found in his reaction to the committee's plans to hold a recognition night for him when the San Francisco Giants come to town for the last time this season. He approved the idea only upon a promise that he would not be presented expensive gifts and that any money collected would go into a scholarship fund for needy youngsters. If there's anything Spahnie doesn't need, it's another automobile.

For weeks, Milwaukee fans have been buying "Spahnie" buttons at 25 cents each, and the money will be used to establish a Warren Spahn Foundation for academic scholarships. Spahn is donating $500.00 to this himself. Some of the younger peanut vendors at the stadium gave up their commissions to sell "Spahnie" buttons instead of peanuts. And even opposing players come away from the stadium wearing "Spahnie" buttons on their coats.

Young Greg, who has returned to high school at Haileyville, Okla. near Hartshorne, won't miss his dad's big night. He'll fly in for the occasion. For most of the 1963 season, Greg worked as a clubhouse boy in the Braves' locker room. Like his mother, he follows Spahnie's baseball achievements closely and helps her compile the records that cover the great southpaw's 347 victories — more than any other left-hander in baseball history.

"It used to be easy to remember all the records," says LoRene. "Now there are so many we have to keep a scrapbook handy."

And LoRene does keep a record of every game—win or lose.

"Good games or bad, I keep all the sports pages, so when Warren tells our grandchildren what a great pitcher he was, I can show them both sides of the story."

Has she always been a baseball fan?

"When I met Warren, he was in the service. He hoped to get back into baseball, but thought he'd have to spend some time in the minors," said LoRene, a native of Tulsa, Okla.

"When Warren came back, the Braves asked us to postpone our wedding because they needed a left-handed pitcher right away. So Warren joined the club in his Army uniform and we got married in Boston instead of Tulsa."

"After that I had to learn about the game, so Warren asked some Boston sports writers to teach me how to score," LoRene admitted.

Now she rarely misses a game.

Warren told sports writers on the night of his four-hit victory No. 19 this season that LoRene was hospitalized for treatment of an ulcer. "It's the first home game I've started that she's missed since we were married. Except in 1948 when our son Greg was born."

LoRene added that the doctors weren't even going to let her listen to the game, but she finally persuaded them, or so she thought.

"They gave me some kind of sleeping pill, and I dozed off and only heard the first three innings and the ninth."

LoRene says Milwaukee fans readily recognize her, especially because of a local show which guests ballplayers' wives. "People don't ask me too many questions on the street," she said, "they know all about us from regular TV viewing."

Greg is known by Milwaukee and Hartshorne residents alike. LoRene says he's the first to admit he gets "quite embarrassed by all the fuss."

"That's why he always dreads the first day of school and all the attention," she said. "But once he's back, he's just one of the Haileyville High gang and he loves it."

Warren recently added his thirteenth 20-victory season.

But LoRene can recall his first 20-victory season quite well. In 1947, Warren's second full year with the Braves, he finished the season with a 21-10 mark.

"The club promised us a bonus if he won 15 games, so we didn't give much thought to his winning 20 until he got 15 wins so early in the season. We were both thrilled. I guess it's every pitcher's dream."

Warren set another record last month when he totaled 2,383 strikeouts for a new mark for left-handed pitchers. On Sept. 4 he got his fifth shutout of the season and 60th since winning his first game with the Braves, then in Boston, in 1946.

How has all this affected the Spahns?

LoRene says they are a close knit family, but confesses they don't have as much time together during the season as they would like.

"After baseball season, though, we can swim, ride horses, hunt and fish," she said.

MORE EXPECTED

Yankee Pennant Is No Surprise

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) —Tall Ralph Terry grinned broadly while the champagne rolled down his face during the New York Yankee victory celebration and sounded what should be an ominous warning to the rest of the American League.

"We're going to have a few more of these parties in the next few years, I think," Terry said. "This club has great young players. I may have trouble making the pitching staff next year."

Terry's enthusiasm was not the talk of momentary joy over the Yankees' winning their 28th pennant.

Most of the Yankees from Manager Ralph Houk down feel the same way.

"This club has got great young pitchers," aging Yogi Berra said. "And we've got a couple of more who weren't up here this year who will be just as good."

Houk has no trouble expounding on why his Bombers won the 1963 race with the earliest clinching date since 1941, when the Yankees won on Sept. 4.

"I guess you'd have to say our young pitchers, plus Pepitone, have been the biggest help this year," Houk began.

"But guys like Tresh, Blanchard and Lopez have all come through. Nobody on this club has a great record batting, but they've all helped. They've all had streaks to carry us along for a while.

"Yogi Berra has had a great year. He's been a great help letting me rest Elston Howard. And Yogi has hit as a pinch hitter.

"Better pitching than my first two years, and Pepitone has made our infield defense terrific. Bright has come along real good just when we needed him.

"I don't think losing Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris for long periods of time hurt us; the record shows that. Nor did losing them particularly make the others stronger morale-wise.

Cincinnati Cuts Cubs 8-4; Jay Wins In Relief

CHICAGO (AP)-The Cincinnati Reds cut loose for five runs in the third and three in the fourth Saturday in beating the Chicago Cubs 8-4.

The Reds kayoed starter Cal Koonce in the third as Bob Skinner's two-run double followed four singles. Vada Pinson's homer into the left field seats off Glen Hobbie highlited the fourth inning.

Joey Jay, who replaced Dom Zanni in the third, was the winner.

Monbouquette Wins Number 20 With Relief Aid

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Monbouquette, with liberal assistance from Dick Radatz, became the American League's third 20-game winner Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox slammed three home runs—two of them by Dick Stuart—and defeated the Kansas City Athletics, 6-4.

Monbouquette, who had failed in two previous attempts to win his 20th, was given a 4-0 lead in the first inning but barely lasted long enough to qualify for the victory, working five and a third innings. Radatz finished up without allowing a run.

WITH JOCKEY Wayne Chambers in the saddle, Mongo (no.2) topped the field to win the $125,000 Invitational feature over the turf course at Atlantic City Saturday. Never Bend (no. 3) was second and Carry Back (no.10) took third money. (AP Wirephoto)

Mongo Winner Of U.N. Race In Big Upset

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Montpelier Farm's Mongo won his second straight United Nations Handicap Saturday, beating nine rivals in the $125,000 invitational race on the Atlantic City infield grass course.

Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend set the pace most of the way in the 1 3-16-mile event and was second. The favored Carry Back finished third.

Mongo was ridden by Wayne Chambers and was timed in 1:55 1-5.

Never Bend, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, and with 118 pounds, paid $7.60 and $4.80. Carry Back, second top weight with 127 and piloted by Howard Grant, returned $3.80 to show.

Carry Back, the Cinderalla horse who captured the fancy of two contients, was seeking his first major victory since returning from stud. He was never too far out of things and put on his patented stretch run but could not catch the leaders.

In addition to Saturday's victory, Mongo has accounted for four other stakes—Kelly-Olympic, Bowie, Camden Nand Diamond State handicaps.

Completing the field in the U.M. were B. Major, Bronze Babu, Hot Dust, Hard Rock Man, Crimson Satan, The Axe 2nd and Cadiz.

Passing Wizard Sets More Marks

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Passing wizard George Bork set a NCAA college division record Saturday by throwing seven touchdown passes in leading Northern Illinois to a 55-7 football victory over Whitewater.

Bork, who now holds nine individual NCAA game and career passing records, hit end Hugh Rohrschneider with four of the scoring passes and finished the game with 25 completions in 31 attempts for 417 yards.

Floyd In Lead At Seattle Open

SEATTLE (AP) — Raymond Floyd, a 21-year-old Carolinian with a soft drawl and muscles, powered his way into first place Saturday in the $35,000 Seattle Open golf tournament by firing a third round 66, six-under-par.

The sparkling round, which started with an eagle 3 and finished with a 34, gave Floyd 201 for 54 holes.

Bobby Nichols of Corona, Calif., remained just one stroke off the pace with a 68, but Stan Leonard of Canada, Friday's leader, skidded to a 205 when he could only match par despite an eagle 3 on the final hole.

Moving into third place was Dow Finsterwald, whose 66 matched Floyd's as the day's best round. It gave him a 204 for three rounds.

Larry Mowry of Bonita, Calif., posted his third successive 69 and tied Billy casper at 207. Casper had a 70.

Few of the 8,500 spectators were in the right spot to see the day's most dramatic shot, a 216-yard hole-in-one worth $10,000 for Phil Rodgers of Perdido Bay, Fla.

2nd Gun Clinic Held Sept. 28 At Bancroft

Youngsters attending the Monroe Optimist Club's Second Gun Safety Clinic at Bancroft's Camp on September 28th will be treated to demonstrations of trap and skeet shooting by members of the Pine Hills Gun Club.

The clinic will be open to all youngsters for two sessions from 9:30 a.m. until noon and 2-4:30 p.m., according to chairman Gordon Surguine.

While the Ten Commandments of gun safety will be stressed by personnel of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, a highlight of the clinic will be trap and skeet shooting by top shooters from the Pine Hills Gun Club.

"We believe that skeet and trap shooting teaches a shooter safety methods and for that reason we are pleased to have the Pine Hills Gun Club participate on our program," Surguine explained.

He noted that youngsters need not attend both sessions, but can if they want to. Optimist certificates of participation will be presented to the kids attending.

Besides the skeet and trap shooting, demonstrations of the dangers of firearms will be featured by Art Hill of Winchester-Western and Otis McCollum, a gun demonstrator from Memphis.

They participated in the clinic held last May when about 350 youngsters attended.

Surgine said the Optimist Club believed the clinic would attract well over 500 youngsters this time, since the hunting seasons have begun.

"Now that the dove season has opened and since the squirrel season is opening October 5th, there is a great need for stressing the important of gun safety," Surguine said.

Sheriff Bailey Grant, assisted by his deputies, will serve as clinic master. Several deputies will serve as instructors, joined by members of the Monroe Police Department.

In addition, Boy Scouts in uniform will participate sponsored by the Ouachita Valley Council.

Instructions will be held on the Pine Hills Gun Club range at Bancroft's Camp located outside West Monroe.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Muscular Trojans Open Defense Of Grid Crown

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

Muscular Southern California opens its quest for a rare second straight national collegiate football title in the rarified Colorado air Saturday.

Actually the first big campus gridiron weekend gets a Friday night sendoff when the fourth ranked Texas Longhorns of 1962 visit Tulane, Miami meets Florida State and Pitt invades UCLA.

Hoping for continued swashbuckling successes in the best tradition of top Trojan fan John Wayne, Southern Cal carries an 11-game winning streak into the encounter with the University of Colorado making its debut under new coach Eddie Crowder.

Loss of offensive fullback Ben Wilson and four lettermen tackles worries coach-of-the-year John McKay but Southern Cal returns 26 monogram winners including 17 of the first 21 linemen. SC's bid to become the first national champ to succeed itself since Oklahoma (1955-56) rests heavily on the four "B's"—All America linebacker-guard Damon Bame, end Hal Bedsole, quarterback Pete Beathard and halfback Willie Brown.

However, the Trojans must jell quickly in this warmup test with the rebuilding Buffs because the four following weeks bring Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame and Ohio State in succession.

Colorado will unveil former halfback Ted Somerville in his new role as quarterback, display speedsters Bill Harris and Leon Mavity plus a tougher defense. But depth and passing are subpar.

Not too many miles from Boulder, Colo., Washington bows in against Air Force minus defending Big Five rushing king Junior Coffey sidelined by a broken right foot. The improved Falcons, meanwhile, have more experience and quarterback Terry Isaacson.

Texas, unbeaten in the regular season last fall before losing to Louisiana State in the Cotton Bowl has handed field generalship chores to two-year defensive specialist Duke Carlisle who turned in four scoring tosses in the spring game.

Again featuring ball control and its Flip-Flop offense, the Steers face Tulane's recent Southeastern Conference doormats Friday night. The Green Wave went 0-10 last fall and already has lost No. 1 fullback George Cortez with torn knee ligaments. Coach Tommy O'Boyle compares his task to "running the Kentucky Derby with plow horses."

Miami coach Andy Gustafson launches his last season counting on intensive defensive drills to pay off. He knows the multiple talents of All-America quarterback George Mira but remembers how his one-man show fell short in the Gotham Bowl, 36-34, because of a porous defense.

Second-ranked Wisconsin warms up to the task of defending its Big Ten title by playing host to Western Michigan. The Badgers have speed and experience if only lightning will strike twice at quarterback. Ron VanderKelen had played only a few minutes before last fall yet directed Wisconsin to within five points of USC in the Rose Bowl. His successor is southpaw Hal Brandt.

Two Saturday games draw special attention: Northwestern at Missouri and Navy at West Virginia. Northwestern is a national championship candidate testing its improved defense against the always tough Tigers. Navy's Eastern title hopefuls send elusive Roger Staubach against third team All-America Jerry Yost in a battle of quarterbacks.

Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and Oklahoma are favored to successfully launch another big season. Talent-laden Ole Miss brings a 10-game winning streak and quarterback Perry Lee Dunn, converted from full, to bear against Memphis State.

Alabama, loser of only two games in the past three years, bumps into SEC rival Georgia just 12 months after the meeting on which the now celebrated, jury-refuted Wally Butts-Bear Bryant fix allegations were based. 'Bama again rules a solid favorite with Joe Namath still at controls and perhaps injured '62 backs Mike Fracchia and Larry Wall ready for combat.

Forced to rebuild its offensive backfield, Arkansas remains Texas' strongest challenger in the Southwest. The Porkers open against Oklahoma State whose new coach Phil Cutchin helped Alabama whip Arkansas in the '62 Sugar Bowl.

Oklahoma's Big Eight defenders play host to a Clemson eleven rated strong enough to win the Atlantic Coast crown. Two other ranked teams of last year who anticipate tougher sledding—Louisiana State and Penn State—meet Texas A&M and Oregon, respectively.

Dallas Netter Blasts Osuna

FORT WORTH, TEX. (AP)—Ham Richardson upset U.S. singles champion Rafael Osuna on Saturday and gained the finals of the Colonial National Invitation Tennis tournament against Chuck McKinley.

Richardson, at 31 only semi-active on the tennis circuit, battled to a 2-6, 6-3, 10-8 victory over the Mexican Davis Cup star.

Osuna, the No. 2 seed behind McKinley, held match point six times in the final set and six times Richardson rallied brilliantly.

McKinley crushed fourth-seeded Antonio Palafox of Mexico, 6-2, 6-3.

The 22-year-old Wimbledon champion, who spent the morning in a whirlpool bath to sooth an aching back, broke the Mexican Davis Cupper's service in the second game of the first set and coasted on in to the final berth.

A near-capacity crowd of 1,500 gave the third-seeded Richardson and Osuna a standing ovation after the tall Dallas belter clinched the match with a smooth backhand into the corner beyond Osuna's reach.

Giants Defeat Bucs As Pegan Smashes Homer

PITTSBURGH (AP)—San Francisco scored three unearned runs in the second inning on Jose Pagan's homer and the Giants went on to rout Pittsburgh, 7-3 Saturday.

Jack Sanford survived several Pirate outbursts but finally came out in the ninth after Pittsburgh rallied for two runs. Billy Pierce got the final out.

Bombers, Twins Split 2 Games On Tresh Blast

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP)—Tom Tresh's sixth-inning home run and Ralph Terry's steady pitching gave the American League champion New York Yankees a 3-1 victory over Minnesota Saturday night and a split in a day-night doubleheader.

The Yankees got a run off loser Gerry Arrigo, 1-1, in the third when Bobby Richardson singled in a run, and added another in the eighth off reliever Bill Dailey on Hector Lopez' run-scoring triple.

Minnesota got its only run in the fourth when Harmon Killebrew, on with a single, scored as Earl Battey hit into a double-play.

AS SEASON OPENS

Green Bay Healthiest Team In The League

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers began their quest for an unprecedented third consecutive National Football League championship Sunday with the healthiest team in the league.

Coach Vince Lombardi feels he'll need all his key players hale and hardy for their first three games of the new season—against the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions and Baltimore Colts.

"They're all tough," says Lombardi. "But if we can get through those first three, we'll be in good shape."

For the opener against the Bears at Green Bay, the Packers have been installed 10½ point favorites. The Packers have beaten the Bears five straight times in league competition since the 1960 season.

In the four other games on the Sunday schedule, the New York Giants' Eastern Division champs are rated "pick-'em" against the Colts at Baltimore; the Cleveland Browns are the choice by 5½ at home over the Washington Redskins; the Minnesota Vikings are picked by 3½ over the Forty Niners at San Francisco, and the Pittsburgh Steelers are 2½ over the Eagles at Philadelphia.

The Dallas Cowboys played the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Lions met the Los Angeles Rams on Saturday night.)

Packers Without Hornung

Green Bay will start a season without Paul Hornung for the first time in seven years. But the other important holdovers from the 1962 championship team are in excellent shape.

There will be one rookie in the Packer lineup. Lionel Aldridge of Utah State will start in the defensive end post vacated when Bill Quinlan was traded.

The Bears will be missing defensive end Ed O'Bradovich and kick return specialist Billy Martin; Willie Galimore still is working his way back into shape after two knee operations, and a few other players are nursing assorted twists and bruises.

The Colts suffered a tough break when Lenny Moore was stricken with appendicitis Friday. Johnny Unitas is recovering from a sore shoulder, leaving the Colts in tough shape for the opener against the Giants. Flanker Jimmy Orr and defensive tackle John Diehl also are questionable starters.

Air Attack Strong

The Giants' Tittle-to-Shofner air threat is in good shape, but the same cannot be said for halfback Hugh McElhenny, flanker Frank Gifford and guard Darrell Dess.

The young Vikings, with four to six rookies in their starting units, find themselves in the unusual role of favorite against the Forty Niners. San Francisco has linebacker Mike Dowdle, defensive end Dan Colchico and rookie Floyd Dean hobbled by knee injuries.

The Vikings compiled an impressive 4-1 record in pre-season games while San Francisco failed to win in five exhibitions.

Five Cleveland players underwent X-ray examinations during the week and all, including Jimmy Brown, should be ready to play against Washington. This will be the Browns' first regular-season game under a coach other than Paul Brown.

Blanton Collier, Brown's successor, plans to alternate quarterbacks Jim Ninowski and Frank Ryan.

The Steelers are in sound physical shape for their game against Philadelphia. The Eagles lost fullback Clarence Peaks during training and rookie pass-catcher Ron Goodwin because of an appendectomy during the past week. Philadelphia will start two rookies each on offense and defense.

Buffalo Crushes Gettysburg Club On 34-0 Shutout

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Buffalo, moving almost at will after a sluggish first quarter, crushed Gettysburg College 34-0 Saturday in the first football game of the season for both teams.

The Bulls marched 80 yards in 13 plays for their first touchdown, with Butler lunging over from the one with 4:45 gone in the second quarter.

John Stofa hit Pawloski in the end zone and reserve quarterback Don Gilbert teamed with Edward on a 20-yard pass play for other second-quarter touchdowns.

Burd bucked four yards for a touchdown in the third period, and late in the fourth Ryan ran 24 yards for the game's last six-pointer.

AILLET SATISFIED

Two Weeks Left Before McNeese

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech footballers Monday start the final two weeks of work before meeting the team considered the best in the Gulf States Conference — McNeese State's Cowboys.

Tech's hard-working squad closed out the first two weeks with a scrimmage game before visiting newsmen Saturday. Two-a-day field sessions will drop off with the registration proceedings and start of classes this week.

Tech Coach Joe Aillet said he is delighted with the progress of his starting unit composed of four sophomores, two juniors, and five seniors.

"The starting unit has been very impressive and has the size, quickness, and mobility necessary. We think the starters will be able to hold their own with any starting club in the conference," Aillet said.

After the first two weeks of work, the starting club was composed of Charles Bourgeois of Sulphur and Wayne Davis of Shreveport Woodlawn at ends; Dan Irby of Bastrop and Robert Malone of Springhill at tackles; Richard Enis of Bossier City and Wally Martin of Ruston at guards; John Robert Williamson of El Dorado at center. Billy Laird of Shreveport Woodlawn is the quarterback, Paul Labenne of Shreveport Fair Park is the halfback, Gerald McDowell of Sulphur is the fullback and Coky Corkern of Bossier City is the flanker back.

Aillet said the major problem now is to bring along a second club that approaches the abilities of the first unit. "We feel as though the material is there and that we can get it up to the level desired. The youngsters have a lot of techniques to learn and they must find their own motivation," Aillet said.

The Tech mentor said after the second club is up to the standards desired, work will be concentrated on getting a third unit ready for combat for the tough schedule of games ahead.

The Techsters face three league foes in their first four games including McNeese Sept. 28 in Lake Charles, Southwestern here Oct. 12 and Northwestern State in Shreveport Oct. 19. The home opener is with Louisiana College Oct. 5.

YMCA To Begin Fall Program This Monday

The Twin Cities YMCA will begin its Fall Program Monday, Sept. 16.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Muscular Trojans Open Defense Of Grid Crown

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

Muscular Southern California opens its quest for a rare second straight national collegiate football title in the rarified Colorado air Saturday.

Actually the first big campus gridiron weekend gets a Friday night sendoff when the fourth ranked Texas Longhorns of 1962 visit Tulane, Miami meets Florida State and Pitt invades UCLA.

Hoping for continued swashbuckling successes in the best tradition of top Trojan fan John Wayne, Southern Cal carries an 11-game winning streak into the encounter with the University of Colorado making its debut under new coach Eddie Crowder.

Loss of offensive fullback Ben Wilson and four lettermen tackles worries coach-of-the-year John McKay but Southern Cal returns 26 monogram winners including 17 of the first 21 linemen. SC's bid to become the first national champ to succeed itself since Oklahoma (1955-56) rests heavily on the four "B's"—All America linebacker-guard Damon Bame, end Hal Bedsole, quarterback Pete Beathard and halfback Willie Brown.

However, the Trojans must jell quickly in this warmup test with the rebuilding Buffs because the four following weeks bring Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame and Ohio State in succession.

Colorado will unveil former halfback Ted Somerville in his new role as quarterback, display speedsters Bill Harris and Leon Mavity plus a tougher defense. But depth and passing are subpar.

Not too many miles from Boulder, Colo., Washington bows in against Air Force minus defending Big Five rushing king Junior Coffey sidelined by a broken right foot. The improved Falcons, meanwhile, have more experience and quarterback Terry Isaacson.

Texas, unbeaten in the regular season last fall before losing to Louisiana State in the Cotton Bowl has handed field generalship chores to two-year defensive specialist Duke Carlisle who turned in four scoring tosses in the spring game.

Again featuring ball control and its Flip-Flop offense, the Steers face Tulane's recent Southeastern Conference doormats Friday night. The Green Wave went 0-10 last fall and already has lost No. 1 fullback George Cortez with torn knee ligaments. Coach Tommy O'Boyle compares his task to "running the Kentucky Derby with plow horses."

Miami coach Andy Gustafson launches his last season counting on intensive defensive drills to pay off. He knows the multiple talents of All-America quarterback George Mira but remembers how his one-man show fell short in the Gotham Bowl, 36-34, be cause of a porous defense.

Second-ranked Wisconsin warms up to the task of defending its Big Ten title by playing host to Western Michigan. The Badgers have speed and experience if only lightning will strike twice at quarterback. Ron VanderKelen had played only a few minutes before last fall yet directed Wisconsin to within five points of USC in the Rose Bowl. His successor is southpaw Hal Brandt.

Two Saturday games draw special attention: Northwestern at Missouri and Navy at West Virginia. Northwestern is a national championship candidate testing its improved defense against the always tough Tigers. Navy's Eastern title hopefuls send elusive Roger Staubach against third team All-America Jerry Yost in a battle of quarterbacks.

Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and Oklahoma are favored to successfully launch another big season. Talent-laden Ole Miss brings a 10-game winning streak and quarterback Perry Lee Dunn, converted from full, to bear against Memphis State.

Alabama, loser of only two games in the past three years, bumps into SEC rival Georgia just 12 months after the meeting on which the now celebrated, jury-refuted Wally Butts-Bear Bryant fix allegations were based. 'Bama again rules a solid favorite with Joe Namath still at controls and perhaps injured '62 backs Mike Fracchia and Larry Wall ready for combat.

Forced to rebuild its offensive backfield, Arkansas remains Texas' strongest challenger in the Southwest. The Porkers open against Oklahoma State whose new coach Phil Cutchin helped Alabama whip Arkansas in the '62 Sugar Bowl.

Oklahoma's Big Eight defenders play host to a Clemson eleven rated strong enough to win the Atlantic Coast crown. Two other ranked teams of last year who anticipate tougher sledding—Louisiana State and Penn State—meet Texas A&M and Oregon, respectively.

Dallas Netter Blasts Osuna

FORT WORTH, TEX. (AP)—Ham Richardson upset U.S. singles champion Rafael Osuna on Saturday and gained the finals of the Colonial National Invitation Tennis tournament against Chuck McKinley.

Richardson, at 31 only semi-active on the tennis circuit, battled to a 2-6, 6-3, 10-8 victory over the Mexican Davis Cup star.

Osuna, the No. 2 seed behind McKinley, held match point six times in the final set and six times Richardson rallied brilliantly.

McKinley crushed fourth-seeded Antonio Palafox of Mexico, 6-2, 6-3.

The 22-year-old Wimbledon champion, who spent the morning in a whirlpool bath to sooth an aching back, broke the Mexican Davis Cupper's service in the second game of the first set and coasted on in to the final berth.

A near-capacity crowd of 1,500 gave the third-seeded Richardson and Osuna a standing ovation after the tall Dallas belter clinched the match with a smooth backhand into the corner beyond Osuna's reach.

Giants Defeat Bucs As Pegan Smashes Homer

PITTSBURGH (AP)—San Francisco scored three unearned runs in the second inning on Jose Pagan's homer and the Giants went on to rout Pittsburgh, 7-3 Saturday.

Jack Sanford survived several Pirate outbursts but finally came out in the ninth after Pittsburgh rallied for two runs. Billy Pierce got the final out.

AS SEASON OPENS

Green Bay Healthiest Team In The League

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers began their quest for an unprecedented third consecutive National Football League championship Sunday with the healthiest team in the league.

Coach Vince Lombardi feels he'll need all his key players hale and hardy for their first three games of the new season—against the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions and Baltimore Colts.

"They're all tough," says Lombardi. "But if we can get through those first three, we'll be in good shape."

For the opener against the Bears at Green Bay, the Packers have been installed 10½ point favorites. The Packers have beaten the Bears five straight times in league competition since the 1960 season.

In the four other games on the Sunday schedule, the New York Giants' Eastern Division champs are rated "pick-'em" against the Colts at Baltimore; the Cleveland Browns are the choice by 5½ at home over the Washington Redskins; the Minnesota Vikings are picked by 3½ over the Forty Niners at San Francisco, and the Pittsburgh Steelers are 2½ over the Eagles at Philadelphia.

(The Dallas Cowboys played the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Lions met the Los Angeles Rams on Saturday night.)

Packers Without Hornung

Green Bay will start a season without Paul Hornung for the first time in seven years. But the other important holdovers from the 1962 championship team are in excellent shape.

There will be one rookie in the Packer lineup. Lionel Aldridge of Utah State will start in the defensive end post vacated when Bill Quinlan was traded.

The Bears will be missing defensive end Ed O'Bradovich and kick return specialist Billy Martin; Willie Galimore still is working his way back into shape after two knee operations, and a few other players are nursing assorted twists and bruises.

The Colts suffered a tough break when Lenny Moore was stricken with appendicitis Friday. Johnny Unitas is recovering from a sore shoulder, leaving the Colts in tough shape for the opener against the Giants. Flanker Jimmy Orr and defensive tackle John Diehl also are questionable starters.

Air Attack Strong

The Giants' Tittle-to-Shofner air threat is in good shape, but the same cannot be said for halfback Hugh McElhenny, flanker Frank Gifford and guard Darrell Dess.

The young Vikings, with four to six rookies in their starting units, find themselves in the unusual role of favorite against the Forty Niners. San Francisco has linebacker Mike Dowdle, defensive end Dan Colchico and rookie Floyd Dean hobbled by knee injuries.

The Vikings compiled an impressive 4-1 record in pre-season games while San Francisco failed to win in five exhibitions.

Five Cleveland players underwent X-ray examinations during the week and all, including Jimmy Brown, should be ready to play against Washington. This will be the Browns' first regular-season game under a coach other than Paul Brown.

Blanton Collier, Brown's successor, plans to alternate quarterbacks Jim Ninowski and Frank Ryan.

The Steelers are in sound physical shape for their game against Philadelphia. The Eagles lost fullback Clarence Peaks during training and rookie pass-catcher Ron Goodwin because of an appendectomy during the past week. Philadelphia will start two rookies each on offense and defense.

Buffalo Crushes Gettysburg Club On 34-0 Shutout

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Buffalo, moving almost at will after a sluggish first quarter, crushed Gettysburg College 34-0 Saturday in the first football game of the season for both teams.

The Bulls marched 80 yards in 13 plays for their first touchdown, with Butler lunging over from the one with 4:45 gone in the second quarter.

John Stofa hit Pawloski in the end zone and reserve quarterback Don Gilbert teamed with Edward on a 20-yard pass play for other second-quarter touchdowns.

Burd bucked four yards for a touchdown in the third period, and late in the fourth Ryan ran 24 yards for the game's last six-pointer.

AILLET SATISFIED

Two Weeks Left Before McNeese

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech footballers Monday start the final two weeks of work before meeting the team considered the best in the Gulf States Conference — McNeese State's Cowboys.

Tech's hard-working squad closed out the first two weeks with a scrimmage game before visiting newsmen Saturday. Two-a-day field sessions will drop off with the registration proceedings and start of classes this week.

Tech Coach Joe Aillet said he is delighted with the progress of his starting unit composed of four sophomores, two juniors, and five seniors.

"The starting unit has been very impressive and has the size, quickness, and mobility necessary. We think the starters will be able to hold their own with any starting club in the conference," Aillet said.

After the first two weeks of work, the starting club was composed of Charles Bourgeois of Sulphur and Wayne Davis of Shreveport Woodlawn at ends; Dan Irby of Bastrop and Robert Malone of Springhill at tackles; Richard Enis of Bossier City and Wally Martin of Ruston at guards; John Robert Williamson of El Dorado at center. Billy Laird of Shreveport Woodlawn is the quarterback, Paul Labenne of Shreveport Fair Park is the halfback, Gerald McDowell of Sulphur is the fullback and Coky Corkern of Bossier City is the flanker back.

Aillet said the major problem now is to bring along a second club that approaches the abilities of the first unit. "We feel as though the material is there and that we can get it up to the level desired. The youngsters have a lot of techniques to learn and they must find their own motivation," Aillet said.

The Tech mentor said after the second club is up to the standards desired, work will be concentrated on getting a third unit ready for combat for the tough schedule of games ahead.

The Techsters face three league foes in their first four games including McNeese Sept. 28 in Lake Charles, Southwestern here Oct. 12 and Northwestern State in Shreveport Oct. 19. The home opener is with Louisiana College Oct. 5.

Fans Will Honor Great Lefty On Big 'Warren Spahn' Night

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball's greatest southpaw pitcher will be honored with a "Warren Spahn night" here Sept. 17, and quietly bursting with pride in a front row seat will be the veteran mound star's No. 1 booster—Mrs. Warren Spahn.

[illegible] manner of man is this w[illegible]t the age of 42, rewrites t[illegible]seball record books every t[illegible]e strikes out another hitter [illegible]s another game for the only major league team he has ever served, the Milwaukee Braves?

His teammates call him the greatest. Sports writers find him receptive and accommodating, always willing to answer questions or pose for pictures. The fans love him. But if you really want to know what a man is like, you ask his wife.

Maintaining these double identities isn't hard for Mrs. Spahn. "Both have their advantages," she says. "But they are so different, really two different phases."

"We rarely talk baseball at home in Hartshorne, Okla.; we're busy with the ranch. It's almost 3,000 acres. So when February rolls around, we return to the game with new eagerness."

Warren Spahn is a family man, a husband and father who spends his off-field hours with his wife, their 14-year-old son, Greg, and a spunky grey poodle in a comfortable surburban split-level home here in summer and on their Oklahoma ranch in winter. Having earned something in the neighborhood of $80,000 annually for a number of years and invested it wisely, he also is a man of some wealth.

The tipoff on Spahn's personality can be found in his reaction to the committee's plans to hold a recognition night for him when the San Francisco Giants come to town for the last time this season. He approved the idea only upon a promise that he would not be presented expensive gifts and that any money collected would go into a scholarship fund for needy youngsters. If there's anything Spahnie doesn't need, it's another automobile.

For weeks, Milwaukee fans have been buying "Spahnie" buttons at 25 cents each, and the money will be used to establish a Warren Spahn Foundation for academic scholarships. Spahn is donating $500.00 to this himself. Some of the younger peanut vendors at the stadium gave up their commissions to sell "Spahnie" buttons instead of peanuts. And even opposing players come away from the stadium wearing "Spahnie" buttons on their coats.

Young Greg, who has returned to high school at Haileyville, Okla. near Hartshorne, won't miss his dad's big night. He'll fly in for the occasion. For most of the 1963 season, Greg worked as a clubhouse boy in the Braves' locker room. Like his mother, he follows Spahnie's baseball achievements closely and helps her compile the records that cover the great southpaw's 347 victories — more than any other left-hander in baseball history.

"It used to be easy to remember all the records," says LoRene. "Now there are so many we have to keep a scrapbook handy."

And LoRene does keep a record of every game—win or lose.

"Good games or bad, I keep all the sports pages, so when Warren tells our grandchildren what a great pitcher he was, I can show them both sides of the story."

Has she always been a baseball fan?

"When I met Warren, he was in the service. He hoped to get back into baseball, but thought he'd have to spend some time in the minors," said LoRene, a native of Tulsa, Okla.

"When Warren came back, the Braves asked us to postpone our wedding because they needed a left-handed pitcher right away. So Warren joined the club in his Army uniform and we got married in Boston instead of Tulsa."

"After that I had to learn about the game, so Warren asked some Boston sports writers to teach me how to score," LoRene admitted.

Now she rarely misses a game.

Warren told sports writers on the night of his four-hit victory No. 19 this season that LoRene was hospitalized for treatment of an ulcer. "It's the first home game I've started that she's missed since we were married. Except in 1948 when our son Greg was born."

LoRene added that the doctors weren't even going to let her listen to the game, but she finally persuaded them, or so she thought.

"They gave me some kind of sleeping pill, and I dozed off and only heard the first three innings and the ninth."

LoRene says Milwaukee fans readily recognize her, especially because of a local show which guests ballplayers' wives. "People don't ask me too many questions on the street," she said, "they know all about us from regular TV viewing."

Greg is known by Milwaukee and Hartshorne residents alike. LoRene says he's the first to admit he gets "quite embarrassed by all the fuss."

"That's why he always dreads the first day of school and all the attention," she said. "But once he's back, he's just one of the Haileyville High gang and he loves it."

Warren recently added his thirteenth 20-victory season.

But LoRene can recall his first 20-victory season quite well. In 1947, Warren's second full year with the Braves, he finished the season with a 21-10 mark.

"The club promised us a bonus if he won 15 games, so we didn't give much thought to his winning 20 until he got 15 wins so early in the season. We were both thrilled. I guess it's every pitcher's dream."

Warren set another record last month when he totaled 2,383 strikeouts for a new mark for left-handed pitchers. On Sept. 4 he got his fifth shutout of the season and 60th since winning his first game with the Braves, then in Boston, in 1946.

How has all this affected the Spahns?

LoRene says they are a close knit family, but confesses they don't have as much time together during the season as they would like.

"After baseball season, though, we can swim, ride horses, hunt and fish," she said.

MORE EXPECTED

Yankee Pennant Is No Surprise

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) —Tall Ralph Terry grinned broadly while the champagne rolled down his face during the New York Yankee victory celebration and sounded what should be an ominous warning to the rest of the American League.

"We're going to have a few more of these parties in the next few years, I think," Terry said. "This club has great young players. I may have trouble making the pitching staff next year."

Terry's enthusiasm was not the talk of momentary joy over the Yankees' winning their 28th pennant.

Most of the Yankees from Manager Ralph Houk down feel the same way.

"This club has got great young pitchers," aging Yogi Berra said. "And we've got a couple of more who weren't up here this year who will be just as good."

Houk has no trouble expounding on why his Bombers won the 1963 race with the earliest clinching date since 1941, when the Yankees won on Sept. 4.

"I guess you'd have to say our young pitchers, plus Pepitone, have been the biggest help this year," Houk began.

"But guys like Tresh, Blanchard and Lopez have all come through. Nobody on this club has a great record batting, but they've all helped. They've all had streaks to carry us along for a while.

"Yogi Berra has had a great year. He's been a great help letting me rest Elston Howard. And Yogi has hit as a pinch hitter.

"Better pitching than my first two years, and Pepitone has made our infield defense terrific. Bright has come along real good just when we needed him.

"I don't think losing Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris for long periods of time hurt us; the record shows that. Nor did losing them particularly make the others stronger morale-wise.

Cincinnati Cuts Cubs 8-4; Jay Wins In Relief

CHICAGO (AP)-The Cincinnati Reds cut loose for five runs in the third and three in the fourth Saturday in beating the Chicago Cubs 8-4.

The Reds kayoed starter Cal Koonce in the third as Bob Skinner's two-run double followed four singles. Vada Pinson's homer into the left field seats off Glen Hobbie highlited the fourth inning.

Joey Jay, who replaced Dom Zanni in the third, was the winner.

Monbouquette Wins Number 20 With Relief Aid

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Monbouquette, with liberal assistance from Dick Radatz, became the American League's third 20-game winner Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox slammed three home runs—two of them by Dick Stuart—and defeated the Kansas City Athletics, 6-4.

Monbouquette, who had failed in two previous attempts to win his 20th, was given a 4-0 lead in the first inning but barely lasted long enough to qualify for the victory, working five and a third innings. Radatz finished up without allowing a run.

WITH JOCKEY Wayne Chambers in the saddle, Mongo (no.2) topped the field to win the $125,000 Invitational feature over the turf course at Atlantic City Saturday. Never Bend (no. 3) was second and Carry Back (no.10) took third money. (AP Wirephoto)

Mongo Winner Of U.N. Race In Big Upset

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Montpelier Farm's Mongo won his second straight United Nations Handicap Saturday, beating nine rivals in the $125,000 invitational race on the Atlantic City infield grass course.

Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend set the pace most of the way in the 1 3-16-mile event and was second. The favored Carry Back finished third.

Mongo was ridden by Wayne Chambers and was timed in 1:55 1-5.

Never Bend, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, and with 118 pounds, paid $7.60 and $4.80. Carry Back, second top weight with 127 and piloted by Howard Grant, returned $3.80 to show.

Carry Back, the Cinderalla horse who captured the fancy of two contients, was seeking his first major victory since returning from stud. He was never too far out of things and put on his patented stretch run but could not catch the leaders.

In addition to Saturday's victory, Mongo has accounted for four other stakes—Kelly-Olympic, Bowie, Camden Nand Diamond State handicaps.

Completing the field in the U.M. were B. Major, Bronze Babu, Hot Dust, Hard Rock Man, Crimson Satan, The Axe 2nd and Cadiz.

Passing Wizard Sets More Marks

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Passing wizard George Bork set a NCAA college division record Saturday by throwing seven touchdown passes in leading Northern Illinois to a 55-7 football victory over Whitewater.

Bork, who now holds nine individual NCAA game and career passing records, hit end Hugh Rohrschneider with four of the scoring passes and finished the game with 25 completions in 31 attempts for 417 yards.

FIRES SIX-UNDER

Floyd In Lead At Seattle Open

SEATTLE (AP) — Raymond Floyd, a 21-year-old Carolinian with a soft drawl and muscles, powered his way into first place Saturday in the $35,000 Seattle Open golf tournament by firing a third round 66, six-under-par.

The sparkling round, which started with an eagle 3 and finished with a 34, gave Floyd 201 for 54 holes.

Bobby Nichols of Corona, Calif., remained just one stroke off the pace with a 68, but Stan Leonard of Canada, Friday's leader, skidded to a 205 when he could only match par despite an eagle 3 on the final hole.

Moving into third place was Dow Finsterwald, whose 66 matched Floyd's as the day's best round. It gave him a 204 for three rounds.

Larry Mowry of Bonita, Calif., posted his third successive 69 and tied Billy casper at 207. Casper had a 70.

Few of the 8,500 spectators were in the right spot to see the day's most dramatic shot, a 216-yard hole-in-one worth $10,000 for Phil Rodgers of Perdido Bay, Fla.

2nd Gun Clinic Held Sept. 28 At Bancroft

Youngsters attending the Monroe Optimist Club's Second Gun Safety Clinic at Bancroft's Camp on September 28th will be treated to demonstrations of trap and skeet shooting by members of the Pine Hills Gun Club.

The clinic will be open to all youngsters for two sessions from 9:30 a.m. until noon and 2-4:30 p.m., according to chairman Gordon Surguine.

While the Ten Commandments of gun safety will be stressed by personnel of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, a highlight of the clinic will be trap and skeet shooting by top shooters from the Pine Hills Gun Club.

"We believe that skeet and trap shooting teaches a shooter safety methods and for that reason we are pleased to have the Pine Hills Gun Club participate on our program," Surguine explained.

He noted that youngsters need not attend both sessions, but can if they want to. Optimist certificates of participation will be presented to the kids attending.

Besides the skeet and trap shooting, demonstrations of the dangers of firearms will be featured by Art Hill of Winchester-Western and Otis McCollum, a gun demonstrator from Memphis.

They participated in the clinic held last May when about 350 youngsters attended.

Surgine said the Optimist Club believed the clinic would attract well over 500 youngsters this time, since the hunting seasons have begun.

"Now that the dove season has opened and since the squirrel season is opening October 5th, there is a great need for stressing the important of gun safety," Surguine said.

Sheriff Bailey Grant, assisted by his deputies, will serve as clinic master. Several deputies will serve as instructors, joined by members of the Monroe Police Department.

In addition, Boy Scouts in uniform will participate sponsored by the Ouachita Valley Council.

Instructions will be held on the Pine Hills Gun Club range at Bancroft's Camp located outside West Monroe.

Fans Will Honor Great Lefty On Big 'Warren Spahn' Night

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball's greatest southpaw pitcher will be honored with a "Warren Spahn night" here Sept. 17, and quietly bursting with pride in a front row seat will be the veteran mound star's No. 1 booster—Mrs. Warren Spahn.

What manner of man is this who, at the age of 42, rewrites the baseball record books every time he strikes out another hitter or wins another game for the only major league team he has ever served, the Milwaukee Braves?

His teammates call him the greatest. Sports writers find him receptive and accommodating, always willing to answer questions or pose for pictures. The fans love him. But if you really want to know what a man is like, you ask his wife.

Maintaining these double identities isn't hard for Mrs. Spahn. "Both have their advantages," she says. "But they are so different, really two different phases."

"We rarely talk baseball at home in Hartshorne, Okla.; we're busy with the ranch. It's almost 3,000 acres. So when February rolls around, we return to the game with new eagerness."

Warren Spahn is a family man, a husband and father who spends his off-field hours with his wife, their 14-year-old son, Greg, and a spunky grey poodle in a comfortable surburban split-level home here in summer and on their Oklahoma ranch in winter. Having earned something in the neighborhood of $80,000 annually for a number of years and invested it wisely, he also is a man of some wealth.

The tipoff on Spahn's personality can be found in his reaction to the committee's plans to hold a recognition night for him when the San Francisco Giants come to town for the last time this season. He approved the idea only upon a promise that he would not be presented expensive gifts and that any money collected would go into a scholarship fund for needy youngsters. If there's anything Spahnie doesn't need, it's another automobile.

For weeks, Milwaukee fans have been buying "Spahnie" buttons at 25 cents each, and the money will be used to establish a Warren Spahn Foundation for academic scholarships. Spahn is donating $500.00 to this himself. Some of the younger peanut vendors at the stadium gave up their commissions to sell "Spahnie" buttons instead of peanuts. And even opposing players come away from the stadium wearing "Spahnie" buttons on their coats.

Young Greg, who has returned to high school at Haileyville, Okla. near Hartshorne, won't miss his dad's big night. He'll fly in for the occasion. For most of the 1963 season, Greg worked as a clubhouse boy in the Braves' locker room. Like his mother, he follows Spahnie's baseball achievements closely and helps her compile the records that cover the great southpaw's 347 victories — more than any other left-hander in baseball history.

"It used to be easy to remember all the records," says LoRene. "Now there are so many we have to keep a scrapbook handy."

And LoRene does keep a record of every game—win or lose.

"Good games or bad, I keep all the sports pages, so when Warren tells our grandchildren what a great pitcher he was, I can show them both sides of the story."

Has she always been a baseball fan?

"When I met Warren, he was in the service. He hoped to get back into baseball, but thought he'd have to spend some time in the minors," said LoRene, a native of Tulsa, Okla.

"When Warren came back, the Braves asked us to postpone our wedding because they needed a left-handed pitcher right away. So Warren joined the club in his Army uniform and we got married in Boston instead of Tulsa."

"After that I had to learn about the game, so Warren asked some Boston sports writers to teach me how to score," LoRene admitted.

Now she rarely misses a game.

Warren told sports writers on the night of his four-hit victory No. 19 this season that LoRene was hospitalized for treatment of an ulcer. "It's the first home game I've started that she's missed since we were married. Except in 1948 when our son Greg was born."

LoRene added that the doctors weren't even going to let her listen to the game, but she finally persuaded them, or so she thought.

"They gave me some kind of sleeping pill, and I dozed off and only heard the first three innings and the ninth."

LoRene says Milwaukee fans readily recognize her, especially because of a local show which guests ballplayers' wives. "People don't ask me too many questions on the street," she said, "they know all about us from regular TV viewing."

Greg is known by Milwaukee and Hartshorne residents alike. LoRene says he's the first to admit he gets "quite embarrassed by all the fuss."

"That's why he always dreads the first day of school and all the attention," she said. "But once he's back, he's just one of the Haileyville High gang and he loves it."

Warren recently added his thirteenth 20-victory season.

But LoRene can recall his first 20-victory season quite well. In 1947, Warren's second full year with the Braves, he finished the season with a 21-10 mark.

"The club promised us a bonus if he won 15 games, so we didn't give much thought to his winning 20 until he got 15 wins so early in the season. We were both thrilled. I guess it's every pitcher's dream."

Warren set another record last month when he totaled 2,383 strikeouts for a new mark for left-handed pitchers. On Sept. 4 he got his fifth shutout of the season and 60th since winning his first game with the Braves, then in Boston, in 1946.

How has all this affected the Spahns?

LoRene says they are a close knit family, but confesses they don't have as much time together during the season as they would like.

"After baseball season, though, we can swim, ride horses, hunt and fish," she said.

MORE EXPECTED

Yankee Pennant Is No Surprise

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Tall Ralph Terry grinned broadly while the champagne rolled down his face during the New York Yankee victory celebration and sounded what should be an ominous warning to the rest of the American League.

"We're going to have a few more of these parties in the next few years, I think," Terry said. "This club has great young players. I may have trouble making the pitching staff next year."

Terry's enthusiasm was not the talk of momentary joy over the Yankees' winning their 28th pennant.

Most of the Yankees from Manager Ralph Houk down feel the same way.

"This club has got great young pitchers," aging Yogi Berra said. "And we've got a couple of more who weren't up here this year who will be just as good."

Houk has no trouble expounding on why his Bombers won the 1963 race with the earliest clinching date since 1941, when the Yankees won on Sept. 4.

"I guess you'd have to say our young pitchers, plus Pepitone, have been the biggest help this year," Houk began.

"But guys like Tresh, Blanchard and Lopez have all come through. Nobody on this club has a great record batting, but they've all helped. They've all had streaks to carry us along for a while.

"Yogi Berra has had a great year. He's been a great help letting me rest Elston Howard. And Yogi has hit as a pinch hitter.

"Better pitching than my first two years, and Pepitone has made our infield defense terrific. Bright has come along real good just when we needed him.

"I don't think losing Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris for long periods of time hurt us; the record shows that. Nor did losing them particularly make the others stronger morale-wise.

Monbouquette Wins Number 20 With Relief Aid

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Monbouquette, with liberal assistance from Dick Radatz, became the American League's third 20-game winner Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox slammed three home runs—two of them by Dick Stuart—and defeated the Kansas City Athletics, 6-4.

Monbouquette, who had failed in two previous attempts to win his 20th, was given a 4-0 lead in the first inning but barely lasted long enough to qualify for the victory, working five and a third innings. Radatz finished up without allowing a run.

WITH JOCKEY Wayne Chambers in the saddle, Mongo (no.2) topped the field to win the $125,000 Invitational feature over the turf course at Atlantic City Saturday. Never Bend (no. 3) was second and Carry Back (no.10) took third money. (AP Wirephoto)

Mongo Winner Of U.N. Race In Big Upset

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Montpelier Farm's Mongo won his second straight United Nations Handicap Saturday, beating nine rivals in the $125,000 invitational race on the Atlantic City infield grass course.

Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend set the pace most of the way in the 1 3-16-mile event and was second. The favored Carry Back finished third.

Mongo was ridden by Wayne Chambers and was timed in 1:55 1-5.

Never Bend, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, and with 118 pounds, paid $7.60 and $4.80. Carry Back, second top weight with 127 and piloted by Howard Grant, returned $3.80 to show.

Carry Back, the Cinderalla horse who captured the fancy of two contients, was seeking his first major victory since returning from stud. He was never too far out of things and put on his patented stretch run but could not catch the leaders.

In addition to Saturday's victory, Mongo has accounted for four other stakes—Kelly-Olympic, Bowie, Camden Nand Diamond State handicaps.

Completing the field in the U.M. were B. Major, Bronze Babu, Hot Dust, Hard Rock Man, Crimson Satan, The Axe 2nd and Cadiz.

Passing Wizard Sets More Marks

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Passing wizard George Bork set a NCAA college division record Saturday by throwing seven touchdown passes in leading Northern Illinois to a 55-7 football victory over Whitewater.

Bork, who now holds nine individual NCAA game and career passing records, hit end Hugh Rohrschneider with four of the scoring passes and finished the game with 25 completions in 31 attempts for 417 yards.

Floyd In Lead At Seattle Open

SEATTLE (AP) — Raymond Floyd, a 21-year-old Carolinian with a soft drawl and muscles, powered his way into first place Saturday in the $35,000 Seattle Open golf tournament by firing a third round 66, six-under-par.

The sparkling round, which started with an eagle 3 and finished with a 34, gave Floyd 201 for 54 holes.

Bobby Nichols of Corona, Calif., remained just one stroke off the pace with a 68, but Stan Leonard of Canada, Friday's leader, skidded to a 205 when he could only match par despite an eagle 3 on the final hole.

Moving into third place was Dow Finsterwald, whose 66 matched Floyd's as the day's best round. It gave him a 204 for three rounds.

Larry Mowry of Bonita, Calif., posted his third successive 69 and tied Billy casper at 207. Casper had a 70.

Few of the 8,500 spectators were in the right spot to see the day's most dramatic shot, a 216-yard hole-in-one worth $10,000 for Phil Rodgers of Perdido Bay, Fla.

2nd Gun Clinic Held Sept. 28 At Bancroft

Youngsters attending the Monroe Optimist Club's Second Gun Safety Clinic at Bancroft's Camp on September 28th will be treated to demonstrations of trap and skeet shooting by members of the Pine Hills Gun Club.

The clinic will be open to all youngsters for two sessions from 9:30 a.m. until noon and 2-4:30 p.m., according to chairman Gordon Surguine.

While the Ten Commandments of gun safety will be stressed by personnel of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, a highlight of the clinic will be trap and skeet shooting by top shooters from the Pine Hills Gun Club.

"We believe that skeet and trap shooting teaches a shooter safety methods and for that reason we are pleased to have the Pine Hills Gun Club participate on our program," Surguine explained.

He noted that youngsters need not attend both sessions, but can if they want to. Optimist certificates of participation will be presented to the kids attending.

Besides the skeet and trap shooting, demonstrations of the dangers of firearms will be featured by Art Hill of Winchester-Western and Otis McCollum, a gun demonstrator from Memphis.

They participated in the clinic held last May when about 350 youngsters attended.

Surgine said the Optimist Club believed the clinic would attract well over 500 youngsters this time, since the hunting seasons have begun.

"Now that the dove season has opened and since the squirrel season is opening October 5th, there is a great need for stressing the important of gun safety," Surguine said.

Sheriff Bailey Grant, assisted by his deputies, will serve as clinic master. Several deputies will serve as instructors, joined by members of the Monroe Police Department.

In addition, Boy Scouts in uniform will participate sponsored by the Ouachita Valley Council.

Instructions will be held on the Pine Hills Gun Club range at Bancroft's Camp located outside West Monroe.

Our poem today, these lines from Phyllis McGinley's "Ode to the End of Summer":

Summer, adieu.
Adieu, gregarious season.
Goodbye, 'revoir, farewell.
Now day comes late; now chillier blows the breeze on Forsaken beach and boarded-up hotel.
Turn up the steam. The year is growing older.
The maple boughs are red.
Summer, farewell. Farewell the sunburnt shoulder,
Farewell the peasant kerchief on the head.
Farewell the thunderstorms, complete with lightning.
And the white shoe that ever needeth whitening.
Farewell, vacation friendships, sweet but tenuous.
Ditto to slacks and shorts.
Farewell, O strange compulsion to be strenuous
Which sends us forth to death on tennis courts.
Farewell, Mosquito, horror of our nights;
Clambakes, iced tea, and transatlantic flights.
Unstintingly I yield myself to Autumn
And Equinoctial sloth.
I hide my swim suit in the bureau's bottom
Nor fear the fury of the aftermoth.
Forwearing porch and pool and beetled garden,
My heart shall rest, my arteries shall harden.
Welcome, kind Fall, and every month with "r in Whereto my mind is bent.
Come, sedentary season that I star in.
O fire-lit Winter of my deep content!
Amid the snow, the sleet, the blizzard's raw gust,
I shall be cozier than I was in August.
Safe from the picnic sleeps the unlittered dell.
The last Good Humor sounds its final bell,
And all is silence.
Summer, farewell, farewell.

Candlelight Vows Unite Louisiana Tech Seniors

Miss Penny Stubblefield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Stubblefield of Opelousas, became the bride of Ralph Gossard Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gossard of Olla, in a double ring ceremony Saturday, September 7 in Louisiana Memorial Methodist church at Opelousas.

Gladioli, palms and candelabra holding lighted tapers formed a background for the ceremony performed at 7 p.m. by Rev. H. C. Blount. Wedding music was presented by Mrs. M. H. McLeod, organist and B. A. Rose, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of silk organaz over sateen de peau, embellished with appliques of imported French lace embroidered with pearls. Her veil of illusion was attached to a crown of lace and pearls and she carried a bouquet of white roses and butterfly orchids.

The bride's attendants were Miss Vicki Stubblefield, maid of honor, Mrs. Don Hansen, matron of honor and Miss Jolene Lashute of Opelousas and Miss Rita Pilgreen, Ruston, bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of Persian blue peau de soie, with headdresses of self fabric roses, with veils in lighter blue. Each carried a long stemmed white chrysanthemum.

A reception followed in fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table held a tiered wedding cake decorated with fresh flowers and flanked by crystal candelabra. Another table held the punch bowl and an arrangement of gladioli and daisies.

The couple will be at home at 1109 Barnett Springs Road, in Ruston, where both are seniors at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Barbara Jane Oakley Weds Darrell Washam

Lighted white tapers amidst emerald palms, ferns and white bridal flowers formed a setting for the ceremony Saturday, September 14 in the First Baptist Church of Arcadia, which united in marriage Miss Barbara Jane Oakley and Darrell Eugene Washam. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Davis Oakley of Arcadia and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Washam, Transylvania.

Yellow flowers and ferns decorated the foyer of the church where Mrs. David Walker and Miss Sharon Corley presided at the guest book.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of white silk organza, lace and peau de soie, styled with fitted basque, scoop neckline and long sleeves tapered to petal points over the wrists. The bodice was embellished with lace appliques outlined in iridescent sequins and crystal beads. The skirt was fashioned with a back insert of seven tiers of lace, finished with scallops, which swept into a chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion drifted from a crown of pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses centered with a golden-throated white orchid.

Miss Susan Ruth Oakley attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Neva Claire Turner of Minden, cousin of the bride; Miss Betty Davis of Arcadia; Mrs. Harry Shackelford of Homer and Mrs. Ronald Walley of Transylvania. They were identically gowned in candlelight yellow dresses with bodices of lace and bell shaped skirts of silk organza over satin. Their headpieces were of matching organza roses with tulle veiling and each carried a white Bible, a gift of the bride, topped with yellow roses and streamers of pearls and tiny wedding bells.

Serving as best man for his brother was Don Washam. Groomsmen - ushers were Harvey Hales of Monroe; Harry Shackelford of Homer; Isaac Garrett of El Dorado, Ark., and Billy Poland of Arcadia.

Following the exchange of vows Mr. and Mrs. Oakley entertained with a reception in the social rooms of the church. Mrs. Joe Caskey greeted guests at the door.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length cloth of white satin with an overskirt of tulle and centered with a five branched silver candelabra, garlanded with stephanotis, lilies of the valley, yellow pompon chrysanthemums and frosted grapes. At one end the punch bowl was presided over by Mrs. Murray Washam and Mrs. Gene Cox. The tiered wedding cake, with cascades of yellow roses, encircled with fern and small yellow blossoms, was served by Mrs. Floyd Turner, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Thomas Beck, sister of the bridegroom.

Others assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Prentiss Oakley, Mrs. Homer Oakley, Mrs. Garland Storey Jr., Mrs. Donald Johnson, Mrs. Forrest McCallister and Mrs. John M. Lamkin Jr. Tea girls were Miss Kathy McCallister, Miss Nancy Turner, Miss Judy Storey, Mrs. John Newsom, Miss Patricia Cowser and Mrs. Charles Garrett. Rice bags were distrubuted by the bride's cousins, Misses Barbara Turner, Gaye Storey and Janie McConathy. Music throughout the reception was provided by Mrs. John Smelley.

After a wedding trip the couple will be at home at 3901 Harrison Street in Monroe, where Mrs. Washam is a member of the staff at College Place Baptist church and Mr. Washam will continue his studies at Northeast Louisiana State College. He will also serve as minister of music at Cherry Ridge Baptist church in Bastrop. For travel the bride wore a blue suit with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Daughter Distressed By Alcoholic Father

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: Every once in a while I receive a letter that I can print without changing a single word or dropping so much as a comma. I received such a letter today and here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: This is not a letter asking for help. There IS no help for me and I know it. My letter is a simple plea to the parents of teenagers to please consider what their excessive drinking does to their children.

My father is an alcoholic. If he only knew how many times he has made me ashamed to be his daughter. If he only knew the times my girl friends have come over and seen him dead drunk—and how I shudder when boys come to take me out and I must rush to meet them on the front steps so they won't get inside the house.

I hate to come home because I never know what I will find here. My father is downstairs now, sick as a dog, but tomorrow night he will go out and do the same thing over again.

I beg of parents, please stop hurting us kids. — I Used To Love Him

Dear Friend: There IS help for you — if you will reach out for it. Children of alcoholics have found comfort, useful information and guidance through Al-Ateen. Write to The Al-Anon Family Group Headquarters, Inc., Post Office Box No. 182, Madison Square Station, New York 10, N.Y.

Dear Ann Landers: Is there any polite way to tell a woman who weighs 240 pounds how to sit down in a chair?

I have a friend who is just as lovely as she can be, but when she comes to my home, my heart is in my mouth. She has broken two chairs and wrecked my sofa springs. I have fine furniture, Ann, but no furniture is built to take the beating she gives it.

She comes into a room and just backs up to a chair and sort of falls on it. I can almost hear the springs popping and the wood splitting. My husband is sick of her thoughtlessness and feels that we should send her the bill for any future damage done to our furniture. I just can't bring myself to do it.

Please tell me what to do about this embarrassing and expensive problem. — Baffled Binnie

Dear Binnie: You can't send a friend a bill for damage done unintentionally in your home. It would be nice, however, if the friend offered to pay.

Since she does not offer, your best bet is to lead her by the arm to the chair which can best hold her. And don't let her loose until she has parked herself.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife has a 24-year-old brother who is getting to be a real pain in the neck.

When we first moved to this apartment my wife made the mistake of giving Hymie a key. When I asked her why she did it she said, "Because he asked for it." This sounded like a pretty sensible reason at the time. Now I'm not so sure. Several nights a week when we come home from work, there is Hymie — sitting in my chair, smoking my cigars and drinking my Bourbon. He never brings anything over here except his thirst and appetite — and sometimes a friend or two.

Is there a tactful way of getting the key back? We've really had it. — Lancaster, Penn.

Dear Lan: Change the lock on the doors. Tell Hymie you are doing it as an extra precaution against "invaders."

If he asks for a key to the new lock, you can either tell him "no" or prepare to put up with the moocher, probably for the rest of his life — and yours.

Planning a wedding? Leave nothing to chance. ANN LANDERS' newest booklet, "The Bride's Guide," has all the answers (from announcing the engagement to "who pays for what"). To receive your copy, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35c in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of Monroe Morning World, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A crown of pearls held her elbow length veil of tulle and she wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the groom.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD MARVIN LADD

'The Look' This Season Is Sportive, Sultry

"The Look" for fall in fashion is really two looks, one sportive and casual, the other sultry and sophisticated.

It isn't a question of choosing between them, for designers have so planned things that both looks belong in a woman's wardrobe and complement each other. The sportive look goes out mostly, though not exclusively, by day, while the sultry look makes its elegant appearance for late day and evening.

Sportive look introduces a separates feeling into dresses and suits as well as sportswear. Its ultimate expression is in the jaunty suit with long - sleeved blouse and sleeveless vest, and among the indispensable finishing touches are high boots or bootshoes, soft profile hats and textured stockings.

Fashion emphasis for the sportive is on fine tailoring and menswear fabrics such as herringbones and pin stripes, used in contrast with very feminine fabrics — velvet, for example.

Coats go sportive in demi - fit styles, in capes and cape effects, in new versions of classic reefers and chesterfields, in shapes borrowed, variously, from bathrobes and raincoats. Popular and sportful sleeve treatment is the raglan.

Sultry and sophisticated look is reflected by curve - conscious after - five fashions in elegant fabrics. Supple crepes, lavish brocades and gleaming velvets appear among the fashion favorites. Many are enhanced by beading. The long dress for evening occasions, with accompanying long coat, gets special attention.

Whether sportive or sophisticated, one thing is outstanding about "The Look" this season. It is definitely fall '63, new - looking and fresh, with fashion impact women will appreciate.

HOMEWORK CORNER

If you have children of school age, install a special "homework corner" in the kitchen. If the youngsters use the table you work on or eat on as a homework area, they will be disturbed from time to time. But if you set up a special corner, their books and working materials can remain permanently undisturbed.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I receive many letters from readers who say: "What sort of an attitude can a girl or woman who is not beautiful develop in order to cope with the women who are beautiful? Let's face it, boys, and even men, give the beautiful one the attention. How can we avoid feeling inferior? I am not homely, but I am not beautiful."

First, let's get some facts straight! Physical beauty CAN be a great blessing, or it can be a great handicap. There is no use pretending that being born beautiful is not wonderful. It is wonderful if you have more important characteristics to back it up with, such as verve, warmth, tenderness, kindness, gaiety, understanding, infinite variety in outlook and interests and just plain friendliness.

Some of the most famous and fascinating women are not beautiful at all, and some of the mousiest looking women marry the most attractive men, causing people to say, "I don't see what he saw in her."

Well, perhaps he wanted something more to live with than a classical nose, or gorgeous hair or long eyelashes or the figure divine. Maybe he wanted an inner-glow at which to warm his heart or someone who is fun to live with or someone who always makes him feel comfortable. This separates the men from the boys.

Don't get me wrong! Just because a woman is beautiful is no reason to suspect her of lacking the other qualities I have mentioned. I only suggest that it must be a temptation to rely on beauty alone for attention. Many beautiful women do this and therefore fail to develop a personality and approach to life which makes them popular and loved long after beauty fades.

Not being born beautiful was a much greater hardship before the days of permanents, hair coloring, tooth straightening, dermatologists and the myriad cosmetic aids now available.

With all the know-how of modern women today, they can all be attractive. Beauty is not so important as aliveness and verve. Add new interests to your life. Become good at some sport. Develop a real interest in others and what they are interested in. Be gay. Be happy. Take advantage of all the beauty aids and correct any defects in figure. Learn how to dress smartly and then forget how you look!

Bottles Make Unique Containers For Flowers

In this era of casual entertaining in home recreation rooms, empty bottles can be most useful as containers for unusual floral arrangements.

With few exceptions, flower arrangements in bottles are informal in feeling since the very nature of the container itself is casual and unassuming, points out the Society of American Florists.

The clever hostess can use a wide variety of flowers and green foliage in such arrangements. These vary from a simple rhythmic spray to a grouping of blooms to a highly stylized arrangement of cut flowers.

Bottle containers inflict few limitations. One of these is that most bottles have a slenderness that requires a vertical design in the arrangements. A few types of bottles, however, have squat shapes that call for low rounded flower arrangements.

Generally speaking, bottles are symmetrical in design, but the over all arrangement is most attractive in an asymmetrical pattern or informal balance.

The hostess should seek compatability between the flowers and container in size, color, texture, and spirit. For example, the Society suggests the casual composition required with a Mexican bottle could be handled with five sprays of celosia, ranging in color from pink to wine, and a spray of plum foliage.

Another suggestion is for a wine bottle in wicker which is casual and ties in with either modern or traditional decor. This arrangement can include three white pompons, grouped informally with autumn grasses.

The round form of a Victorian milk glass bottle calls for a rounded form in an arrangement. White mums with a tint of yellow, and five yellow roses with curving stems, could be used advantageously.

To show how flexible bottle container arrangements can be, the Society suggests placing a floral arrangement in a suitable bottle on a hanging shelf. In the arrangement, use spider plant branches with one branch falling below the shelf. In the center of the arrangement, where a broader form is needed, a possibility is a Spathiphyllum.

One of the many assets of bottle container arrangements is that you don't need mechanical aids such as needle holders or chicken wire. The slim necks of bottles support flowers adequately.

However, warns the Society, don't crowd the stems. They may become bruised and unable to draw water up to the blooms.

Gloves On Hand In Sportive Fall Fashion

On hand for off-hand, sportive fashions are classic, casual gloves. Cuffs, gauntlets, flares show up in longer - than short gloves, while the pigskin shortie takes a top position.

Both knit and leather contribute to the casual air, often in combination — the wool knit glove with leather palm. Cotton and miracle fabrics win new fashion favor, in smartly tailored versions.

Important feature of many fall gloves is the lining — silk or silk-look in the dressier styles, warm lamb-look and other furry favorites for comfort in cold weather.

Ladd-Robinson Nuptials Solemnized In Vicksburg

Chapel of the First Baptist church in Vicksburg, Mississippi was scene of the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Francis Ann Robinson of Winnsboro and Donald Marvin Ladd of Vicksburg. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John George Robinson of Winnsboro and Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Ladd of Gulfport, Miss.

Dr. John G. McCall performed the double ring ceremony on September 1 at 2 p.m. Decorating the altar were baskets of bronze mums with yellow gladioli and pompons alternated with branched candelabra.

Mrs. Earnest Seago, organist, played traditional wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, George Tucker.

Wearing a floor length gown of silk organza over satin the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was styled with Empire bodice, short cap sleeves and full skirt, bordered at the hem with embroidered roses, which were repeated at the neckline. A crown of pearls held her elbow length veil of tulle and she wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the groom.

Miss Carol Ann Carr of Rolling Fort, Miss., served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Libby Jones of Belzoni, Miss., and Miss Janie Way of Port Gibson, Miss. They wore gowns of crown gold peau de soie, styled with fitted bodices and bell skirts, and carried bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums and pompons. Their headdresses of gold tulle were attached to small pillbox hats crested with gold roses.

Mr. Ladd served his son as best man and groomsmen were Douglas Ladd of Memphis, Tenn., and James Robinson of Winnsboro.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a navy blue faille model with black accessories and a lavender orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a green silk dress with matching hat and black accessories and her corsage was also a lavender orchid.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church which was decorated with yellow gladioli and bronze mums. Centered with a candelabra and bronze chrysanthemums the bride's table held a clover leaf wedding cake and punch bowl. Miss Beverly Wood served the cake and tea girls were Miss Glenda Stout and Miss Viola Fratiza. Mrs. Barbara Burroughs had charge of the guest book.

For a wedding trip to Florida the bride was wearing a navy faille costume with black patent accessories. They will be at home at 1636 Monroe Street in Vicksburg, Miss. Mr. Ladd is a graduate of Mississippi State University and the bride is a graduate of Mercy Hospital School of Nursing in Vicksburg.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I receive many letters from readers who say: "What sort of an attitude can a girl or woman who is not beautiful develop in order to cope with the women who are beautiful? Let's face it, boys, and even men, give the beautiful one the attention. How can we avoid feeling inferior? I am not homely, but I am not beautiful."

First, let's get some facts straight! Physical beauty CAN be a great blessing, or it can be a great handicap. There is no use pretending that being born beautiful is not wonderful. 'The Look' This Season Is Sportive, Sultry

"The Look" for fall in fashion is really two looks, one sportive and casual, the other sultry and sophisticated.

It isn't a question of choosing between them, for designers have so planned things that both looks belong in a woman's wardrobe and complement each other. The sportive look goes out mostly, though not exclusively, by day, while the sultry look makes its elegant appearance for late day and evening.

Sportive look introduces a separates feeling into dresses and suits as well as sportswear. Its ultimate expression is in the jaunty suit with long - sleeved blouse and sleeveless vest, and among the indispensable finishing touches are high boots or boot-shoes, soft profile hats and textured stockings.

Fashion emphasis for the sportive is on fine tailoring and menswear fabrics such as herringbones and pin stripes, used in contrast with very feminine fabrics — velvet, for example.

Coats go sportive in demi - fit styles, in capes and cape effects, in new versions of classic reefers and chesterfields, in shapes borrowed, variously, from bathrobes and raincoats. Popular and sportful sleeve treatment is the raglan.

Sultry and sophisticated look is reflected by curve - conscious after - five fashions in elegant fabrics. Supple crepes, lavish brocades and gleaming velvets appear among the fashion favorites. Many are enhanced by beading. The long dress for evening occasions, with accompanying long coat, gets special attention.

Whether sportive or sophisticated, one thing is outstanding about "The Look" this season. It is definitely fall '63, new - looking and fresh, with fashion impact women will appreciate.

Handbags Yield Untold Valuables

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

Despite sugar bowls and savings and loans, many ladies bank on handbags. Nothing else they put their good money into pays off so well in fashion interest.

Actually, there is all kind of interest in a woman's pocketbook, purse, or carry - all today, and not all of it stems from other women.

Congressmen have debated the handbag's worth in its hallowed halls. (Is it a taxable luxury, or as necessary as the pockets in men's pants?)

Socalled comedians have poked fun at the myriad contents in the commodious depths of a women's bag. Would - be muggers have qualled at a bag thought to harbor a gun, a hatpin, or a brick.

Customs officers have suspected them of concealing diamonds in their seams. Train conductors have conjectured the presence of petite pets.

When actress Lillian Roth related in "I'll Cry Tomorrow" that an alcoholic woman increases the size of her handbag as her condition worsens in order to carry larger flasks, an entirely new area of curiousity boomed.

Having the eyes of so many people, with or without ulterior motives, on one's handbag makes the choice an extremely important responsibility.

Fortunately, the industry is making the matter much easier by creating small scale ones for small-sized people and large-sized bags for women tall enough and strong enough, once they are filled, to carry them off.

The season is geometric, say the designers, with a collection of squares, rectangles, circles, arcs and envelopes. Newly returned to the fashion scene are shoulder bags with adjustable straps. Many are shaped like lunch boxes and long loaves of bread. Envelopes, are gently rounded in handsomely grained leather s e t o f f with rigid bar handles, gold bracelets and filigreed detail.

Although shapes for evening are pared down, they remain copious enough to hide emergency spectacles, mad money, and the make-up repair kit. Required to accompany name label dresses and status symbol furs, dress bags follow the status trend of off - beat leathers. Among the newest o fthese for autumn is black antelope suede which also shows up in pastel hues.

Early October Vows Planned By Area Couple

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thornton III of Natchez, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janie Thornton to Hugh Calvin Murray, son of Mrs. Grover Childs of Meadville and the late Mr. Murray. An early October wedding is planned.

The bride - elect is a recent graduate of Natchez - Adams high school and Mr. Murray is a graduate of Meadville high school and the University of Mississippi. He is presently employed with the Franklin high school in Franklin, La.

Patches Back In Fashion

The patch has a long fashion industry — first worn, according to some fashion sources, by Englishmen on their shooting and hunting jackets. The influence spread to the men's wear field, with the Ivy League schools picking it up. The fad spread to other types of clothing after Word War II. And the patch shirt idea for women came along in the summer of '62.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Daisy Eileen Wood to Jerry Dee Thomas, Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elton T. Wood, 1002 S. 5th, Monroe. He is the son of Mrs. A. W. Bonner and the late J. D. Thomas of Fort Necessity. The wedding will take place September 27 in Liberty Baptist church, West Monroe, at 7 p.m. with Rev. John Dallalio officiating. The couple will be at home in Monroe where he is with the state highway department.

THE TWINS' TRIPLETS

Colors In Trio Brighten Fall's Fashion View

Two are better than one and three or more are best of all, is fashion's view of color this season. The plural approach to color finds hues by the threes, matching or contrasting, appearing in many costumes.

If any one group of colors can be said to be the favorite, it's the red family, with the berry reds picked for special distinction and cranberry looking particularly delectable.

Vying with the reds are greens and blues ranging from light and bright to rich and deep. Browns are abundant, and greens and reds mingle with browns in earth tones.

Look For In Fall Fashions

. . . a rash of at - home clothes, meaning evening gowns or dinner pajamas which are too informal to go out, but are long and glamorous.

. . . the obvious yearning in fall fashions toward the feminine, with nobody quite daring to break out into real ruffles and such.

. . . ups and downs of black for fall, with very little in some colorful collections, lots and lots in other like Talmack.

. . . high collars on everything, with turtle necks favored for dresses, cuffed collars on suit blouses, raised cowls on evening dresses.

. . . the clever layered clothes at a few designers', like a sleeveless coat over a suit whose jacket comes off to reveal a two-piece dress.

. . . jeweled buttons, Paris-inspired, where they are really big, colorful and chunky, here are tamed to rubies and rhinestones.

Relaxed Ease Defines Costume For Fall '63

An air of relaxed ease and sophistication embodied in luxuriously colorful fabrics, ranging from feather light wools to air woven tweeds stress the identity of the woman and the costume for Fall '63. Creating a glorious melange of color and texture interrelated in costumes to delight the eye.

Coats are costumes in themselves and the base for all costumes. Infinite in scope, in a medley of colors and fabrics that make outfits go on and off in layers and add finesse and variety to a completely coordinated look.

Lines are free flowing and gracefully feminine. Created to flatter the figure, and perfect the form with free-form. Waistlines wander at will, subtly hovering from the high - rise front of a velveteen jumper costume to the back dropped crescent of a softly blousant tweed jacket. Necklines are softly draped or linearly sculptured to flatteringly frame the face. Sleeves range from the suggested cap to the full and luxurious, always with an eye to flattery, comfort and practicality in ever changing climates.

Black and white tweeds play a major role in this collection. Bold houndstooth checks, subtly blended with butternut georgette in the lining of a side fastened coat with its own fling muffler scarf, costumed with a matching butternut georgette dress. Butternut Dragoon twill in a suit is high-lighted with a black and white houndstooth shell topover. Salt and pepper tweeds mingle with spice reds or winter white.

A "Double Take" coat of imported "Moreau," circularly flared and invitingly elegant both inside and out. One side rust, reverses to black and white tweed, worn over a slender sheer black wool dress with a dashing muffler neckline with a banded detail from the coat.

Giant Harlequin houndstooth in tones of teal and flame or curry and navy. Country tweeds, tailored to city elegance when combined with blending tones of sheer wools.

Mayfair plaids in air woven tweeds in shades of pink and grey, mix-matched with grey flannel or open weave eponge mix, add brightness to a winters day whether in town or country.

Beautifully textured loop wools, smoothly elegant flannels and printed sheer wools, all easily shaped for dresses and costumes that carry through from day to evening with a self assurance and elegance of pure individuality.

The entire collection has a feel more than a look. A sensitivity to rightness, developed to the height of perception with a studied naturalness which seems spontaneous.

Women-At-Work Survey Shows Tasks, Salaries

CHICAGO (UPI) — Three of every 10 employed women handle clerical jobs, a survey by Commerce Clearing House (CCH) shows.

Service workers, including 1¼ million waitresses and cooks, account for about one of every four jobs and manufacturing work for about one in seven, said the national reporting authority.

Professional and technical work ranks fourth largest in job categories, with about one in eight working women included. Among these are approximately 1¼ million teachers, CCH said.

The survey, based on Labor Department statistics as of April, 1962, showed that about half the women workers were married, and that wives working full time contributed an average of 35 to 40 per cent of their families' total income.

Of all married women, about 33 per cent held either full or part time jobs, and about one-eighth had children under six years of age, CCH said.

The largest age group of working women in 1962 was in the 45-54 year bracket. Half of the women workers were 41 or over, and nearly 2-5 of them were over 45, the survey showed.

The latest earning figures were based on a 1961 report, when a full-time woman worker had a medium income of $3,342. The medium for all working women was $1,279.

Twenty-four million women in the work force in 1962 marked a high, exceeding the World War II record of 20.4 million in 1944 by about 3½ million, CCH said.

DRIVING BOTH SIDES OF THE STREET

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Kansas tsarted a crack-down in 1962 against motor vehicle drivers who are "legally blind." Proof of their condition was that the persons be receiving state welfare aid for blindness. In 15 months 136 such persons surrendered their driver's licenses.

ENSEMBLE FOR COOL WEATHER — This afternoon ensemble in violet crepe with a bow on the waist comes from the fall and winter collection of Givenchy in Paris. It is worn with gray suede gloves and a violet velvet hat. A black rhinestone necklace of tiny leaves completes the outfit. (AP Wirephoto)

LUXURIOUS FOR FALL is this three piece costume by B. H. Wragge which comprises a sleeveless velveteen weskit with button - down front and slender matching skirt in raspberry with a pink silk shirt, featuring an ascot roll collar.

Handbags Yield Untold Valuables

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

Despite sugar bowls and savings and loans, many ladies bank on handbags. Nothing else they put their good money into pays off so well in fashion interest.

Actually, there is all kind of interest in a woman's pocketbook, purse, or carry - all today, and not all of it stems from other women.

Congressmen have debated the handbag's worth in its hallowed halls. (Is it a taxable luxury, or as necessary as the pockets in men's pants?)

Socalled comedians have poked fun at the myriad contents in the commodious depths of a women's bag. Would - be muggers have qualled at a bag thought to harbor a gun, a hatpin, or a brick.

Customs officers have suspected them of concealing diamonds in their seams. Train conductors have conjectured the presence of petite pets.

When actress Lillian Roth related in "I'll Cry Tomorrow" that an alcoholic woman increases the size of her handbag as her condition worsens in order to carry larger flasks, an entirely new area of curiousity boomed.

Having the eyes of so many people, with or without ulterior motives, on one's handbag makes the choice an extremely important responsibility.

Fortunately, the industry is making the matter much easier by creating small scale ones for small-sized people and large-sized bags for women tall enough and strong enough, once they are filled, to carry them off.

The season is geometric, say the designers, with a collection of squares, rectangles, circles, arcs and envelopes. Newly returned to the fashion scene are shoulder bags with adjustable straps. Many are shaped like lunch boxes and long loaves of bread. Envelopes, are gently rounded in handsomely grained leather s e t o f f with rigid bar handles, gold bracelets and filigreed detail.

Although shapes for evening are pared down, they remain copious enough to hide emergency spectacles, mad money, and the make-up repair kit. Required to accompany name label dresses and status symbol furs, dress bags follow the status trend of off - beat leathers. Among the newest o fthese for autumn is black antelope suede which also shows up in pastel hues.

Early October Vows Planned By Area Couple

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thornton III of Natchez, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janie Thornton to Hugh Calvin Murray, son of Mrs. Grover Childs of Meadville and the late Mr. Murray. An early October wedding is planned.

Miss Thornton is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McLeod of Natchez and the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thornton Jr. of Wise, Va. Mr. Murray is the grandson of Perry C. McGehee and the late Mrs. McGehee of Meadville and of Tom Murray and the late Mrs. Murray.

The bride - elect is a recent graduate of Natchez - Adams high school and Mr. Murray is a graduate of Meadville high school and the University of Mississippi. He is presently employed with the Franklin high school in Franklin, La.

Patches Back In Fashion

The patch has a long fashion industry — first worn, according to some fashion sources, by Englishmen on their shooting and hunting jackets. The influence spread to the men's wear field, with the Ivy League schools picking it up. The fad spread to other types of clothing after Word War II. And the patch shirt idea for women came along in the summer of '62.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Daisy Eileen Wood to Jerry Dee Thomas, Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elton T. Wood, 1002 S. 5th, Monroe. He is the son of Mrs. A. W. Bonner and the late J. D. Thomas of Fort Necessity. The wedding will take place September 27 in Liberty Baptist church, West Monroe, at 7 p.m. with Rev. John Dallalio officiating. The couple will be at home in Monroe where he is with the state highway department.

THE TWINS' TRIPLETS

Colors In Trio Brighten Fall's Fashion View

Two are better than one and three or more are best of all, is fashion's view of color this season. The plural approach to color finds hues by the threes, matching or contrasting, appearing in many costumes.

If any one group of colors can be said to be the favorite, it's the red family, with the berry reds picked for special distinction and cranberry looking particularly delectable.

Vying with the reds are greens and blues ranging from light and bright to rich and deep. Browns are abundant, and greens and reds mingle with browns in earth tones.

Look For In Fall Fashions

. . . a rash of at - home clothes, meaning evening gowns or dinner pajamas which are too informal to go out, but are long and glamorous.

. . . the obvious yearning in fall fashions toward the feminine, with nobody quite daring to break out into real ruffles and such.

. . . ups and downs of black for fall, with very little in some colorful collections, lots and lots in other like Talmack.

. . . high collars on everything, with turtle necks favored for dresses, cuffed collars on suit blouses, raised cowls on evening dresses.

. . . the clever layered clothes at a few designers', like a sleeveless coat over a suit whose jacket comes off to reveal a two-piece dress.

. . . jeweled buttons, Paris-inspired, where they are really big, colorful and chunky, here are tamed to rubies and rhinestones.

Relaxed Ease Defines Costume For Fall '63

An air of relaxed ease and sophistication embodied in luxuriously colorful fabrics, ranging from feather light wools to air woven tweeds stress the identity of the woman and the costume for Fall '63. Creating a glorious melange of color and texture interrelated in costumes to delight the eye.

Coats are costumes in themselves and the base for all costumes. Infinite in scope, in a medley of colors and fabrics that make outfits go on and off in layers and add finesse and variety to a completely coordinated look.

Lines are free flowing and gracefully feminine. Created to flatter the figure, and perfect the form with free-form. Waistlines wander at will, subtly hovering from the high - rise front of a velveteen jumper costume to the back dropped crescent of a softly blousant tweed jacket. Necklines are softly draped or linearly sculptured to flatteringly frame the face. Sleeves range from the suggested cap to the full and luxurious, always with an eye to flattery, comfort and practicality in ever changing climates.

Black and white tweeds play a major role in this collection. Bold houndstooth checks, subtly blended with butternut georgette in the lining of a side fastened coat with its own fling muffler scarf, costumed with a matching butternut georgette dress. Butternut Dragoon twill in a suit is high-lighted with a black and white houndstooth shell topover. Salt and pepper tweeds mingle with spice reds or winter white.

A "Double Take" coat of imported "Moreau," circularly flared and invitingly elegant both inside and out. One side rust, reverses to black and white tweed, worn over a slender sheer black wool dress with a dashing muffler neckline with a banded detail from the coat.

Giant Harlequin houndstooth in tones of teal and flame or curry and navy. Country tweeds, tailored to city elegance when combined with blending tones of sheer wools.

Mayfair plaids in air woven tweeds in shades of pink and grey, mix-matched with grey flannel or open weave eponge mix, add brightness to a winters day whether in town or country.

Beautifully textured loop wools, smoothly elegant flannels and printed sheer wools, all easily shaped for dresses and costumes that carry through from day to evening with a self assurance and elegance of pure individuality.

The entire collection has a feel more than a look. A sensitivity to rightness, developed to the height of perception with a studied naturalness which seems spontaneous.

ACTIVE IN PAST

Try-outs brought back several people who were active in Little Theatre in the past. Marie Louise Snellings with her husband George directed "The Royal Family," and "Three - Cornered Moon." Eula Davenport was a fine actress in earlier productions, while Ed Anders appeared in four shows between 1958 and 1960. We hope that many of our former workers will come back to the fold for the banner season ahead.

Rehearsals for "Auntie Mame" are in progress nightly between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. except weekends. Technical director Lonny Frazer has already built the grand staircase as part of the extravagant settings.

By now past members should have received the brochure inviting renewal of membership for the 1963-64 season. If you have not already joined, you are urged to return the application form with your check at the earliest possible moment. Anyone who wants a brochure is welcome to call membership vice president Mary Lee Milam at FAirfax 2-3535.

In a previous column we talked about patron and sustaining memberships. At $7.50 for five plays, the sustaining category is the greatest value open to adults and has always been the backbone of the Little Theatre. We need all the sustaining members we can get.

STUDENT MEMBERSHIPS

In addition, Little Theatre offers regular and student memberships. Regular memberships cost $2 per season and require payment of an admission charge of $1 to each of the four regular shows attended and $2.50 to the musical, making $8.50 in all if no plays are missed. All students enrolled full time at school or college may join for only $1 plus $1 admission to each show except the musical which is $1.50.

Anyone interested in any class of membership may obtain full information from Mrs. Milam or apply for membership by sending a check for the appropriate category to Box 868, Monroe. The membership drive is now in full swing and will close when the limit of 3,000 members is attained.

A GOOD TIME IS BEING had by Red Buttons, Gig Young, Shirley Jones and Carolyn Jones in this night club scene from "A Ticklish Affair." This new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy is about a young widow who would rather be merry than married—she thinks. It's in Panavision and color, and starts today at the Jim Theatre.

A Portrait By Bradford Bachrach

CAMERA Angles

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Styles in portraiture change, says Bradford Bachrach, well-known professional photographer. "To an increasing extent, people these days want a portrait that makes them look alive and vibrant, full of spirit and personality, rather than one that just takes out the wrinkles."

Bradford Bachrach, who specializes in portraits of women, while his brother Fabian concentrates on the photography of men, says that he suggests his customers wear their usual makeup when they pose for portraits. "Makeup can take away wrinkles from most women, but if you put a lot of extra makeup on them, the face becomes like a board. They become self - conscious and afraid they'll crack the goo.

"You can do with light almost everything you can with makeup. So I usually ask them to accentuate light eyebrows."

MORE SKILL

Bachrach considers more skill necessary in the making of a good color portrait than one in black and white. But he does not advocate that either professionals or amateurs shrink from the challenge of color work.

"For one thing, color is our answer for the woman over 30 who thinks she is hard to photograph. She really means she is afraid she'll look older than her age. But she can be a youthful looking 30 or 80 if she has marvelous hair texture or complexion. Those things are sometimes hard to record in black and white."

The photographer has conducted classes for the Boston Camera Club and for a group of which he is a member, the Professional Photographers of America Inc., at its annual seminar in Winona, Ind.

BACKGROUND

He says, "What you're trying to put together in a portrait is lighting — to give texture; background — nothing distracting, but something to give the picture force; and the right expression at the right time.

"If the background is too light for the face, you get a muddy effect; if it's too dark, you get a harsh effect. The background often makes or breaks a picture."

Bachrach thinks most amateur portrait photographers work best with three lights — a main light, a fill - in and a light to control background values. Whether the camera is higher or lower than the head, he says, depends on the contours of the sitter's face.

"The problem the fellow has who doesn't do this work all the time is that he may not do justice to his subject. But he can keep trying. And if he's persistent enough, he's going to get the right thing."

Bachrach thinks the photographer who is doing portraits for love, not money, has several advantages over the photographer who shoots to sell.

"He's free to approach things from a fresh point of view. He can make mistakes, improve by seeing his own mistakes and really become expert with a camera. He's doing it for his own satisfaction; he doesn't have to try and capture what a woman's husband and children see in her. He's judged on his best work while a pro is often judged on the worst pictures he makes."

PIONEERS

The Bachrach family has been in the portrait business since 1868, when Bradford and Fabian's grandfather set up a studio in Baltimore. Their father started his business in New England in 1908 and an uncle opened a studio in New York in 1915. There now are seven Bachrach studios on the East Coast.

Bradford Bachrach has a stock answer when asked why he photographs women and his brother photographs men. "I'm older," he smiles, "and I spoke first. I said, 'I'll take the women.' "

Hall Making Comeback In Screen Work

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jon Hall an actor who teamed up with Dorothy Lamour to depict the South Pacific as make - believe paradise on movie screens, is making a comeback after five years away from the cameras.

It was in 1937 that Hall co-starred with Miss Lamour in the gusty "Hurricane" movie, a film which had Jon playing a South sea native.

Hall, and other actors before and after him, created an image of the South Pacific Ocean area as one of aquatic paradise.

It took World War II to set the record straight. In Hall's movies about the Pacific islands, there were never any bugs. In World War II, there were.

ACTING NATURAL

Jon came by his ocean picture acting naturally, having been born in California and raised in Tahiti.

Hall appeared in such far away sounding, sea spray pictures as "Sailor's Lady," "South of Pago Pago" and "Hurricane Island." Occasionally producers would let Jon act away from the water as in "Arabian Nights," in the air for "Eagle Squadron," secretive in "Invisible Agent" and out West in "Kit Carson."

Jon's last major acting effort was in the successful television series, "Ramar of the Jungle." He played an American doctor in Africa.

That show went out of production five years ago and Hall quit acting. It was his own decision. Jon Hall pictures always had an audience and he could have kept on working.

CURTAIN CALL

Pending announcement of the full cast of "Auntie Mame," we can at least reveal some of the major roles. Feejee Carmack will play Mame, with Marillyn Taylor as Vera Charles, Eula Davenport as Mother Burnside, Caroline Friis as Agnes Gooch, Garland Moore as Beauregard and Lanny Gandy as young Patrick Dennis.

As nearly 100 attended the three try-outs, there was stiff competition and executive director Richard M. Clark had both the satisfaction and the difficulty of having to make his selections from an abundance of talent. Actually about half who came were only onlookers, but their gales of laughter at the funny lines forecast a tremendous hit when the finished product is unveiled to our members.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arranger Is Guest

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Fifth District Garden Center had for it's T.V. and garden Center guest last Wednesday a very talented flower arranger and teacher of floral designs, Mrs. Gladys Kulcke. She showed a potted bromelia at the beginning of her program. This plant is a genus of the tropical American pineapple family. The leaves are stiff rosetts which hold water in a well-like fashion. The flowers come in heads or panicles of brillant orange-red color resembling the ginger lily in form and equally as exotic.

Whenever used as an ornament in the home the faded blooms may be replaced with fresh blooms by simply placing the short stemmed flower into the water - filled "well" of the leaf rosette. This serves as a container, so to speak. These plants are grown in greenhouses because of their tropical nature. Growth takes place mostly in summer.

The showy bracts and colorful flowers make this plant unusually attractive for the greenhouse or conservatory. They require less water during the winter. This plant was given to Mrs. Kulcke by Mrs. Evelyn Brooks who grows these in her greenhouse. Because of the exotic bloom Mrs. Kulcke decided to show how this could be combined with the banana stalks to create a very striking and modern design for today's home.

MORE DETAILS

More details about the bromelia will be given to you by Harvey Paige on next Wednesday's program. The entire program will be devoted to this by Mr. Paige. So, lets talk about the banana stalks and find out how Mrs. Kulcke prepared them for her design. After cutting the stalk about two feet from the ground or nearer, the leaves were sheared from the stalk. Then, be very careful not to get the juice from the plant on your clothing since this makes a stain that will not come out.

Twist the stalk gently in the hands to loosen the cane sections. Then separate the sections just as you would peel an orange. The whole section will come apart making a rounded sheath that is most attractive to use for line material. These sections resemble candles or pipe organ pipes. The color is light yellow with a tinge of chartreuse. To keep the tips or cut ends from turning brown simply rub with lemon juice after cutting the desired length.

SEVEN STALKS

Mrs. Kulcke chose seven of these stalks or sheaths and cut them in tiered lengths ranging from 18 inches down to about eight inches. These were placed in a large needle point holder inside of the modern oval shaped black bowl. The inside of the bowl was of chartreuse color, blending with the canes. The placement was in the center of the bowl. To the left side of these canes she placed the brilliant flowers of the bromelia. Five of them were placed in a spiral fashion, the lower blossom being placed in the central part of the design and facing the front. Since the blossoms are very short of stem they were placed in improvised stems made of equisedium, then picked into the holder. These stems were concealed by sections of banana cane in front of them. It was very cleverly done. The holder was ridden with rocks. Water was placed in the bowl which added to the beauty of the design. After seeing Mrs. Kulcke do this, one would think it to be quite simple. Several have said, "Well, I believe I can make this after seeing Mrs. Kulcke do it."

This proves that the most attractive designs are those that are simple — yet contain materials that are different or exotic and handled cleverly always to achieve beauty. It is well to know what flowers are suitable for modern designs. Mrs. Kulcke pointed out. The calla lily, banana blooms, ginger lilies, amaryllis and Easter lily are excellent examples of flowers to use when creating the large modern designs. The effect will be bold and very dramatic — qualitities to strive for when making this design.

GIANT HERB

The banana plant is not a tree as you may think, but a giant tropical herb. It is a wonderful plant to have near the patio or in the back area or living area of the landscape. It requires so little care for the great amount of beauty and pleasure it gives. It's broad leaves give a tropical effect and create a cool feeling in the garden. The blossoms are exotic and create a conversational design when used in arrangements. The small bananas which form beneath the blossom as each petal falls are very interesting when used with other fruits in a bowl or just to look at on the plant. I have these plants in my yard and our whole family enjoys them. I have them planted in a flower bed behind the garage which forms a part of our living area or patio. These plants are kept thinned each season. This stimulates growth to the main bulb, thus making the plants larger each season. They have been fertilized also. When they die down after the first frost we cut them back to about a foot from the ground and then mulche them heavily with pine straw. This is about all the care they require. It is a pleasure to give the extra plants to friends who can get them started easily if the bulb is planted in a good porous soil and kept watered during the hot months. We keep the pine straw on all through the year — summer as well as winter. This keeps out grass and holds moisture and also, keeps the soil from packing, thus allowing the bulb to grow.

Be sure to watch for Harvey Paige next Wednesday. His program will be "bromelias."

Just another (last minute reminder) about the flower show school that will be held in Ruston at Tech. This is school number five. The dates are Sept. 18, 19, 20. You can register at 8:00 a.m. Sept. 18, in room 103 in the agriculture building at Tech. The first day will feature a flower arrangement lecture by Dr. John Wright. Also, flower arrangement little show. Sept. 19 will be landscape design lecture from 8:00 a.b. - 10:00 a.m. by Mrs. Walter Colquit. Also horticulture lecture from 10:00 a.m. - 12.00 noon. After lunch will be horticulture little show 1 p.m.-3 p.m. Examinations will be given Sept. 20, 9 a.m. - 12 noon. The entire course with credit is $11. Either day without credit is $5. Plan to attend this school the full time if possible, or at least one day. Everyone in invited. Those taking the examination for credit must be Federated Club members. This will help them qualify for flower show whole series of five schools and written tests, judging requirements and blue ribbon requirements — passing each school successfully. Whether trying for a judges certificate or not — this is a wonderful source of information for any garden lover or garden club member.

On The House

Many wallpaper manufacturers are showing a wide variety of papers which are not only pretrimmed but prepasted as well. While this has eased the, task of do-it-yourself wallpapering, the paper won't go up by itself. It takes some knowledge and a normal amount of common sense.

After you've selected the paper, you'll need a special water container, a waxed trough available for 25 cents or less at your wallpaper dealer. Other items you will need are newspapers to spread on the floor, a pair of scissors or shears, a ruler or yardstick, a large sponge, a pencil, a piece of blue chalk, a single - edge razor blade, a seam roller or a wooden chair caster, a long string to which a weight is attached, a wallpaper brush for smoothing the paper after you have placed it on the wall, and a stepladder.

OPTIONAL

You can start the job anywhere you wish — in a corner or even above the windows or doors. But the professional method is to hang the first strip to the right of the doorway. To insure a straight plumb line, fasten a thumb tack at the ceiling line and attack a weighted string, on which blue chalk has been rubbed. After the weight has stopped swinging, hold it with one hand against the baseboard and pull the cord a couple of inches or so, letting it snap back. You now will have a straight, blue line running from ceiling to baseboard. This is your guide to insure that the first strip is hung correctly.

Cut the first strip after measuring the distance from the ceiling to the baseboard, allowing three inches at the top and bottom for easy trimming. Put the water container at the baseboard where the first strip is to be hung and fill it about two-thirds full.

BE CAREFUL

When you place the first strip — and subsequent strips — into the trough, be sure the pattern side is on the inner side of the roll and that the paper is right side up. As you gently pull your strip upward through the water, the pattern will be facing you. It's a good idea to insert some sort of smooth weight in the trough like a stainless steel knife. This will keep the entire roll from popping out when you lift the strip. After the roll is completely submerged for a minute or so, hold the top edges with your fingers and withdraw slowly from the water, making sure the entire surface has been thoroughly saturated. Mount your stepladder and position the top of the strip on the wall at the ceiling, lining up the right edge with your plumb line. Gently smooth the strip with a wet sponge, moving from top center downward and outward.

Trim the excess paper at the top and bottom with a single - edge razor blade. Wash the entire strip with a wet sponge and clear water. Press the edges firmly, using a wallpaper roller or a wooden chair caster.

Before cutting and putting the second strip into the water trough, hold the rest of the roll against the strip already on the wall to match the design, again allowing three inches at top and bottom for trimming when you cut the second strip. Do this with all other strips. Butt the edges tightly and wipe each strip with a sponge and clean water.

THESE TINY plants aren't marigolds, they are the new dwarf Thumbelina Zinnias, which are used for colorful edging in the flower garden.

CLUB POINTS WAY

Camellias Gain In Favor Here

These articles are being compiled to aid the others in the area. The articles are being written by different members of the Camellia Club.

The propagation of Camellias for many years has been considered reserved only for those who are willing and able to expend a large amount of money and time. For the average yard these plants are just within the past few years becoming a regular part of the landscape.

However, they have been in the older gardens throughout the South for years, many for more than 100 years. And these old plants are still producing blooms in addition to providing an evergreen plant during those periods when there are no blooms.

WAY OF LEARNING

The Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club, which was formed several years ago, is proving to many persons only casually acquainted with the Camellia plant one of the ways of learning the characteristics and requirements for the planting, growing and displaying of this flower.

The Club has undertaken during the coming season a program of presenting to the general public the problems faced with the growing of the Camellias in north Louisiana. It will also present the many advantages of having these plants, both in the yard and in protected places, such as slat houses and glass houses.

Articles appearing in the Morning World each month will discuss various phases of the growth of Camellias, plus the older plants in the Monroe area, preparation of blooms for shows and generally, all of the things required for proper growing and displaying of the plants.

Monroe is not unique in the number of older plants which are growing here. But some of these plants in Monroe can be traced to the middle 1800's. Some are even older.

MONROE CENTER

In addition, Monroe is becoming one of the centers for the growing of better varieties by those who enjoy working with these plants. The men and women are not professional growers, at least in the beginning, although they have become known throughout the state for their handling of the varieties. Some of these growers are presently watching young seedlings with the hopes of having new and accepted plants for the ever growing variety of Camellias.

These are but a few of the items which have been brought out during discussions at the club meetings.

Many of the members feel that others who would be interested in the growing of Camellias would like to know this information. Homeowners are also interested in the different varieties which will withstand the cold weather in this section, which ones are not adapted to this area, and what degree of success other growers have had.

Yard Care Short Cuts In Designs

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A few simple designs will provide short cuts to easier care for your yard.

If you are making a new lawn or garden, it might serve you well to incorporate these suggestions:

Avoid sharp corners. Gentle curves facilitate mowing the lawn and enhance the appearance of the yard.

All paved areas should be flush with the lawn, to permit equipment to roll easily.

A brick mowing edge between lawn and plant beds and close to the house will eliminate trimming.

Low maintenance ground covers are a good substitute for grass in areas difficult to mow.

High maintenance planting beds should be elevated for easy tending and plants difficult to attend should be grouped together.

Gravel strips under roof drip lines will eliminate fruitless efforts to grow plants underneath.

For hedges and beds, plant low maintenance items such as yew or privet.

Ground covers beneath trees will hide falling nuts, seeds and fruits.

Mulches liberally applied will reduce weeding.

Flush paving will eliminate trimming around lawn obstructions such as clothes poles and water pipes.

Lay bricks with tight joints in a sand or stone dust bed to inhibit weed growth. In retaining walls, use of stone, rather than concrete, will diminish the problem of water penetration and freezing.

Native Plants In Landscape

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, are planning to use some of our native plants in the landscape this fall the following tips may prove helpful. Can you provide similar growing conditions to those in which the native plant is growing? If not, leave the plant to nature. Prepare planting area - dig the holes both wider and deeper than the native plant's root system. Add wood loam, peat or humus materials to the soil.

It is a good idea to prune the native plants roots by making spade cuts around the plant allowing soil to stay in place with a ball of earth. Wrap the ball with a damp gunny sack. Plant the native plant immediately upon digging. Do not allow the root system to dry out.

The branches should be cut back so they do not spread beyond the tips of the roots. Do not attempt to transplant overly large specimens. Transplant deciduos plants in the dormant season. December through February. Evergreens should be planted from November through February.

MORE GARDENING

Many problems encountered by the homeowner in growing shrubs and trees in the landscape are associated with the lack of organic matter or humus in the soil. During the next two months gardeners have an opportunity to use leaves, grass clippings and other vegetative waste in compost piles. Practice conservation at home. Save leaves, grass clippings and vegetative from the kitchen. These materials are valuable in building a better soil for a better landscape.

DOUBLE KNIT

Knit fabrics are an improtant part of most women's wardrobes because they are practical for travel and fashionable to wear. Select a pattern with few seams. Straight skirts work well. Walking pleat is not usually necessary since fabric gives as you walk. Top stitching is attractive Bound buttonholes can be made in this fabric. All knit fabrics should be shrunk before using.

Textured nylon thread is recommended for stitching knitted fabrics because the elasticity is in keeping with stretchability of knit. Stretch seam slightly as you sew. Hold one hand in front of the needle and the other behind it. Use a balanced tension and light pressure is necessary to prevent stretching.

If set-in sleeve is used, use straight tape in shoulder to prevent stretching. Stay waistline seam. Usually a better result is achieved by setting in zipper by hand using a back stitch. No finish is necessary for seams and hems because knits do not ravel. The hem must be flexible to "give" as the body moves in walking. Use textured nylon thread on inside hemming stitch either catch stitch or a loose pick stitch.

COOKOUT

Some of the best times a family can have together are at picnics and backyard cook outs. Have you, Mrs. Homemaker, tried kababs. In the Near East a shisk kabab must be made of ham - in the United States anything goes. But remember to select foods that require approximately the same cooking time and alternate meats and vegetables on the skewer, keeping each piece away from the next so the heat can reach all sides.

For that extra flavor, marinate the meat for a few hours or overnight in a seasoned vinegar sauce. Spoon the sauce over the meat as it cooks. Broiling will take about 10 to 16 minutes, depending on how well done you want the meat. Here are some combinations you might want to try.

Franks cut into one inch pieces, pineapple chuncks and sliced bacon; beef cubes with quartered tomatoes, carrots and small cooked onions; cubes of bologna, sliced onion and sliced bacon. Ham with sweet potato and pineapple chunks. To serve, press the cooked kabab from the skewer onto a toasted bun with a chunk of split French bread, or directly onto the plate.

A THOUGHT

The real tragedy of life is not in being limited to one talent but in the failure to use the one talent.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Pink, Purple Colchicums

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The pink and purple colchicums and crocuses that are in the seed stores and bulb nurseries now provide the tired gardener with just the magic to cheer him up. In a matter of days after they are planted, these wonderful bulbs pop out with their brilliant flowers.

The number of flowers that come from a fat colchicum corm is unbelievable: sometimes as many as 22. The tiny flat corms of Crocus zonatus will send out a dozen or more of its small lavender flowers.

Southern gardeners who have been planting a few colchicums and crocuses every year since they began to be available in this country about 10 years ago have found that both kinds of bulbs are permanent in our gardens here in all but the warmer parts of the South. They need only good garden soil and some bone meal to bloom every year at the end of summer and the beginning of the Fall.

CROCUSES

The crocuses most often found in fall bulb lists are the early little C. zonatus which will bloom right away if you plant it now and C. speciosus which blooms at about the time of the first frost. All crocuses need to be planted fairly deep for the size of the corms. Four inches is a good depth because crocuses have way of pulling themselves down if they want to be deeper in the soil. For this reason, be sure that the soil for crocuses is well prepared and supplied with bone meal as much as 12 inches down.

COLCHICUMS

Colchicums seem to like to have their noses just out of sight under the surface. They are extremely hardy to cold and not bothered by any severe winters which they experience here in the South. In Europe and Asia, they are often meadow plants and do not mind quite moist places in the garden.

The first of the colchicums to bloom are Autumn Queen and Autumn King. In the heat of the September sun, it is wonderful the way the violet flowers of these colchicums stand up to the weather day after day. Each flower lasts about five days in good condition and is then replaced by another fresh one before it is gone. Every stage of the flowers is beautiful, from tiny bud to open flower.

The big, un-named colchicum that you buy in the stores is usually C. speciosum. This one produces numerous medium sized flowers of light lavender. They look very much like the tiny lavender flowers of Crocus zonatus except that they are bigger, and colchicums have six stamens while crocuses have three.

When you become a colchicum enthusiast, you will search through bulb catalogues and stores and find such speciosum varieties as The Giant and several with French names. There are even double white and pink varieties which bloom very late and command quite a price. These are always wonderful to look for at about Thanksgiving time. They are not destroyed by any but the most severe frost.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arranger Is Guest

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Fifth District Garden Center had for it's T.V. and garden Center guest last Wednesday a very talented flower arranger and teacher of floral designs, Mrs. Gladys Kulcke. She showed a potted bromelia at the beginning of her program. This plant is a genus of the tropical American pineapple family. The leaves are stiff rosetts which hold water in a well-like fashion. The flowers come in heads or panicles of brillant orange-red color resembling the ginger lily in form and equally as exotic.

Whenever used as an ornament in the home the faded blooms may be replaced with fresh blooms by simply placing the short stemmed flower into the water - filled "well" of the leaf rosette. This serves as a container, so to speak. These plants are grown in greenhouses because of their tropical nature. Growth takes place mostly in summer.

The showy bracts and colorful flowers make this plant unusually attractive for the greenhouse or conservatory. They require less water during the winter. This plant was given to Mrs. Kulcke by Mrs. Evelyn Brooks who grows these in her greenhouse. Because of the exotic bloom Mrs. Kulcke decided to show how this could be combined with the banana stalks to create a very striking and modern design for today's home.

MORE DETAILS

More details about the bromelia will be given to you by Harvey Paige on next Wednesday's program. The entire program will be devoted to this by Mr. Paige. So, lets talk about the banana stalks and find out how Mrs. Kulcke prepared them for her design. After cutting the stalk about two feet from the ground or nearer, the leaves were sheared from the stalk. Then, be very careful not to get the juice from the plant on your clothing since this makes a stain that will not come out.

Twist the stalk gently in the hands to loosen the cane sections. Then separate the sections just as you would peel an orange. The whole section will come apart making a rounded sheath that is most attractive to use for line material. These sections resemble candles or pipe organ pipes. The color is light yellow with a tinge of chartreuse. To keep the tips or cut ends from turning brown simply rub with lemon juice after cutting the desired length.

SEVEN STALKS

Mrs. Kulcke chose seven of these stalks or sheaths and cut them in tiered lengths ranging from 18 inches down to about eight inches. These were placed in a large needle point holder inside of the modern oval shaped black bowl. The inside of the bowl was of chartreuse color, blending with the canes. The placement was in the center of the bowl. To the left side of these canes she placed the brilliant flowers of the bromelia. Five of them were placed in a spiral fashion, the lower blossom being placed in the central part of the design and facing the front. Since the blossoms are very short of stem they were placed in improvised stems made of equisedium, then picked into the holder. These stems were concealed by sections of banana cane in front of them. It was very cleverly done. The holder was ridden with rocks. Water was placed in the bowl which added to the beauty of the design. After seeing Mrs. Kulcke do this, one would think it to be quite simple. Several have said, "Well, I believe I can make this after seeing Mrs. Kulcke do it."

This proves that the most attractive designs are those that are simple — yet contain materials that are different or exotic and handled cleverly always to achieve beauty. It is well to know what flowers are suitable for modern designs. Mrs. Kulcke pointed out. The calla lily, banana blooms, ginger lilies, amaryllis and Easter lily are excellent examples of flowers to use when creating the large modern designs. The effect will be bold and very dramatic — qualitities to strive for when making this design.

GIANT HERB

The banana plant is not a tree as you may think, but a giant tropical herb. It is a wonderful plant to have near the patio or in the back area or living area of the landscape. It requires so little care for the great amount of beauty and pleasure it gives. It's broad leaves give a tropical effect and create a cool feeling in the garden. The blossoms are exotic and create a conversational design when used in arrangements. The small bananas which form beneath the blossom as each petal falls are very interesting when used with other fruits in a bowl or just to look at on the plant. I have these plants in my yard and our whole family enjoys them. I have them planted in a flower bed behind the garage which forms a part of our living area or patio. These plants are kept thinned each season. This stimulates growth to the main bulb, thus making the plants larger each season. They have been fertilized also. When they die down after the first frost we cut them back to about a foot from the ground and then mulche them heavily with pine straw. This is about all the care they require. It is a pleasure to give the extra plants to friends who can get them started easily if the bulb is planted in a good porous soil and kept watered during the hot months. We keep the pine straw on all through the year — summer as well as winter. This keeps out grass and holds moisture and also, keeps the soil from packing, thus allowing the bulb to grow.

Be sure to watch for Harvey Paige next Wednesday. His program will be "bromelias."

Just another (last minute reminder) about the flower show school that will be held in Ruston at Tech. This is school number five. The dates are Sept. 18, 19, 20. You can register at 8:00 a.m. Sept. 18, in room 103 in the agriculture building at Tech. The first day will feature a flower arrangement lecture by Dr. John Wright. Also, flower arrangement little show. Sept. 19 will be landscape design lecture from 8:00 a.b. - 10:00 a.m. by Mrs. Walter Colquit. Also horticulture lecture from 10:00 a.m. - 12.00 noon. After lunch will be horticulture little show 1 p.m.-3 p.m. Examinations will be given Sept. 20, 9 a.m. - 12 noon. The entire course with credit is $11. Either day without credit is $5. Plan to attend this school the full time if possible, or at least one day. Everyone in invited. Those taking the examination for credit must be Federated Club members. This will help them qualify for flower show whole series of five schools and written tests, judging requirements and blue ribbon requirements — passing each school successfully. Whether trying for a judges certificate or not — this is a wonderful source of information for any garden lover or garden club member.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Pink, Purple Colchicums

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The pink and purple colchicums and crocuses that are in the seed stores and bulb nurseries now provide the tired gardener with just the magic to cheer him up. In a matter of days after they are planted, these wonderful bulbs pop out with their brilliant flowers.

The number of flowers that come from a fat colchicum corm is unbelievable: sometimes as many as 22. The tiny flat corms of Crocus zonatus will send out a dozen or more of its small lavender flowers.

Southern gardeners who have been planting a few colchicums and crocuses every year since they began to be available in this country about 10 years ago have found that both kinds of bulbs are permanent in our gardens here in all but the warmer parts of the South. They need only good garden soil and some bone meal to bloom every year at the end of summer and the beginning of the Fall.

CROCUSES

The crocuses most often found in fall bulb lists are the early little C. zonatus which will bloom right away if you plant it now and C. speciosus which blooms at about the time of the first frost. All crocuses need to be planted fairly deep for the size of the corms. Four inches is a good depth because crocuses have way of pulling themselves down if they want to be deeper in the soil. For this reason, be sure that the soil for crocuses is well prepared and supplied with bone meal as much as 12 inches down.

COLCHICUMS

Colchicums seem to like to have their noses just out of sight under the surface. They are extremely hardy to cold and not bothered by any severe winters which they experience here in the South. In Europe and Asia, they are often meadow plants and do not mind quite moist places in the garden.

The first of the colchicums to bloom are Autumn Queen and Autumn King. In the heat of the September sun, it is wonderful the way the violet flowers of these colchicums stand up to the weather day after day. Each flower lasts about five days in good condition and is then replaced by another fresh one before it is gone. Every stage of the flowers is beautiful, from tiny bud to open flower.

The big, un-named colchicum that you buy in the stores is usually C. speciosum. This one produces numerous medium sized flowers of light lavender. They look very much like the tiny lavender flowers of Crocus zonatus except that they are bigger, and colchicums have six stamens while crocuses have three.

When you become a colchicum enthusiast, you will search through bulb catalogues and stores and find such speciosum varieties as The Giant and several with French names. There are even double white and pink varieties which bloom very late and command quite a price. These are always wonderful to look for at about Thanksgiving time. They are not destroyed by any but the most severe frost.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Many wallpaper manufacturers are showing a wide variety of papers which are not only pretrimmed but prepasted as well. While this has eased the, task of do-it-yourself wallpapering, the paper won't go up by itself. It takes some knowledge and a normal amount of common sense.

After you've selected the paper, you'll need a special water container, a waxed trough available for 25 cents or less at your wallpaper dealer. Other items you will need are newspapers to spread on the floor, a pair of scissors or shears, a ruler or yardstick, a large sponge, a pencil, a piece of blue chalk, a single - edge razor blade, a seam roller or a wooden chair caster, a long string to which a weight is attached, a wallpaper brush for smoothing the paper after you have placed it on the wall, and a stepladder.

OPTIONAL

You can start the job anywhere you wish — in a corner or even above the windows or doors. But the professional method is to hang the first strip to the right of the doorway. To insure a straight plumb line, fasten a thumb tack at the ceiling line and attack a weighted string, on which blue chalk has been rubbed. After the weight has stopped swinging, hold it with one hand against the baseboard and pull the cord a couple of inches or so, letting it snap back. You now will have a straight, blue line running from ceiling to baseboard. This is your guide to insure that the first strip is hung correctly.

Cut the first strip after measuring the distance from the ceiling to the baseboard, allowing three inches at the top and bottom for easy trimming. Put the water container at the baseboard where the first strip is to be hung and fill it about two-thirds full.

BE CAREFUL

When you place the first strip — and subsequent strips — into the trough, be sure the pattern side is on the inner side of the roll and that the paper is right side up. As you gently pull your strip upward through the water, the pattern will be facing you. It's a good idea to insert some sort of smooth weight in the trough like a stainless steel knife. This will keep the entire roll from popping out when you lift the strip. After the roll is completely submerged for a minute or so, hold the top edges with your fingers and withdraw slowly from the water, making sure the entire surface has been thoroughly saturated. Mount your stepladder and position the top of the strip on the wall at the ceiling, lining up the right edge with your plumb line. Gently smooth the strip with a wet sponge, moving from top center downward and outward.

Trim the excess paper at the top and bottom with a single - edge razor blade. Wash the entire strip with a wet sponge and clear water. Press the edges firmly, using a wallpaper roller or a wooden chair caster.

Before cutting and putting the second strip into the water trough, hold the rest of the roll against the strip already on the wall to match the design, again allowing three inches at top and bottom for trimming when you cut the second strip. Do this with all other strips. Butt the edges tightly and wipe each strip with a sponge and clean water.

THESE TINY plants aren't marigolds, they are the new dwarf Thumbelina Zinnias, which are used for colorful edging in the flower garden.

CLUB POINTS WAY

Camellias Gain In Favor Here

The propagation of Camellias for many years has been considered reserved only for those who are willing and able to expend a large amount of money and time. For the average yard these plants are just within the past few years becoming a regular part of the landscape.

However, they have been in the older gardens throughout the South for years, many for more than 100 years. And these old plants are still producing blooms in addition to providing an evergreen plant during those periods when there are no blooms.

WAY OF LEARNING

The Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club, which was formed several years ago, is proving to many persons only casually acquainted with the Camellia plant one of the ways of learning the characteristics and requirements for the planting, growing and displaying of this flower.

The Club has undertaken during the coming season a program of presenting to the general public the problems faced with the growing of the Camellias in north Louisiana. It will also present the many advantages of having these plants, both in the yard and in protected places, such as slat houses and glass houses.

Articles appearing in the Morning World each month will discuss various phases of the growth of Camellias, plus the older plants in the Monroe area, preparation of blooms for shows and generally, all of the things required for proper growing and displaying of the plants.

Monroe is not unique in the number of older plants which are growing here. But some of these plants in Monroe can be traced to the middle 1800's. Some are even older.

MONROE CENTER

In addition, Monroe is becoming one of the centers for the growing of better varieties by those who enjoy working with these plants. The men and women are not professional growers, at least in the beginning, although they have become known throughout the state for their handling of the varieties. Some of these growers are presently watching young seedlings with the hopes of having new and accepted plants for the ever growing variety of Camellias.

These are but a few of the items which have been brought out during discussions at the club meetings.

Many of the members feel that others who would be interested in the growing of Camellias would like to know this information. Homeowners are also interested in the different varieties which will withstand the cold weather in this section, which ones are not adapted to this area, and what degree of success other growers have had.

These articles are being compiled to aid the others in the area. The articles are being written by different members of the Camellia Club.

Yard Care Short Cuts In Designs

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A few simple designs will provide short cuts to easier care for your yard.

If you are making a new lawn or garden, it might serve you well to incorporate these suggestions:

Avoid sharp corners. Gentle curves facilitate mowing the lawn and enhance the appearance of the yard.

All paved areas should be flush with the lawn, to permit equipment to roll easily.

A brick mowing edge between lawn and plant beds and close to the house will eliminate trimming.

Low maintenance ground covers are a good substitute for grass in areas difficult to mow.

High maintenance planting beds should be elevated for easy tending and plants difficult to attend should be grouped together.

Gravel strips under roof drip lines will eliminate fruitless efforts to grow plants underneath.

For hedges and beds, plant low maintenance items such as yew or privet.

Ground covers beneath trees will hide falling nuts, seeds and fruits.

Mulches liberally applied will reduce weeding.

Flush paving will eliminate trimming around lawn obstructions such as clothes poles and water pipes.

Lay bricks with tight joints in a sand or stone dust bed to inhibit weed growth. In retaining walls, use of stone, rather than concrete, will diminish the problem of water penetration and freezing.

Native Plants In Landscape

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, are planning to use some of our native plants in the landscape this fall the following tips may prove helpful. Can you provide similar growing conditions to those in which the native plant is growing? If not, leave the plant to nature. Prepare planting area - dig the holes both wider and deeper than the native plant's root system. Add wood loam, peat or humus materials to the soil.

It is a good idea to prune the native plants roots by making spade cuts around the plant allowing soil to stay in place with a ball of earth. Wrap the ball with a damp gunny sack. Plant the native plant immediately upon digging. Do not allow the root system to dry out.

The branches should be cut back so they do not spread beyond the tips of the roots. Do not attempt to transplant overly large specimens. Transplant decidous plants in the dormant season. December through February. Evergreens should be planted from November through February.

MORE GARDENING

Many problems encountered by the homeowner in growing shrubs and trees in the landscape are associated with the lack of organic matter or humus in the soil. During the next two months gardeners have an opportunity to use leaves, grass clippings and other vegetative waste in compost piles. Practice conservation at home. Save leaves, grass clippings and vegetative from the kitchen. These materials are valuable in building a better soil for a better landscape.

DOUBLE KNIT

Knit fabrics are an improtant part of most women's wardrobes because they are practical for travel and fashionable to wear. Select a pattern with few seams. Straight skirts work well. Walking pleat is not usually necessary since fabric gives as you walk. Top stitching is attractive Bound buttonholes can be made in this fabric. All knit fabrics should be shrunk before using.

Textured nylon thread is recommended for stitching knitted fabrics because the elasticity is in keeping with stretchability of knit. Stretch seam slightly as you sew. Hold one hand in front of the needle and the other behind it. Use a balanced tension and light pressure is necessary to prevent stretching.

If set-in sleeve is used, use straight tape in shoulder to prevent stretching. Stay waistline seam. Usually a better result is achieved by setting in zipper by hand using a back stitch. No finish is necessary for seams and hems because knits do not ravel. The hem must be flexible to "give" as the body moves in walking. Use textured nylon thread on inside hemming stitch either catch stitch or a loose pick stitch.

COOKOUT

Some of the best times a family can have together are at picnics and backyard cook outs. Have you, Mrs. Homemaker, tried kababs. In the Near East a shisk kabab must be made of ham - in the United States anything goes. But remember to select foods that require approximately the same cooking time and alternate meats and vegetables on the skewer, keeping each piece away from the next so the heat can reach all sides.

For that extra flavor, marinate the meat for a few hours or overnight in a seasoned vinegar sauce. Spoon the sauce over the meat as it cooks. Broiling will take about 10 to 16 minutes, depending on how well done you want the meat. Here are some combinations you might want to try.

Franks cut into one inch pieces, pineapple chuncks and sliced bacon; beef cubes with quartered tomatoes, carrots and small cooked onions; cubes of bologna, sliced onion and sliced bacon. Ham with sweet potato and pineapple chunks. To serve, press the cooked kabab from the skewer onto a toasted bun with a chunk of split French bread, or directly onto the plate.

A THOUGHT

The real tragedy of life is not in being limited to one talent but in the failure to use the one talent.

Fruitwood Tables Best Against Pale Background

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. Living room walls, woodwork and ceiling are oyster white. Draperies are white with a gold pattern. Sofa is oyster white with faint shell design. Club chair and ottoman are toast, two fireside chairs are turquoise. What color wall-to-wall carpeting should I buy? What kind of tables: fruitwood or antique white? Cocktail table has white marble top with antique white Grecian legs.

A. Carpet could be either off-white, champagne or pale toast. With so much light color in the room I would much prefer fruitwood tables for contrast; the cocktail table is enough white for wood pieces.

Q. We are planning a contemporary living room. A 90 - inch Lawson sofa is royal blue. What color for chairs, also color for walls, rug and draperies? Woodwork is white. We just had walls papered so I would appreciate a prompt reply.

A. White walls would be most appropriate for a contemporary room with such an intense color as royal blue. Have chairs in a print in yellow and white, draperies could be in the print or be white, and pale curry or muted yellow for the rug.

Q. Our 12-by-12 bedroom faces west. Walls will be pottery blue, furniture is blond. What color for bedspread, draperies, dust ruffle, rugs and lamps?

A. Have pottery blue bedspreads and a narrow yellow and white stripe for dust ruffles and draperies. Rugs should be a soft blue. I think yellow pole lamps and yellow accessories would bring a warm note into the room.

Hats Are Dramatic, Dashing For Fall

Will you go Romantic or Sportive? That's the big story on the new-looking hats this fall!

By day it's Sportive, and nothing's more Sportive than felt when it comes to hats.

Tall-crowned fedoras take precedence, some chin - strapped, some with interesting stitching details, some even foldable, but all giving the wearer an irresistable dash and nonchalance.

The Garbo slouch is back, too, with its glamour and mystery, so provocative with the deeply curving brim, so very flattering to almost every face.

And never have turbans been so rich, so opulent, as they are this year for late - day - in - to - evening wear. The feel of the mystery and seductiveness of the Far East is captured in their swirling folds, from the little draped shapes to towering two-foot high creations.

Newest and most exciting of all on the hat scene are the frankly fabulous fake furs, done in everything from hoods and babushkas to turbans to bouffant bubble cloches.

Almost - leopard lines the brim of a wide Breton for town, for example, and bunny-beaver makes the pointed crown of a Garbo pull-on that could easily make a dramatic entrance into a chic restaurant.

The theater and movies have had their influence, too, adding little "Oliver" caps for the campus set — high and handsome "Coachman" shapes for dash with a suit — adding a dramatic Arabian influence through all the hat shapes from "Lawrence of Arabia".

Many important milliners have gone mad for the Oriental - Arabian influences. The fall collections gleam with jewels, mosaics, coolie shapes, pagodas — all in rich colorings that carry more than a teeny hint of Oriental flavoring.

Fur, felt, feathers, fabrics — just pick the most flattering to you and your life. All are being used this year to add drama and excitement to the tip-top layer of the fashion scene.

Accessories From Trend House

A room without accessories is as unfinished as undotted i's and uncrossed t's. For like a signature on a letter, accessories make your home indelibly yours. Truly, one picture (on your wall) can tell more about the way you live than a thousand words. An accessory can be as striking as a very large painting or as subtle as a delicate, antique crystal paperweight; as casual as a banjo or as formal as a fine silver candelabra. A wall arrangement of paintings, prints, sculpture and whatever else takes your fancy may be the focal point of your room, but a colorful ashtray that perfectly perks up a corner table is just as important to the total effect.

Whatever decorative or functional purposes your accessories serve, the most important thing about each one should be that you like it and feel comfortable living with it.

INDEPENDENT FEDERATION

Malaysia Dream Becomes Reality

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) — Malaya called on Indonesia and the Philippines Saturday to welcome the independent Federation of Malaysia, which comes into being at midnight today.

U.N. investigators reported they had found the people of two member territories, British North Borneo and Sarawak, whose attitude had been questioned, were strongly for the linkup with Singapore and Malaya in the federation.

Both Indonesia and the Philippines have looked with suspicion on the project, backed by Britain and the United States, to create a new anti-Communist nation of 10 million from the four states, all bordering the South China Sea.

"We believe he will go along," this source said.

There was no immediate response from Indonesia. President Sukarno's government has objected repeatedly to the federation, calling it an excuse to continue British rule in Southeast Asia and denouncing it as a neocolonist venture to encircle Indonesia. There has been border skirmishing between Indonesian Borneo and the British.

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant announced in New York a sizeable majority of the people of both Sarawak and North Borneo want to join in the federation.

Thant's finding was based on a 98-page report by a nine-man U.N. mission on a survey of the two colonies made in answer to a request to the secretary-general by Malaya and its two suspicious neighbors at a manila summit conference six weeks ago.

The establishment of the federation, originally set for Aug. 31, was postponed to give time for the completion of the survey by the mission, headed by Laurence Michelmore of the United States.

British Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys pledged military support under treaty obligations to the federation in case of "outside interference."

His statement, issued in Kuching, Sarawak, was interpreted as a clear warning to Indonesia to keep its hands off Malaysia.

Mayor Qualifies For Two Posts

DONALDSONVILLE, La. (AP) — Dr. D. C. Foti, mayor of Donaldsonville, has qualified as candidate for two state offices — sheriff of Ascension Parish and state senator from the 11th district.

Foti, a dentist, said the law forbids holding two offices at the same time, but there are no prohibitions against qualifying for two.

He said he will try to win both offices and decide which he wants to fill.

Dr. Foti said he would pursue election to one of the offices when he could discover which was in the worst shape.

Student Shot As Jamboree Becomes Riot

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — A 17-year-old boy was shot in the back, car windows were smashed and fists swung at a high school football jamboree Friday night.

The crowd of 7,000 had gathered at Salinas High Stadium for the annual kickoff celebration of six schools in the Monterey Bay League.

It poured out to the grounds of the high school, onto Main Street, and got so out of hand that one officer said: "Everybody went nuts."

A youth slipped up behind Roger Williams, 17, Salinas, shot him in the back with a pistol and disappeared in the crowd. The bullet just missed Williams' heart and lodged near his lung.

Reports came in to police from all over the city of malicious mischief and disturbances.

There were no arrests.

The department will establish wilderness campsites for canoeists along the Wisconsin in the 60-mile stretch from Sauk City to where the steam enters the Mississippi River in the southwestern corner of the state.

Houses In Parade Of Homes Praised

The senior editor of a national trade journal for builders Saturday reported that he was particularly impressed with the high quality of construction in houses which will be featured in the coming Parade of Homes here.

Robert Hamill of Practical Builder magazine, which is published in Chicago, came to Monroe Saturday morning from New Orleans, to make a tour of the houses being featured in the Parade of Homes.

Following the inspection of homes in the Twin Cities, he said, "The buyer of a new house today in Monroe is certainly getting his money's worth. I was very favorably impressed with the houses. I think you have one of the best groups of houses for a town of this size."

The editor said he had run across several very interesting possibilities for feature stories, and that he or a member of his staff might return in about a month and do a story on one of the local builders.

Commenting on the merits of the annual home show which is sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Association of Home Builders, Hamill said, "I think the Parade has a particular value in that the person in the market for a home has an opportunity to see what all of the builders in this area are building, and he has a chance to make a choice as far as design is concerned. He also has an opportunity to compare quality of construction.

Hamill was accompanied on the tour of homes by Ronald Morris, executive officer of the Northeast Louisiana Association of Home Builders.

Morris said he hoped Hamill would be able to return to the Monroe area around the time of the state convention of the Louisiana Home Builders Association, which will be held here October 24-26. The home builders official observed that Hamill was favorably impressed with some of the technological inovations used by builders here, and the design and built-in features of homes visited.

The Parade of Homes will be held on the weekends of Sept. 21-22 and Sept. 28-29 during the hours of 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Free plan books will be available to visitors.

Builders taking part in the parade are Bradford Built Homes, A. Lee Booth Construction Company, Mid-South Homes, Russell and Hazel, Loyd Fox builder of Carson Homes, Monroe Custom Builders, and Butler Real Estate and Construction Company.

WHERE EXPLORERS CANOED

SAUK CITY, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin Conservation Department is proceeding with plans to recreate the old canoe route down the Wisconsin River taken by the 17th Century explorers, Father Jacques Marquette and Louis Joliet.

The department will establish wilderness campsites for canoeists along the Wisconsin in the 60-mile stretch from Sauk City to where the steam enters the Mississippi River in the southwestern corner of the state.

Houses In Parade Of Homes Praised

The senior editor of a national trade journal for builders Saturday reported that he was particularly impressed with the high quality of construction in houses which will be featured in the coming Parade of Homes here.

Robert Hamill of Practical Builder magazine, which is published in Chicago, came to Monroe Saturday morning from New Orleans, to make a tour of the houses being featured in the Parade of Homes.

Following the inspection of homes in the Twin Cities, he said, "The buyer of a new house today in Monroe is certainly getting his money's worth. I was very favorably impressed with the houses. I think you have one of the best groups of houses for a town of this size."

The editor said he had run across several very interesting possibilities for feature stories, and that he or a member of his staff might return in about a month and do a story on one of the local builders.

Commenting on the merits of the annual home show which is sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Association of Home Builders, Hamill said, "I think the Parade has a particular value in that the person in the market for a home has an opportunity to see what all of the builders in this area are building, and he has a chance to make a choice as far as design is concerned. He also has an opportunity to compare quality of construction.

Hamill was accompanied on the tour of homes by Ronald Morris, executive officer of the Northeast Louisiana Association of Home Builders.

Morris said he hoped Hamill would be able to return to the Monroe area around the time of the state convention of the Louisiana Home Builders Association, which will be held here October 24-26. The home builders official observed that Hamill was favorably impressed with some of the technological inovations used by builders here, and the design and built-in features of homes visited.

The Parade of Homes will be held on the weekends of Sept. 21-22 and Sept. 28-29 during the hours of 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Free plan books will be available to visitors.

Builders taking part in the parade are Bradford Built Homes, A. Lee Booth Construction Company, Mid-South Homes, Russell and Hazel, Loyd Fox builder of Carson Homes, Monroe Custom Builders, and Butler Real Estate and Construction Company.

BOOKS

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Service For Library Outlined

The latest addition to the services of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is a collection of framed prints of good pictures which may be borrowed from the Library for a period of one month for home use. This is a service which we have wanted to start for a number of years, but have not been able to do so, because of funds. The Monroe Junior Charity League gave the Library the money with which to inaugurate this service. The pictures are on exhibit at the Ouachita National Bank on DeSiard Street and will be there for another week. They will then be on exhibit at the Main Library for two weeks and October 7, we will begin lending the pictures. There are twelve pictures in the collection and we hope that we can add others before long. The purpose of this picture lending collection is to help people develop a love for good art among the people of the Parish. If a person becomes attached to one of the pictures, he may order it through an art dealer. The Library does not sell pictures, we merely stimulate and develope an ininterest in them. If you have an opportunity to go by the Ouachita National Bank this next week, stop in and see the pictures. If not, you may see them at the Main Library for two weeks before they are loaned out. We are taking reserves on the pictures and they will be loaned in the order of the reserves taken.

Probably the outstanding fiction book of the week is "Cities Of The Flesh" by Zoe Oldenbourg. This author is considered one of the outstanding writers of historical fiction and this book should add to her reputation. This is an account of the bloody wars between the protestants and Catholics in 13th century France. Through this story of horror and misery runs a beautiful love story, which will make the book readable for many readers.

A book which will be enjoyed by the entire family is "The Richest Poor Folks" by Leland Cooley. This is an account of a ten year old boys sojourn with his grandmother and the relatives on a farm in upper Sacremento Valley. It is a delightful and heartwarming story which many readers will enjoy. "The Lost Art" by James Bernstein is a different sort of book. It is made up entirely of dialogue and there is no descriptive material. It has had good reviews and many people enjoy reading it. For the readers of mystery stories, there are three new titles, "Nightingale at Noon" by Margaret Summerton, "Zanzibar Intrigue" by Van Wyck Mason and "Undercover Cat" by Mildren Gordon.

Cook book enthusiasts will enjoy a new book "A Time for Cooking" by Zada Taylor. It has excellent recipes for American cooking. Robert Smith is the author of a most interesting book dealing with "Pro Football." It will be extremely popular with men. Books about Shakespeare are always needed by students and the Library has a new title which should be very valuable. It is "Understanding Shakespeare" by Frederick Ludowyk and there are copies in each branch of the Library.

"The Last Day of the Old World" by Adrian Ball is a very interesting factual account of men and events of the 24 hour period in which Great Britian and France declared war on Nazi Germany on September 3, 1939. This was a world which vanished for good with the opening of World War II and Mr. Ball has recreated it in an unforgettable manner. It is a book which many readers will want.

An interesting new book about American history is "The Americans" by Oscar Handlin. It is well-written and will be most useful.

A distinct addition to the religious collection of the Library is a set of small books, which has been placed in each branch of the Library. It is called "The Layman's Bible Commentary" and is edited by Balmer H. Kelly. All of the volumes have not yet been published, but we have a standing order for them and will receive them as they come out. Volumes now on hand are: v.i. "Introduction to the Bible" by Kenneth J. Foreman; v.2. "Book of Genesis" by Charles T. Fritsch; v.6. "The Book of Judges" by Eric C. Rust; v.8. "Book of Ezra" by Balmer H. Kelly; v.9. "Book of Psalms" by Arnold B. Rhodes; v.12 "Book of Jeremiah" by Howard R. Kuist; v.13, "Book of Ezekial" by Carl G. Howie; v.14, "Book of Hosea" by Jacob Myers; v.15, "Book of Micah" by James Gailey and the new testament volumes: v.16, "Gospel according to Matthew" by Suzanne De Dietrich; v.17 "Gospel according to Mark" by Paul S. Minear; v. 18 "Gospel According to Luke" by Donald Miller; v.20 "Acts of the Apostles" by Albert C. Winn; v.21 "Letter of Paul to the Romans" by Kenneth Foreman; v.22 "Letter of Paul to the Galatians" by Archibald Hunter, v.24, "Letter to the Hebrews" by John W. Bowman and "First, Second and Third Letters of John" by Julian P. Love. These books may be checked out from the Libraries and taken for home use and will be most useful to Bible students.

Pearl Buck Sets Novel In Korea

THE LIVING REED. By Pearl Buck. John Day. $6.95.

A writer who understands the Orient as do few others, Miss Buck has written a novel of major scope about Korea — the Land of the Morning Calm — and the Korean people.

It is a long story. There is room in it for the weaving together of much lore of the people, their thoughts, habits, history and culture. It begins in 1881 and ends shortly after World War II. Its patterns presage the Korean War.

The author has used the device of narrating the experiences of one remarkable family, through three generations. With an adroitness that falters only a little here and there, she manages to personify Korea's conflicts through five men of the Kim family, together, with their wives, friends and associates.

First there is Il-han, the scholar who is adviser to an ill-fated queen (his father has been adviser to the king) in the days when Korea thought it could be a hermit nation in the triple shadow of China, Japan and Russia. Il-han catches the first intimations of the changes to come, and takes part in an unprecedented mission to America.

His elder son Yul-chun goes underground because of the Japanese occupations, learns revolutionary methods with the Chinese Reds, but becomes disillusioned with both the Chinese and communism. Il-han's younger son Yul-han becomes a Christian and dies in an abortive movement for independence at the end of World War I.

In the third generation, Yul-chan's son Sasha typifies the Russian-oriented Koreans who later were to fight on the North Korean side, and Yul-han's son Liang typifies the Western-oriented South Koreans.

In all these kaleidoscopic episodes, there is an undercurrent of the country's relations with the United States, not always to America's credit.

It is a moving novel. It is not mere entertainment. Nor is it didactic; it is illuminating. It is a story that catches the essence of basic human desires and aspirations, as this vital essence arises from the good earth. Its telling has a magical conviction.

Robert Frost Reveals Self In Writings

For anyone who is even slightly interested in literary affairs of this era, Frost's many letters to Untermeyer constitute a remarkable document, highly revealing and charged with strong personal insights.

A long friendship between these two men — Untermeyer, the poet and critic, was 10 years younger than Frost — began in 1915 and was cut off only by the elder's death. Frost's letters are completely unguarded and contain a good many things he would not have said for publication. He always refused to go autobiographical. His biographers certainly will have to take these letters into account, for they shed lights of many colors upon his life work.

To the general public, at least in recent years, Frost was a nice old rugged individualist who said homely things about American ways, in unabashed rhymes untainted by experimental tricks.

That image is not changed, but definitely is modified, in these letters. He is revealed as an inveterate punster and word - player. He discloses himself as a man of driving purpose who saw an enemy, or at least a rival, in every contemporary poet. In the social and political sense, he emphasizes his conservatism and isolationism. He disliked change, in either rhyming or the universe.

The letters show there was more cider vinegar in him than many have surmised. There is a lot of shop talk in them, and he has snappish things to say about many of his rivals. He also makes some tart remarks about teaching, a field in which his experiences were not too happy.

Polarity Debate Is Outlined

LITERATURE AND SCIENCE. By Aldous Huxley. Harper. $3.50.

The long Victorian debate over the polarity of the mind, separating the men of the laboratory and the men of letters, has been reactiviated in recent years, particularly by Sir Charles Snow.

Now Huxley has contributed some illuminating comments on the nature of this dilemma. This is the Huxley who, three decades ago, wrote a sardonic commentary on the future called "Brave New World."

His point of departure now is the idea that both the scientist and the writer "purify" the crudities of everyday language to achieve their own ends.

The scientist does it by choosing the most limited, precise and objective terms, and adding an invented, instrumental jargon of his own, to convey largely abstract ideas about commonly observed phenomena. But the writer manipulates words in a subjective way, using subleties, nuances and fanciful expressions to convey inner meanings that often are intuitional. And the writer's use of language can be an end in itself, with its own intrinsic beauty.

It is Huxley's contention that writers should have a better understanding of their day's scientific discoveries, but he qualifies this by saying they need have only a bird's eye view of the main principles, lest they bog down in concepts which soon will become obsolete. He assigns to the writers a role of being, among other things, super-journalists interpreting the explorations of the laboratory men.

The author uses many examples from literature — particularly from the poets — to illustrate his presentation. He is a scholarly writer, so it is advisable to bring a nimble mind to the reading of his book. But it is a valuable, mind-stirring text for thought.

Cities Of The Flesh Is Dull For Majority

CITIES OF THE FLESH. By Zoe Oldenbourg. Pantheon. $5.95.

For those who find joy in the esoteric, sometimes eerily other - world realms of the medieval era, this novel doubtless will be an important book.

But the converse of that statement is that readers who like to delve into the general category of historical novels probably will be baffled, and the browsing, casual reader will be utterly repulsed.

Mme. Oldenbourg is an able, acknowledged specialist in the period of the Pope's Albigensian Crusade against the Cathar heretics in 12th Century France, the scene of this novel.

This story is about Roger de Montbrun, knight. It is his misfortune, as a Catholic, to fall in love with a woman of the Cathar faith, who is married to another knight. Their adultery, fancifully rationalized in the chivalrous medeval manner, doesn't last long. Religious trougle.

Poor Roger, who is not very bright, also is unlucky in his job. He is a staff swordsman in the retinue of one Count Raymond, a slippery petty nobel to whom "face" is more important than it ever was to a Chinese warlord. Sides changed quickly in those days, and Roger seems always to be on the wrong side. So he spends considerable time in dungeons and torture chambers.

The over-all effect of this narrative is to drive home the thought that medieval butchery and religious hair-splitting were as grotesque as some of the butchery and ideological contortions of our present age.

The author certainly is skilled in dialogue, description and historical intricacies. It is a matter of opinion whether her emotional commentary, woven into the text, is valid. Her research obviously has been prodigious; unfortunately, she has seen fit not to waste a dribble of it, so that the tired reader is confronted with 500 pages of fine print, about half of which could have been cut out, quite beneficially.

Medievalists, this is your book, and a grand one for you. Other readers will be forgiven for slinking off into something less exhausting.

Religion Study Time Is Limited

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

You can't expect a child to learn much about the Christian faith in a class which meets for half an hour a week.

This hard truth is slowly impressing itself on the millions of families who rely on Sunday school to provide all or most of the religious training which their children receive.

REV. JAMES DOAN

The traditional Sunday school session is one hour long. But at least half of the time is taken up with a worship assembly, shuffling through hallways to classrooms, taking the roll, making announcements and other things that have little to do with systematic instruction.

What this means is stated succintly by the Rev. Robert F. Parker of Philadelphia, a Christian education specialist of the Lutheran Church in America.

"A young person spends more time in one year studying arithmetic than he spends in five years of Sunday school classes," says the Rev. Mr. Parker.

Under these circumstances, he finds it hardly surprising that "Christian training and experience gradually retire to a dusty corner of the child's thinking."

A variety of efforts are underway in major Protestant denominations to provide more time for religious education.

One possibility is to lengthen the Sunday morning session. The Episcopal Church has recommended a minimum of 90 minutes, and the United Presbyterian Church is urging all of its congregations to allocate at least 75 minutes for Sunday school.

But religious educators see little hope for a major breakthrough in this direction. Pastors find it difficult to fit a long Sunday school session into a morning schedule which is already complicated, in many cases, by the necessity of holding two adult worship services. And parents — especially those who regard Sunday school as an intrusion on their "morning to sleep" — are often unenthusiastic about longer sessions.

A more promising trend, which has been developing in recent years, is to supplement Sunday school with one or two hours of "church school" on a weekday.

Sometimes this is done through an arrangement with public schools whereby children are released early at their parents' request. This is called "released time" and the Supreme Court has ruled that there is nothing unconstitutional about public schools cooperating with churches in this way.

No one has any reliable statistics on the number of children now attending weekday religious classes. The National Council of Churches guesses that of the 30 million school age children enrolled in Protestant Sunday schools, perhaps 4 million receive some weekday religious instruction. The Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, which provides religious classes for Catholic children attending public schools, estimates that about 3.5 million are under instruction in its classes, which usually meet either on a weekday or on Saturday morning.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

A Home With A Built-In Pool Excellent For You

There was a time when swimming pools, like air conditioners and two - car garages, were considered extravagances of the idle rich.

But the trend toward family pools is gathering momentum rapidly. Already there are so many types of pools available it's getting confusing, installation has become a business in itself, and the indication is that it won't be long before pools have stepped down from the luxury category altogether.

One result of the boom already is noticeable in pool - studded suburbia. There are precious few homes which can accommodate a pool to its fullest advantage.

Though recreation plainly is its primary purpose, a pool should be more than just a backyard swimming hole. The refreshing natural beauty of pooled water as a landscape attraction is recognized everywhere from the Taj Mahal to the Washington Monument — and so it can be with your home.

Today's House of the Week, J-93 in the series, was designed by architect Rudolph A. Matern to take maximum advantage of both the recreational and aesthetic functions of a pool.

Moreover, the arrangement of the house is such that the pool could be added later. Meanwhile the convenient shower room adjoining the laundry could be used for storage; a partition could substitute for the door between the pool bath and main bath.

The house is a crisply contemporary four - bedroom ranch. Its exterior is subdued and uncluttered. A dramatic prow-shaped living room bay with exposed roof beams complements the sturdy rectangular shapes of the bedroom and garage wings and the chimney. Vertical siding contrasts with the horizontal roofline. Living area excluding garage and porches is 2,167 square feet; over - all dimensions are 85'4" wide by 47'-2" deep.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The delightful vista of the pool can be enjoyed not only from the broad terrace and pool porch with its angled walls, but from five inside rooms as well: the family room, kitchen, dining room and even the living room and master bedroom.

Because of the excellent shower arrangement in the service area behind the garage, you might choose to eliminate the pool bath in the bedroom wing. If so, it could become a large walk-in closet. The hall door to the adjoining bath then would be walled, making it a private master bath. A family bath still remains, nicely placed to serve the three family bedrooms.

The house is furnished for ease of upkeep — a factor all pool owners will appreciate. The family room and kitchen floor are finished with resilient tile in a flagstone design and the walls are plastic coated panels with a wood grain finish. The floors of both pool service areas are completely tiled in ceramics and their walls are smiliar plastic treated panels.

The kitchen-family room is designed for convenience and makes optimum use of every available inch. There is plenty of counter space, and cabinets are numerous; the uninterrupted counter (with cabinets above and below) on the wall adjoining the living room is 10'6" long.

In the formal living room, a cathedral ceiling follows the roof line. Panoramic windows and a corner fireplace add further dramatic effects.

The dining room, family room and master bedroom all have direct access to the pool. From poolside breakfasts through midday splash parties to a refreshing dip at night, this is a house built for enjoyment.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La. and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan J-93.

Police Believe Fourteen Were In Train Gang

LONDON (AP) — British police now believe 14 men made up the gang that pulled off the great train robbery and they think they know the names of every one.

But they see little chance of recovering the loot in the near future. It may have been taken out of England.

Only about 10 per cent of the $7.28 million in loot has been recovered and 11 persons are under arrest. Five are charged with receiving small amounts of the stolen cash; six are accused of actually helping rob the train. They are believed to be small-fry in the gang.

All are due in court next Friday for a hearing in which police will have to produce enough evidence against them to make the charges stick.

The bulk of the money is believed to have been taken out of the country a few days after the robbery, probably in a private boat or plane. Several members of the gang are believed to have underworld contacts on the Continent. Their European accomplices could have banked the cash for them and the robbers could withdraw it in foreign currency.

Scotland Yard sent pictures of two suspects to 25 countries this weekend. They are Bruce Richard Reynolds and John Thomas Daly, both of whom have been reported traveling with their wives in one party.

Police believe Reynolds and Daly may have gone to the Continent for plastic surgery.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Service For Library Outlined

The latest addition to the services of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is a collection of framed prints of good pictures which may be borrowed from the Library for a period of one month for home use. This is a service which we have wanted to start for a number of years, but have not been able to do so, because of funds. The Monroe Junior Charity League gave the Library the money with which to inaugurate this service. The pictures are on exhibit at the Ouachita National Bank on DeSiard Street and will be there for another week. They will then be on exhibit at the Main Library for two weeks and October 7, we will begin lending the pictures. There are twelve pictures in the collection and we hope that we can add others before long. The purpose of this picture lending collection is to help people develop a love for good art among the people of the Parish. If a person becomes attached to one of the pictures, he may order it through an art dealer. The Library does not sell pictures, we merely stimulate and develope an ininterest in them. If you have an opportunity to go by the Ouachita National Bank this next week, stop in and see the pictures. If not, you may see them at the Main Library for two weeks before they are loaned out. We are taking reserves on the pictures and they will be loaned in the order of the reserves taken.

Probably the outstanding fiction book of the week is "Cities Of The Flesh" by Zoe Oldenbourg. This author is considered one of the outstanding writers of historical fiction and this book should add to her reputation. This is an account of the bloody wars between the protestants and Catholics in 13th century France. Through this story of horror and misery runs a beautiful love story, which will make the book readable for many readers.

A book which will be enjoyed by the entire family is "The Richest Poor Folks" by Leland Cooley. This is an account of a ten year old boys sojourn with his grandmother and the relatives on a farm in upper Sacremento Valley. It is a delightful and heartwarming story which many readers will enjoy. "The Lost Art" by James Bernstein is a different sort of book. It is made up entirely of dialogue and there is no descriptive material. It has had good reviews and many people enjoy reading it. For the readers of mystery stories, there are three new titles, "Nightingale at Noon" by Margaret Summerton, "Zanzibar Intrigue" by Van Wyck Mason and "Undercover Cat" by Mildren Gordon.

Cook book enthusiasts will enjoy a new book "A Time for Cooking" by Zada Taylor. It has excellent recipes for American cooking. Robert Smith is the author of a most interesting book dealing with "Pro Football." It will be extremely popular with men. Books about Shakespeare are always needed by students and the Library has a new title which should be very valuable. It is "Understanding Shakespeare" by Frederick Ludowyk and there are copies in each branch of the Library.

"The Last Day of the Old World" by Adrian Ball is a very interesting factual account of men and events of the 24 hour period in which Great Britian and France declared war on Nazi Germany on September 3, 1939. This was a world which vanished for good with the opening of World War II and Mr. Ball has recreated it in an unforgettable manner. It is a book which many readers will want.

An interesting new book about American history is "The Americans" by Oscar Handlin. It is well-written and will be most useful.

A distinct addition to the religious collection of the Library is a set of small books, which has been placed in each branch of the Library. It is called "The Layman's Bible Commentary" and is edited by Balmer H. Kelly. All of the volumes have not yet been published, but we have a standing order for them and will receive them as they come out. Volumes now on hand are: v.i. "Introduction to the Bible" by Kenneth J. Foreman; v.2. "Book of Genesis" by Charles T. Fritsch; v.6. "The Book of Judges" by Eric C. Rust; v.8. "Book of Ezra" by Balmer H. Kelly; v.9. "Book of Psalms" by Arnold B. Rhodes; v.12 "Book of Jeremiah" by Howard R. Kuist; v.13. "Book of Ezekial" by Carl G. Howie; v.14, "Book of Hosea" by Jacob Myers; v.15, "Book of Micah" by James Gailey and the new testament volumes: v.16, "Gospel according to Matthew" by Suzanne De Dietrich; v.17 "Gospel according to Mark" by Paul S. Minear; v. 18 "Gospel According to Luke" by Donald Miller; v.20 "Acts of the Apostles" by Albert C. Winn; v.21 "Letter of Paul to the Romans" by Kenneth Foreman; v.22 "Letter of Paul to the Galatians" by Archibald Hunter, v.24, "Letter to the Hebrews" by John W. Bowman and "First, Second and Third Letters of John" by Julian P. Love. These books may be checked out from the Libraries and taken for home use and will be most useful to Bible students.

Pearl Buck Sets Novel In Korea

THE LIVING REED. By Pearl Buck. John Day. $6.95.

A writer who understands the Orient as do few others, Miss Buck has written a novel of major scope about Korea — the Land of the Morning Calm — and the Korean people.

It is a long story. There is room in it for the weaving together of much lore of the people, their thoughts, habits, history and culture. It begins in 1881 and ends shortly after World War II. Its patterns presage the Korean War.

The author has used the device of narrating the experiences of one remarkable family, through three generations. With an adroitness that falters only a little here and there, she manages to personify Korea's conflicts through five men of the Kim family, together, with their wives, friends and associates.

First there is Il-han, the scholar who is adviser to an ill-fated queen (his father has been adviser to the king) in the days when Korea thought it could be a hermit nation in the triple shadow of China, Japan and Russia. Il-han catches the first intimations of the changes to come, and takes part in an unprecedented mission to America.

His elder son Yul-chun goes underground because of the Japanese occupations, learns revolutionary methods with the Chinese Reds, but becomes disillusioned with both the Chinese and communism. Il-han's younger son Yul-han becomes a Christian and dies in an abortive movement for independence at the end of World War I.

In the third generation, Yul-chan's son Sasha typifies the Russian-oriented Koreans who later were to fight on the North Korean side, and Yul-han's son Liang typifies the Western-oriented South Koreans.

In all these kaleidoscopic episodes, there is an undercurrent of the country's relations with the United States, not always to America's credit.

It is a moving novel. It is not mere entertainment. Nor is it didactic; it is illuminating. It is a story that catches the essence of basic human desires and aspirations, as this vital essence arises from the good earth. Its telling has a magical conviction.

Robert Frost Reveals Self In Writings

For anyone who is even slightly interested in literary affairs of this era, Frost's many letters to Untermeyer constitute a remarkable document, highly revealing and charged with strong personal insights.

A long friendship between these two men — Untermeyer, the poet and critic, was 10 years younger than Frost — began in 1915 and was cut off only by the elder's death. Frost's letters are completely unguarded and contain a good many things he would not have said for publication. He always refused to go autobiographical. His biographers certainly will have to take these letters into account, for they shed lights of many colors upon his life work.

To the general public, at least in recent years, Frost was a nice old rugged individualist who said homely things about American ways, in unabashed rhymes untainted by experimental tricks.

That image is not changed, but definitely is modified, in these letters. He is revealed as an inveterate punster and word - player. He discloses himself as a man of driving purpose who saw an enemy, or at least a rival, in every contemporary poet. In the social and political sense, he emphasizes his conservatism and isolationism. He disliked change, in either rhyming or the universe.

The letters show there was more cider vinegar in him than many have surmised. There is a lot of shop talk in them, and he has snappish things to say about many of his rivals. He also makes some tart remarks about teaching, a field in which his experiences were not too happy.

Polarity Debate Is Outlined

LITERATURE AND SCIENCE. By Aldous Huxley. Harper. $3.50.

The long Victorian debate over the polarity of the mind, separating the men of the laboratory and the men of letters, has been reactiviated in recent years, particularly by Sir Charles Snow.

Now Huxley has contributed some illuminating comments on the nature of this dilemma. This is the Huxley who, three decades ago, wrote a sardonic commentary on the future called "Brave New World."

His point of departure now is the idea that both the scientist and the writer "purify" the crudities of everyday language to achieve their own ends.

The scientist does it by choosing the most limited, precise and objective terms, and adding an invented, instrumental jargon of his own, to convey largely abstract ideas about commonly observed phenomena. But the writer manipulates words in a subjective way, using subleties, nuances and fanciful expressions to convey inner meanings that often are intuitional. And the writer's use of language can be an end in itself, with its own intrinsic beauty.

It is Huxley's contention that writers should have a better understanding of their day's scientific discoveries, but he qualifies this by saying they need have only a bird's eye view of the main principles, lest they bog down in concepts which soon will become obsolete. He assigns to the writers a role of being, among other things, super-journalists interpreting the explorations of the laboratory men.

The author uses many examples from literature — particularly from the poets — to illustrate his presentation. He is a scholarly writer, so it is advisable to bring a nimble mind to the reading of his book. But it is a valuable, mind-stirring text for thought.

Cities Of The Flesh Is Dull For Majority

CITIES OF THE FLESH. By Zoe Oldenbourg. Pantheon. $5.95.

For those who find joy in the esoteric, sometimes eerily other - world realms of the medieval era, this novel doubtless will be an important book.

But the converse of that statement is that readers who like to delve into the general category of historical novels probably will be baffled, and the browsing, casual reader will be utterly repulsed.

Mme. Oldenbourg is an able, acknowledged specialist in the period of the Pope's Albigensian Crusade against the Cathar heretics in 12th Century France, the scene of this novel.

This story is about Roger de Montbrun, knight. It is his misfortune, as a Catholic, to fall in love with a woman of the Cathar faith, who is married to another knight. Their adultery, fancifully rationalized in the chivalrous medeval manner, doesn't last long. Religious trougle.

Poor Roger, who is not very bright, also is unlucky in his job. He is a staff swordsman in the retinue of one Count Raymond, a slippery petty nobel to whom "face" is more important than it ever was to a Chinese warlord. Sides changed quickly in those days, and Roger seems always to be on the wrong side. So he spends considerable time in dungeons and torture chambers.

The over-all effect of this narrative is to drive home the thought that medieval butchery and religious hair-splitting were as grotesque as some of the butchery and ideological contortions of our present age.

The author certainly is skilled in dialogue, description and historical intricacies. It is a matter of opinion whether her emotional commentary, woven into the text, is valid. Her research obviously has been prodigious; unfortunately, she has seen fit not to waste a dribble of it, so that the tired reader is confronted with 500 pages of fine print, about half of which could have been cut out, quite beneficially.

Medievalists, this is your book, and a grand one for you. Other readers will be forgiven for slinking off into something less exhausting.

Religion Study Time Is Limited

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

You can't expect a child to learn much about the Christian faith in a class which meets for half an hour a week.

This hard truth is slowly impressing itself on the millions of families who rely on Sunday school to provide all or most of the religious training which their children receive.

REV. JAMES DOAN

The traditional Sunday school session is one hour long. But at least half of the time is taken up with a worship assembly, shuffling through hallways to classrooms, taking the roll, making announcements and other things that have little to do with systematic instruction.

Police Believe Fourteen Were In Train Gang

LONDON (AP) — British police now believe 14 men made up the gang that pulled off the great train robbery and they think they know the names of every one.

But they see little chance of recovering the loot in the near future. It may have been taken out of England.

Only about 10 per cent of the $7.28 million in loot has been recovered and 11 persons are under arrest. Five are charged with receiving small amounts of the stolen cash, six are accused of actually helping rob the train. They are believed to be small-fry in the gang.

All are due in court next Friday for a hearing in which police will have to produce enough evidence against them to make the charges stick.

The bulk of the money is believed to have been taken out of the country a few days after the robbery, probably in a private boat or plane. Several members of the gang are believed to have underworld contacts on the Continent. Their European accomplices could have banked the cash for them and the robbers could withdraw it in foreign currency.

Scotland Yard sent pictures of two suspects to 25 countries this weekend. They are Bruce Richard Reynolds and John Thomas Daly, both of whom have been reported traveling with their wives in one party.

Police believe Reynolds and Daly may have gone to the Continent for plastic surgery.

THANKS FOR THE CHARITY

NEW YORK (AP) —George Jessel will be master of ceremonies for the opening of the world's largest shoe polish plant (Esquire) in Long Island in September.

Jessel is doing it as a thank you for Irving J. Bottner, company president, for the money he has raised for a favorite charity of Jessel's — the City of Hope.

Chips From The Stump

John McKeithen

MERRYVILLE (Special) — Gubernatorial candidate John McKeithen on a stumping tour here Saturday told a crowd that "Louisiana is in dire need of a new, fresh and vibrant administration if we are to make up for the lost opportunity we have already suffered."

McKeithen said, "Our state lags shamefully behind the other states of the union in spite of our superior natural resources, and that drag can be traced directly to the low caliber of our state's leadership and the corresponding poor image we have projected across the nation."

The public service commissioner pledged that "the era of power politics and selfish ambition among our state's leaders must come to a screeching halt if we are to expect existing businesses to grow and new industry to locate here."

Pointing out the need for a planned program for state development, McKeithen stated he is pledged to the creation of a new long range planning commission made up of the finest brains from our universities and colleges.

McKeithen stated, "We can no longer afford the luxury of spending a billion dollars a year in Louisiana without honestly knowing where we are going and what it is going to cost us in the long run to get there."

Today McKeithen and his ticket will speak in Estherwood, Church Point, Scott and Carencro.

Louis Michot Jr.

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Representative Louis J. Michot Jr., Saturday qualified with the Democratic State Central Committee as a candidate for governor of Louisiana.

Michot said in qualifying, "I seek the support of all independent men and women who believe we must elect a governor completely free of ties with the Long dynasty, the financial powers and the political interests that have bled this state for so long. We are in this campaign to win, and we will, with the votes of those independent men and women who still think for themselves."

Michot announced that he was leaving immediately to visit Michot for Governor organizations throughout the state.

"Our parish organizations have been working hard, and we're ready to go," Michot said. "With no large financial support, our campaign will depend on us meeting and talking to as many of the voters as possible to get our program across."

Michot, 41, was born in Lafayette parish, and raised in Evangeline and Lafayette parishes. He is married to the former Patricia Ann Smith of Patterson, and the father of seven children.

Michot is presently franchise owner of a drive-in chain in Louisiana and Mississippi. He has been active in many civic, professional and service organizations, and was honored in 1956 by the Louisiana Future Farmers of America for his contributions to their South Louisiana programs. Michot is an active pilot and his brightly painted plane has become a familiar trade mark of his "flying campaign" throughout the state.

? Committees Try To Write Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two congressional committees, working with all deliberate speed, have reached the make-or-break point in writing the administration's controversial civil rights legislation.

Charman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., was reported ready to lead his civil rights subcommittee through the delicate task of writing a ban on discrimination in public accommodations.

A high - level strategy session among Democrats and Republicans was held late in the week to prepare for subcommittee action on the public accommodations and voting sections of President Kennedy's civil rights bill.

The three hour meeting was designed to determine what limitations should be placed in the section which would bar discrimination in hotels, motels, restaurants, theaters, lunch counters and other public facilities.

Some of the emphasis was placed on writing a section which can draw enough votes needed for passage of what many consider the key to the administration measure.

The Senate Commerce Committee also was ready to tackle the heart of the public accommodations section.

Gillis Long

LEESVILLE, La. (AP) — Rep. Gillis Long, D-La., a candidate for governor, followed family political traditions Saturday and launched his state stumping here in Vernon Parish.

"Ever since the days of Huey P. Long, we Longs have started our stumping campaigns at 9:30 in the morning on a Saturday in Leesville," he said.

"I came back here to Vernon Parish because the people have been such good friends of the Longs for 40 years."

Slapping also at John J. McKeithen, another gubernatorial hopeful, Long said, "Instead of McKeithen trying to tie the Kennedy label around somebody else's neck, he ought to get the Kennedy lipstick off his own face."

Long said the state's educational system has gone to pot, and the Long leadership is needed to get the state out of the "first place of illiteracy."

"The governor's race is a three-man race which included himself, a candidate described as "the Kennedy retired ambassador and former New Orleans mayor;; and a third man termed a "re-treat" governor."

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., and lieutenant governor candidate R. O. Rush of Baton Rouge also spoke.

Chips From The Stump

John McKeithen

MERRYVILLE (Special) — Gubernatorial candidate John McKeithen on a stumping tour here Saturday told a crowd that "Louisiana is in dire need of a new, fresh and vibrant administration if we are to make up for the lost opportunity we have already suffered."

McKeithen said, "Our state lags shamefully behind the other states of the union in spite of our superior natural resources, and that drag can be traced directly to the low caliber of our state's leadership and the corresponding poor image we have projected across the nation."

The public service commissioner pledged that "the era of power politics and selfish ambition among our state's leaders must come to a screeching halt if we are to expect existing businesses to grow and new industry to locate here."

Pointing out the need for a planned program for state development, McKeithen stated he is pledged to the creation of a new long range planning commission made up of the finest brains from our universities and colleges.

McKeithen stated, "We can no longer afford the luxury of spending a billion dollars a year in Louisiana without honestly knowing where we are going and what it is going to cost us in the long run to get there."

Today McKeithen and his ticket will speak in Estherwood, Church Point, Scott and Carencro.

Louis Michot Jr.

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Representative Louis J. Michot Jr., Saturday qualified with the Democratic State Central Committee as a candidate for governor of Louisiana.

Michot said in qualifying, "I seek the support of all independent men and women who believe we must elect a governor completely free of ties with the Long dynasty, the financial powers and the political interests that have bled this state for so long. We are in this campaign to win, and we will, with the votes of those independent men and women who still think for themselves."

Michot announced that he was leaving immediately to visit Michot for Governor organizations throughout the state.

"Our parish organizations have been working hard, and we're ready to go," Michot said. "With no large financial support, our campaign will depend on us meeting and talking to as many of the voters as possible to get our program across."

Michot, 41, was born in Lafayette parish, and raised in Evangeline and Lafayette parishes. He is married to the former Patricia Ann Smith of Patterson, and the father of seven children.

Michot is presently franchise owner of a drive-in chain in Louisiana and Mississippi. He has been active in many civic, professional and service organizations, and was honored in 1956 by the Louisiana Future Farmers of America for his contributions to their South Louisiana programs. Michot is an active pilot and his brightly painted plane has become a familiar trade mark of his "flying campaign" throughout the state.

? Committees Try To Write Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two congressional committees, working with all deliberate speed, have reached the make-or-break point in writing the administration's controversial civil rights legislation.

Charman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., was reported ready to lead his civil rights subcommittee through the delicate task of writing a ban on discrimination in public accommodations.

A high - level strategy session among Democrats and Republicans was held late in the week to prepare for subcommittee action on the public accommodations and voting sections of President Kennedy's civil rights bill.

The three hour meeting was designed to determine what limitations should be placed in the section which would bar discrimination in hotels, motels, restaurants, theaters, lunch counters and other public facilities.

Some of the emphasis was placed on writing a section which can draw enough votes needed for passage of what many consider the key to the administration measure.

The Senate Commerce Committee also was ready to tackle the heart of the public accommodations section.

Gillis Long

LEESVILLE, La. (AP) — Rep. Gillis Long, D-La., a candidate for governor, followed family political traditions Saturday and launched his state stumping here in Vernon Parish.

"Ever since the days of Huey P. Long, we Longs have started our stumping campaigns at 9:30 in the morning on a Saturday in Leesville," he said.

"I came back here to Vernon Parish because the people have been such good friends of the Longs for 40 years."

Slapping also at John J. McKeithen, another gubernatorial hopeful, Long said, "Instead of McKeithen trying to tie the Kennedy label around somebody else's neck, he ought to get the Kennedy lipstick off his own face."

Long said the state's educational system has gone to pot, and the Long leadership is needed to get the state out of the "first place of illiteracy."

"The governor's race is a three-man race which included himself, a candidate described as "the Kennedy retired ambassador and former New Orleans mayor;; and a third man termed a "re-treat" governor."

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., and lieutenant governor candidate R. O. Rush of Baton Rouge also spoke.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

When going on camp-outs or cook-outs and you take along that good old iron skillet, here's a great way I've found to clean it:

Crumple some leftover foil into a little ball. Use this to clean your skillet and the rungs on your grill, especially if the grill has accumulated residue from hamburger patties. It sure gets it clean.

Better than washing the bottom of the skillet and the outside of the utensils, the coffee pot and so forth . . . I cover the outside of these utensils with foil! This way the soot never even touches the finish. No after-washing is even required. Just throw the foil away afterwards.

FOXIN' THE TOCSIN

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who have acute hearing and cannot stand the loud bell of an alarm clock . . . did they know that they could take a plain, old, rubber band and place it around the bell on the alarm clock?

All one has to do is open the back of the clock and look for the alarm.

The thicker the rubber band is, the quieter the alarm!

Hate to Wake Up

DEAR SIR:

Now, you are a real corker to think of that one!

I opened two clocks. One, like you said, had the bell. I tried the rubber band. It works!

Another clock had a little

"knocker," so I put a piece of adhesive tape around it. Worked fine!

Happy sleeping . . .

GLOVE LINERS

DEAR HELOISE:

You can do dishes and other cleaning jobs far more comfortably with a pair of cotton gloves worn underneath the rubber or plastic-type gloves. Keeps hands from perspiring, too.

ROUNDABOUT SHEETS

DEAR HELOISE:

Tell all your readers who would like to use contour sheets . . . but hesitate to buy them because they are so hard to put on . . . to buy TOP contour sheets only.

One week use them for the top sheet and next week as a bottom sheet. They are only fitted on one end. This also rotates the sheets, and they will wear evenly.

Too (and that's a great big . . . too), there is no separating them in the closet or hunting for which-is-which, as they are all alike.

Sure saved me lots of linen closet digging!

Mrs. H. J.

TEARLESS ONIONS

DEAR HELOISE:

I prevent "tears" when cutting or chopping onions by first cutting them in half (after peeling the outside off, of course), and laying the cut side down on my cutting board.

I then slice or chop while the cut side is still down.

Simple and effective.

Alice Prowse

Dear Mrs. P.,

Sure is . . . now why didn't I ever think of that? You are a darling! Bless you for sending this hint in. We all chop onions so often.

EATING APRONS

DEAR HELOISE:

A need for large aprons at lunch time for the children, while they are still in their good school clothes, prompted me to make some from small and medium-size turkish bath towels.

I sewed binding around the neck of the apron and put a tie on both sides of the waist. This allows for tying the apron on small children, behind the neck and at the waistline.

These are ideal. The toweling is blue for the boys, and pink for the girls. They also make wonderful gifts and can be readily laundered without any ironing being necessary.

Mary Mallory

STORE AND SAVE

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who buy butter a pound at a time, I would like to pass along a little hint which my husband and I think has kept our butter from absorbing odors from other food.

Place the sticks of butter in a large mayonnaise jar, cap it tightly and place in your refrigerator. It stays fresh much longer.

MORE ABOUT MOPS

DEAR HELOISE:

For those of us who must use dry mops, oil mops and different types of brooms . . . here's a great hint: Always stand them with the handle down and the head of the mop up.

Your readers may say, "But that gets my wall dirty." Well, I cover the heads of my brooms and mops WITH A PLASTIC BAG . . . this way the dust from the dry mop does not get on my broom, etc.

Bachelor

CLEAN SPONGES

DEAR HELOISE:

I soak my kitchen sponge in a solution of strong, cold salt water. I find that this not only removes odor—which I think is caused from accumulated bacteria—but makes it smell sweet and clean again.

Pell

MEN'S WEAR DEPT.

DEAR HELOISE:

To help my husband choose a shirt at a glance . . . with or without a patch . . . on the elbow or elsewhere . . . I iron on a piece of colored tape over the label at the back of the neck! A small piece will do.

This way, he just has to look at the label in the back of the collar without unfolding the entire shirt and then refolding it.

If he needs a perfect shirt, he looks for one without the colored tape over the label. If he is going someplace that doesn't demand perfection, he looks for a shirt with a colored "wife-label" in the back of the collar. Saves lots of time and messy drawers and closet shelves.

Mrs. J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

YOU have solved a problem in my own household. And imagine how many husbands will appreciate this method. What a wonderful woman you must be!

A need for large aprons at lunch time for the children, while they are still in their good school clothes, prompted me to make some from small and medium-size turkish bath towels.

I sewed binding around the neck of the apron and put a tie on both sides of the waist. This allows for tying the apron on small children, behind the neck and at the waistline.

These are ideal. The toweling is blue for the boys, and pink for the girls. They also make wonderful gifts and can be readily laundered without any ironing being necessary.

STORE AND SAVE

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who buy butter a pound at a time, I would like to pass along a little hint which my husband and I think has kept our butter from absorbing odors from other food.

Place the sticks of butter in a large mayonnaise jar, cap it tightly and place in your refrigerator. It stays fresh much longer.

MORE ABOUT MOPS

DEAR HELOISE:
For those of us who must use dry mops, oil mops and different types of brooms . . . here's a great hint: Always stand them with the handle down and the head of the mop up.

Your readers may say, "But that gets my wall dirty." Well, I cover the heads of my brooms and mops WITH A PLASTIC BAG . . . this way the dust from the dry mop does not get on my broom, etc.

CLEAN SPONGES

DEAR HELOISE:
I soak my kitchen sponge in a solution of strong, cold salt water. I find that this not only removes odor—which I think is caused from accumulated bacteria—but makes it smell sweet and clean again.

Pell

MEN'S WEAR DEPT.

DEAR HELOISE:
To help my husband choose a shirt at a glance . . . with or without a patch . . . on the elbow or elsewhere . . . I iron on a piece of colored tape over the label at the back of the neck! A small piece will do.

This way, he just has to look at the label in the back of the collar without unfolding the entire shirt and then refolding it.

If he needs a perfect shirt, he looks for one without the colored tape over the label. If he is going someplace that doesn't demand perfection, he looks for a shirt with a colored "wife-label" in the back of the collar. Saves lots of time and messy drawers and closet shelves.

Dear Mrs. J.:
YOU have solved a problem in my own household. And imagine how many husbands will appreciate this method. What a wonderful woman you must be!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

When going on camp-outs or cook-outs and you take along that good old iron skillet, here's a great way I've found to clean it:

Crumple some leftover foil into a little ball. Use this to clean your skillet and the rungs on your grill, especially if the grill has accumulated residue from hamburger patties. It sure gets it clean.

Better than washing the bottom of the skillet and the outside of the utensils, the coffee pot and so forth . . . I cover the outside of these utensils with foil! This way the soot never even touches the finish. No after-washing is even required. Just throw the foil away afterwards.

FOILIN' THE TOCSIN

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who have acute hearing and cannot stand the loud bell of an alarm clock . . . did they know that they could take a plain, old, rubber band and place it around the bell on the alarm clock?

All one has to do is open the back of the clock and look for the alarm.

The thicker the rubber band is, the quieter the alarm!

Hate to Wake Up

DEAR SIR:

Now, you are a real corker to think of that one!

I opened two clocks. One, like you said, had the bell. I tried the rubber band. It works!

Another clock had a little

"knocker," so I put a piece of adhesive tape around it. Worked fine!

Happy sleeping . . .

GLOVE LINERS

DEAR HELOISE:

You can do dishes and other cleaning jobs far more comfortably with a pair of cotton gloves worn underneath the rubber or plastic-type gloves. Keeps hands from perspiring, too.

Lin

ROUNDABOUT SHEETS

DEAR HELOISE:

Tell all your readers who would like to use contour sheets . . . but hesitate to buy them because they are so hard to put on . . . to buy TOP contour sheets only.

One week use them for the top sheet and next week as a bottom sheet. They are only fitted on one end. This also rotates the sheets, and they will wear evenly.

Too (and that's a great big . . . too), there is no separating them in the closet or hunting for which-is-which, as they are all alike.

Sure saved me lots of linen closet digging!

Mrs. H. J.

TEARLESS ONIONS

DEAR HELOISE:

I prevent "tears" when cutting or chopping onions by first cutting them in half (after peeling the outside off, of course), and laying the cut side down on my cutting board.

I then slice or chop while the cut side is still down.

Simple and effective.

Alice Prowse

Dear Mrs. P.,

Sure is . . . now why didn't I ever think of that? You are a darling! Bless you for sending this hint in. We all chop onions so often.
